

The Oregon & Eastern Changes Hands

The O. W. R. & N. has taken over the Oregon Eastern Railway project, which is being built from Vale westward across the state.

"This line was taken over from the Oregon Short Line, January 1," said President Farrell.

"It will become a subsidiary line of the O. W. R. & N., and when completed will be operated as such. We shall go right ahead with the work as already planned, and will continue with the existing contract, which calls for the construction of 140 miles to Dog Mountain. We shall eventually continue this line to a connection with the Deschutes Railroad at Bend."

Columbia Southern Project Passes House

Salem, Feb. 12.—At the conclusion of one of the most brilliant speeches ever delivered on the floor of the house, the Forbes bill, appropriating $500,000 for the Columbia Southern irrigation project, passed by an overwhelming vote. There were but few votes against it.

Gill of Clackamas and Hill and Johnson of Marion were among those opposing. They held it to be a dangerous precedent for the state to align itself with irrigation projects by the appropriation of funds, even though it be but for a loan. They feared that the state will never get back the money.

Hinkle of Umatilla took the floor and made a most eloquent plea for the bill. He declared it the biggest piece of legislation ever before the house, and said he doubted if any greater will ever be presented. He said in part:

"State reclamation of desert lands is a new thing in Oregon. The time has come when this state must look to its 16,000,000 acres of tillable, but unoccupied land and adopt a definite policy which will insure its speedy use and occupation. We have extended a broad invitation to the homeseeker. It is our imperative duty to see that he is not flimflammed upon his arrival.

"But aside from all of this, we must bear in mind that the state's hands touched this Columbia Southern project, and the state's hands are not yet washed of the transaction. It is easy to say the state bears no legal responsibility. But I say to you the state's moral responsibility is one that rests heavily upon the shoulders of every citizen. The state cannot shift a responsibility. The state must make good on every proposition with which its fair name is associated in any capacity. The first contract in the matter of the proposed reclamation was signed by the officers of the state and the impress of the great seal of the state was affixed to the document. The settler relied upon that. He had a right to rely upon it. The mistakes of the officers of the state are no justification. The loophole by which the state may escape legal liability is no justification. We cannot blame the original state land board for not throwing stronger safeguards around the settlers who were to occupy the lands and ultimately pay the full cost of reclamation. These officers acted in good faith, I doubt not, and in the light of such meager information and data as they possessed at the time. But the glaring fact remains that this project failed, and it is up to the state to see that under its great seal, and in the glory of its fair name, there is no such word as failure.

"Will this legislature leave any lasting mark on the page of history? I say to you that this measure marks a new epoch in the history of the state. And when the records of the legislature are finally made up, and our children and our children's children shall read this page of history, let it not be said that we were weighed in the balance and found wanting, but rather let it be said that we saw and grasped an opportunity for greatness."

A nice small lunch at a small price will be served at the Club Dance Saturday evening. Better come.

The Kingdom of Mormon

On the evening of February 28th at the Club Hall, Prof. R. C. Hillman will discuss the three great menaces of Mormonism—polygamy, financial power, interference in politics—and will describe this, the most marvelous organization in the world.

Polygamy, that awful spot of leprosy on the character of American life as it was and is still practiced today.

The Mormon church gathers from its members as tithing several million dollars annually which is secretly invested in big industries. Within another fifty years this church will be worth many billions of dollars and unless this sinister power is broken, every trade and industry will pay millions into the coffers of the Kingdom of Mormon and the toiling legions shall pay tribute to the Prophet-King.

This you cannot believe unless you hear the explanation of how and why it is done. Mormonism has the most perfect organization yet known to the history of the world. It is the wonder of the ages. Come and listen to the story.

Prof. Hillman was raised in the Mormon church by Mormon parents and knows whereof he speaks. Remember the date and place—February 28th at the Club Hall. Admission 25 cents.

Forget! it and come to the dance Saturday evening
