

Columbia Semi-Malleable Range

In the Columbia Range, we believe we are offering one of the very best and most attractive ranges made. It's a sanitary range. No place for dirt and scrubbing water to lodge year after year until the dirtiest place in the house is under the kitchen range, as is the case with all ranges running to the floor. It is a handy range, too. The polished top makes it easy to clean. The lift-up plate in front makes it handy to empty trash, etc. The damper handle in front is always cool. We are selling these ranges at a very low figure considering quality and will put them out on the easy payment plan.

WE WOULD BE GLAD TO HAVE YOU CALL AND MAKE A PERSONAL INSPECTION

Powell Butte

Miss Jessie Skein was a home-coming passenger on Tuesday's train from Portland, where she had been the past month. Miss Skein is entirely recovered from the effects of her recent operation for appendicitis.

Geo. Braze, Henry Tweet, Levi Ernest, Melvin Foster, Reeves Wilcoxon and J. E. Warner were Powell Butte pork producers who shipped hogs to Portland Tuesday. The Redmond Union Warehouse had charge of the shipment.

Allen Wilcoxon and his father-in-law, Geo. H. Roe, were Bend visitors Wednesday.

A. W. Bayn was a Prineville visitor Friday. Miss Hazel accompanied her father home for a week-end visit with home folks.

Ross Bussett is recovering from a severe attack of mumps. Ross says they will have to go some to get him to contract another case of mumps. He says the contract is misleading.

Miss Effa Lindquist returned from Redmond Friday where she has been for the past two weeks assisting with the revival meetings at the Methodist church. Miss Lindquist is an accomplished vocalist.

Mrs. Mary Falco, who has been visiting her father, B. Mance, for the past two months, left for her home in Tacoma Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Sears and daughter, Ada, and Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Yates were dinner guests at the N. P. Alley home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Smith entertained a party of friends at dinner Sunday.

Mrs. A. W. Bayn visited her daughters in Prineville Sunday returning home Monday.

Mr. Stevens of Redmond, brother-in-law to Frank Kissler, is out here helping the latter gentleman in the building of his new house.

Bend is crowing over Redmond because of the fact that Gov. West, on his recent visit, appeared in the former town in a boiled shirt while

In the latter he wore a flannel shirt. We are satisfied in our own minds had Gov. West paid Powell Butte a visit he would have come togged out in a Prince Albert, silk hat and patent leathers. In which case both towns would have had our sympathy.

Inclemency of the weather was responsible for a very small attendance of members at the Powell Butte Socials meeting last week. The meeting was with Mrs. Morse.

Ed Pierson had a runaway last week in which he was fortunate to escape uninjured as his team, buggy and harness looked the worse for rough usage afterwards.

Mrs. Geo. H. Roe, mother of Mrs. Wilcoxon, who has been ill is reported as improving.

Messrs. Smith and Johnson, traveling evangelists, who have been conducting revival meetings at the Wilson schoolhouse closed their meetings Sunday evening, leaving for Prineville Monday.

Geo. Hobbs is in Redmond this week where he is putting in his spare time sorting spuds.

Henry Tweet had the misfortune to lose a fine big mare last week.

Grimes Valley

There will be Sunday School and church at the Grimes Chapel Sunday, Feb. 1. Rev. Ramsey will preach.

The Lower Ryegrass Literary Society meets next Saturday evening. The program committee is preparing a program and all expect a pleasant time.

We have been having unusual weather for January and several of the farmers have taken advantage of it and are doing their spring plowing.

There will be a basket social and entertainment at the Grimes Chapel, Friday, February 6, at 7:30 p. m., given by the Ladies' Aid and Modern Woodman Band. They are getting up a good program. The leading number is a play in five acts and there will be other good numbers with good music by the band. This is the last social of this kind that they expect to give this winter. In fact, it will be the last help they will ask for the benefit of their church, so they would be pleased if every one would come and bring baskets. If you can't bring a basket come anyway. There will be coffee and sandwiches for those that have no lunch. Come everyone.

A Critical Cow.

The city girl boarding in the country spoke to the farmer about the savage way in which the cow regarded her. "Well," said the farmer, "it must be on account of that red waist you're wearing."

