The "Story of the Cadillac" is one of that mechanical and commercial advancement which makes for permanency. The Cadillac Company has never yielded to clamor by producing that which catered merely to fancy, nor that which took advantage of the uninformed. On the contrary it has produced only that which it knew would give to the purchaser "value received" in abundant measure. The Cadillac Company has never been obliged to resort to exaggeration and over-drawn claims to dispose of all the cars that it could make—and more. Its policy has ever been to under-claim rather than over-claim. It is gratified that the public accepts its representations at their full worth; because the public has never been misled and because the public could always expect and has always received more than was offered.

UNSELFISHNESS IN POLITICS.

Liberty knows her children, and she can wait for them to recognize their kinship. Oliver Wendell Holmes one day said, "You need not be afraid of the truth; the truth is no invalid." You may treat the people roughly and ignore it, but she lives and breathes in the human spirit, and you cannot crush the human spirit, and therefore I would rather be my wagon to a star, knowing its orbit, than trust to any sources I myself might create. We are an interesting people, we human folks. We are afraid of men who have power and use it wickedly, but we are never proud of them, and the only people we rear statues to are the men who forgot themselves and served others, and that statue will stand there as an example as long as the bronze will last, to fire young hearts forever, while the grave of the other man is trodden underfoot and forgotten and some day is a plowed field again. Its quiet crops feed the human race, and he is dead.—Woodrow Wilson.
