

Economy Hints

A penny saved is a penny earned.— Benjamin Franklin.

WHEN mothers object to their daughters 'mussing up' the kitchen they never seem to think that they are interfering with a possible future livelihood," pouted the girl whose mother had just sent her out of the kitchen in disgust at the sight of the array of sticky dishes and saucers that were everywhere in evidence.

This was an entirely new viewpoint to the only semisymphathetic listener who had memories of former bad half hours of dishwashing on similar occasions and had felt very much on the mother's side of the argument. But she was forced to admit very much to herself that there was something in the daughter's way of looking at it, and when one stops to think of it, isn't there? Think of the Mary Elizabeths, the Virginias Lees and all the other girls whose names are identified with pure candy throughout the country! Isn't it more than probable that they began their work as fudge-making schoolgirls?

Any one doubting that "sweet-meats," as the English call all candy made by girls, have a commercial value should look about at the next church bazaar, bazaar or social attended and notice the popularity of the little bags of candy, contributed almost invariably by the younger members of the congregation. The candy booth is usually the first to report itself sold out. There is no appreciable reason why the same success should not be met with commercially. We are constantly being told by the "how to reduce your weight overnight" article or doctor that American women are the greatest candy eaters in the world, so that it would seem there is always a good field for such a business enterprise, even though it sometimes appears this business is overcrowded.

There is an especially good opportunity for any one who can work out original ideas or put even an old or standard commodity up in a newer and more attractive form than it has hitherto been got out in. It is an age when the public willingly and generously pays for the form and style of a package, especially when it contains a food product. The shops—those dealing in sweets especially—refuse to allow us to overlook a single holiday; consequently the production of a different kind of Easter egg or rabbit, a valentine heart or a St. Patrick's day shamrock or a variation of the time honored Fourth of July firecrackers meets with instant recognition and, naturally, financial success. Go over our list of holidays, you girls who are interested in the making of fudge and fondant and want to earn money, and consider the opportunities here.

How to Quiet Noisy Boys.

Have you never wished you could think of something to keep those noisy boys quiet Sunday mornings when nobody but boys thinks of rising as early as upon other days?

A maiden aunt—always a blessing to any household—has devised this plan: Every Sunday morning, when the obstreperous ones awake, their eyes rest upon two mystic packages tied with many strings. After much undoing of knots they find within the big brown paper bags animal crackers, bits of candy, fruit and some pictures for their scrap books or any of the thousand simple things it takes to entertain a child. It takes many minutes to unearth the treasures, and by that time the grownups are astray, having enjoyed their last morning's doze undisturbed.

How to Make Delicate Perfume.

Some of the richest and most expensive perfumes can be made in the following way: Select your blossoms, whatever essence you desire, pluck from the stems and drop into a jar half filled with almond or olive oil. Allow these flowers or leaves to lie for twenty-four hours in the oil; then squeeze through a cheesecloth bag into a perfectly clean glass dish.

Repeat this operation until you have procured the strength you desire. Pour this essence into a new jar and thoroughly mix with an equal quantity of pure rectified spirits. Let this mixture stand for three weeks, shaking and mixing it thoroughly every day. After this process it must be again strained, and then it is ready to be bottled for use.

How to Repair Derby Hats.

If you are ever unfortunate enough to smash a new derby hat, so that it cracks and in spite of rubbing and brushing refuses to resume its pristine smoothness of surface, try the simple expedient of holding a lighted match inside the hat close to the broken spot. By the time the match has half burned out you will find the hat has become soft. If you will then brush it vigorously with a stiff brush for a moment it will regain its former smoothness and look as if nothing had ever marred its surface.

How to Improve Hard Sauce.

When making hard sauce beat in a little sweet cream. It is a great improvement. The sauce will not be quite so true to its name of "hard sauce," however, as the cream softens it a little.

HELP OTHER SOULS.

Be to other souls
The cup of strength in some great agony; Enkindle generous ardor, feed pure love; Beget the smiles that have no cruelty;
Be the sweet presence of a good diffused,
And in diffusion even more intense.
—George Eliot.

BE UNENVOUS.

No man is happy till he thinks on earth
There breathes not one more happy than himself; Then envy dies and love o'er-flows on all,
And love, o'erflowing, makes an angel here.
—Young.

RECOMPENSE.

There is no winter in the heart Of him that doth a useful deed.
Of what he gives he hath a part,
And this supplieth all his need.
—J. H. Gourlie.

MEDITATIONS OF MARCUS AURELIUS.

The ways of the gods are full of providence.

Thou wilt find rest from vain fancies if thou doest every act in life as though it were thy last.

Find time still to be learning something good and give up being desultory.

A man should be upright, not be kept upright.

The universe is change. Our life is what our thoughts make it.

Whatever is in any way beautiful hath its source of beauty in itself and is complete in itself.
Praise forms no part of it. So it is none the worse nor the better for being praised.

WHISTLE AND I'LL COME TO YOU, MY LAD.