"Dear me," said the girl; "of course I know it's awfully out of fashion, but I had no idea a country cow would notice it!"—Ladies' Home Journal.

The Jester's Dream.

I dreamed—I'm ever dreaming thus—That I bestrode old Pegasus And through the day and through the night Across the miles we took our flight Until at last my winged steed Plunged downward, and we stood upon The earth—beneath the fount, indeed, Of Helicon!

And I was happy, not because I knew that by the poets' laws I, too, belonged to that bright band And with the laureled throng might stand. Nay, I was glad because I'd be Prepared to answer by and by That chestnut, "Did you ever see A horse fly?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Cause For Sorrow.

"What's the matter, Freddie? You appear cast down."

"Annette's father refused to accept me for a son-in-law."

"Well, cheer up; there are other girls."

"It isn't that. I'm thinking what a chump I was. I let her father's bulldog bite me eleven times."—Exchange.

Song For a Suffragette.

When Phyllis pours the kerosene along the castle's stairs How soft and dainty is her mien, how rapt the look she wears! And, ah, what chants could poets sing to spread abroad her praise If near they might be lingering when Phyllis sets the blaze!

But of her mad and merry moods the one that I love best Comes when the somber midnight broods above a world at rest. Below the quiet city sleeps, above the stars are calm;

But, oh, the heart within me leaps when Phyllis hurls the bomb! —New York Times.

He Explains.

"I hear you passed my wife on the street the other day and said she was not much for looks."

"I can explain, old man. You see, my wife was along, and she asked me if I didn't think your wife a perfect beauty. As a married man yourself, you know that was my cue to disagree."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Stock for Sale

Crooked river people living near here are planning a postoffice near Gilchrist and propose getting supplies from Drylake.

There will be a dance at Dry Lake January 30.

English Department Crook County High

The English department is in charge of Miss C. V. Conway, who for the past seven years has given untiring energy and unswerving loyalty to the service of Crook County High School. Many students have passed out from under her gentle regime with well learned lessons in booklore, public speaking, and last but not least, an understanding of the true moral worth that makes men and women strive for life's highest attainments. Miss Conway represents the best in the lessons she teaches and in all their after years, her students, working out their problems in life's school, will speak her name in gratitude for the work so faithfully done.

The school has a strong four-year course in English, three of which are made requisite in order to graduate. The first year's work consists in the study of the fundamentals of grammar, punctuation and the principles of rhetoric, developed through theme work, principally in narration and description, with special emphasis laid upon spelling. Attention is also given to oral expression. The classics studied during the year are "Ivanhoe," Bryant's translation of the "Iliad," Irving's "Sketch Book," Macaulay's "Lays of Ancient Rome," Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice," and Scott's "Lady of the Lake."

The second year includes a thorough review of grammar, spelling and punctuation and the principles of rhetoric developed through themes in narration, description, exposition and argumentation. The classics studied are Dickens' "Tales of Two Cities," Coleridge's "Ancient Mariner," Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar" and Tennyson's "Idylls of the King."

During the third year of the course the study of American literature is taken up and the classics correlated with the history of literature. Themes, chiefly in exposition and argumentation develop the reasoning powers and fluency of language at the same time. Study of verse structure is correlated with the study of the poets.

The fourth year has a strong developing and summarizing course. The English classics are studied in connection with the history of English literature. Themes are written in exposition and argumentation and public speaking taught in connection with these and the oratorical composition. Seniors and juniors are required to write one oration during the year.

In each year of the course the aim is to give thorough drill on fundamentals, fluency in oral expression and to inspire a love for the best in literature, developing the power of appreciation by gaining intimate knowledge of the work and lives of the great masters who lived and wrote so well that all succeeding generations have owed them a debt of gratitude for the words that make life's hard places liveable.

In all the work in English the students are encouraged to express their own opinions and to think for themselves. Oral composition is begun in the first year and continued throughout the course. The work in the two literary societies gives opportunity to apply the principles learned in the class room. Credit in English is given the participants for their work in the inter-society declamatory and oratorical contests and in the inter-scholastic debate.

The strong course in English here outlined is offered by Crook County High School to the young people of Crook county and the school earnestly hopes that all these young people will take advantage of their opportunity. There are over a hundred students taking this course at present.