Oh, whistle and I'll come to you,
my lad;

Oh, whistle and I'll come to you,
my lad.

Though father and mitber and a' should go mad.

Oh, whistle and I'll come to you,
my lad.

But warty tent, when ye come to court me,

And come na unless the back-ye't be a-jee,

Syne up the back stye and let nobody see.

And come as ye were na' comin' to me.

At kirk or at market, when'er ye meet me,

Gang by me as though that ye cared nne a fie,

But steal me a blink o' your bonnie black e'e,

Yet look as ye were na lookin' at me.

Aye vow and protest that ye care na for me

And whiles ye may lightly my beauty a wee,

But court nae anither, though john' ye be,

For fear that she will your fancy frae me.
—Robert Burns.

A PATRIOT'S WISH.

It is my heart's first and favorite wish to be employed in active and enterprising services where there is a prospect of rendering such services useful and acceptable to America. The singular honor which congress hath done me by their general approbation of my past conduct hath inspired me with sentiments of gratitude which I shall carry with me to my grave, and if a life of service devoted to America can be made instrumental in securing its independence I shall regard the continuance of such approbation as an honor far superior to the empty pageantry which kings ever did or can bestow.—John Paul Jones.

TRUTH.

Truthfulness is not so much a branch as a blossom of moral, manly strength. The weak, whether they will or not, must lie. As respects children, for the first five years they utter neither truth nor falsehood—they only speak. Their talk is thinking aloud, and, as one half of their thought is often an affirmative and the other a negative and, unlike us, both escape from them, they seem to lie, while they are only talking with themselves. Besides, at first they love to sport with their new art of speech and so talk nonsense merely to hear themselves. Often they do not understand your question and give an erroneous rather than a false reply. We may ask, besides, whether, when children seem to imagine and falsify, they are not often relating their remembered dreams, which necessarily blend in them with actual experience.—Jenn Paul Richter.

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

Care of Children.

Children should have plenty of fresh air, good food, exercise, rest and sleep. They should sleep in bedrooms with the windows open both summer and winter, and no child under twelve years of age should have less than nine hours of sound, refreshing sleep. Children should be taught to be regular in their habits of eating, sleeping and exercise. They should also be taught habits of personal neatness and cleanliness. Unless carefully watched they will not wash their faces, comb their hair or brush their teeth.

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

Tonsillitis and Quinsy.

Seldom a week in winter goes by without some member of every school class or office force being confined at home with tonsillitis. This trouble seems to be more particularly common in youth, although it may occur at any age. Those who have a predisposition to rheumatism are especially prone to be attacked.
Exposure to wet and cold usually is the exciting cause, and such exposure is especially effective if the system is debilitated or the throat is congested from improper use or overuse of the voice.

In many instances a severe case may be avoided by prompt attention to the first symptoms. One who is subject to tonsillitis should be especially careful about ex-posure and if by chance he does become chilled should take a hot bath, hot drink and go to bed.
At the first appearance of any irritation of the throat some local application should be applied.

There are many local applications which afford considerable relief in tonsillitis. One of the most convenient and also most effective is turpentine and lard or oil. One part of turpentine to eight of olive oil will not cause a blister. This should be heated and then rubbed in well and covered with absorbent cotton or a flannel cloth. Hot vinegar is another excellent application. Cloths wrung out of hot water also afford relief. These may be applied over the turpentine and oil.

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

Pressure on Blood Vessels.

There should never be any undue pressure on the throat, especially for full blooded persons.
Anything that retards the circulation in the large artery that carries the blood to the head should be avoided. Dress the throat loose enough to allow free movement of the head.

How to Remove Soft Corns.

To cure soft corns the cause must first be removed as far as possible. Bathe the feet in drying, cooling lotions and liberally sprinkle between the toes any fine plain or carbolated powder.
A good bath for soft corns is a heaping tablespoonful of salt, a generous pinch of alum and a few drops of arnica added to a quart of water. A splendid powder, if you wish to make one yourself, is made from about four ounces of fuller's earth and half an ounce of tannin and bismuth. If the feet are carefully bathed and dried and then a piece of cotton is dipped into the powder and placed between the toes that are troubled there will soon be a cure.

Curing Tuberculosis.

"No drug, gas or other material has yet been discovered," says the National Society For the Prevention of Tuberculosis, "that will kill the germs of tuberculosis without doing serious injury to the body." The only real cure recognized by the society consists in "fresh air, suitable food and rest or exercise taken under the direction of a physician." This would include tuberculin, which was condemned by a special commission appointed to investigate it by the British government in 1906, reporting that "Professor Koch's theories regarding the value of tuberculin are wrong in their entirety." To destroy the germ is not curing the disease, and the prevention of the disease is not to be secured by avoiding proper nutrition. Tuberculosis can be cured if taken in time.
Almost the same words might be applied to cancer, although a magic remedy is still being sought for that disease, which has not yet been organized as a disease of nutrition, incurable by any such remedy as tuberculin.
