A Birthday Surprise

The many friends of Miss Lillie Knox very pleasantly surprised her with a birthday party on the evening of February 14 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Newsom Jr., where she had gone to spend the day. It required all of the expert tact and professional diplomacy of the community to keep her at the place where wanted and in ignorance of the plot until the appointed hour for meeting. By some hook or crook, possibly the fear of missing a good thing, Mr. Caleb Davis, dressed in his Sunday best, arrived upon the scene a little ahead of time and this constituted surprise number one. The grand surprise, which was complete, closely followed upon the arrival of the entire company. The evening was very pleasantly spent in playing interesting and exciting games. At 10:30 Mrs. Newsom invited the merry-makers to the dining room, where a bountiful supper was served, to which all did justice. A few minutes before the stroke of 12 the company took their departure after wishing Miss Lillie many happy returns of the day.

As an audience the crowd seemed frivolously inclined. The orator was a broad shouldered, heavily built man. "Look here, my friends," he said: "I'm standing here today to maintain the great principle of free speech, and if any man interrupts me I'll give him one on the nose."

400 People at the Masquerade

The masquerade ball given last Friday evening at the Glaze Hall was the largest the city has witnessed in many years. The grand march had to be dispensed with owing to the large crowd. Although some 400 people were present excellent order prevailed throughout the evening. At 5:15 a. m. some twenty-five couples were dancing the Home Sweet Home waltz.

The judges decided that Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Kincaid were the best waltzing couple. Best sustained character was won by Mrs. Lillie Parry as "Indian Woman." Miss Dot Poindexter as "Angel" was given the prize for the prettiest costume, and A. B. Roller as "Tramp" captured the prize for the most comic character. There were many pretty costumes and a host of well sustained characters.

Advertiser's Aim Is Satisfaction

By HOLLAND.

ONE of the biggest retail merchants in the world, with stores in two of America's largest cities, and who naturally is one of the largest advertisers in the world, insists that his advertisement writers confine themselves to strict truth, and any promise made by one of his clerks is considered to have been made personally by the head of the firm.

A woman bought a fine tablecloth, and after she had it home there was a slight imperfection found. It was nothing to affect the wear of the tablecloth, but she took it back, explaining that she had paid a high price for the article and that she had intended it for her "best." She was somewhat apologetic for returning a purchase with such a slight imperfection.

"You are a stranger in this city?" asked the floorwalker, and the woman nodded. "I thought so," he said. "You do not understand our system. Had you kept that tablecloth you would have done yourself and us an injustice. When you buy here you must be satisfied. If you are dissatisfied for any reason you are not fair to us unless you tell us and give us a chance to satisfy you."
That spirit is behind big advertisers everywhere. It is another reason for doing business with advertisers.

BRILLIANTS.

Did we not hate the necessary toll Of slow correction and the painful file Illustrious youths with just contempt receive. Nor let the hardy poem hope to live Where time and full correction don't refine. The finished work and polish every line? —From Horace's Art of Poetry.

Some of your griefs you have cured, And the sharpest you still have survived; But what torments of pain you've endured From the evils that never arrived! —French Proverb.

It fortifies my soul to know That though I perish truth is so; That how so'er I stray and range, Whate'er I do thou dost not change. I steadier step when I recall That if I slip thou dost not fall. —Arthur Hugh Clough.

BITS OF PHILOSOPHY.

He hears but half who hears one party only.—Aeschylus.

Prejudice renders a man's virtue his habit and not a series of unconnected acts. Through just prejudice his duty becomes a part of his nature.—Burke.

He who is sorry for having sinned is almost innocent.—Seneca.

All persons as they become less prosperous are the more suspicious. They take everything for an effort and from their conscious weakness presume that they are neglected.—Terence.

All men are held and called tyrants who possess perpetual power in a state which once enjoyed freedom.—Nepos.

TO A MOUNTAIN DAISY.

Wee, modest, crimson-tipped flower, Thou'st met me in an evil hour, For I must crush among the stones Thy slender stem. That sunny gem! The flaunting flowers our gardens yield, High sheltering woods and wa'st main shield; But thou beneath the random field, O' clod or stone, Adorns the hie'st stibble field, Unseen, alone.

There, in thy scanty mantle clad, Thy swawie bosom sunward spread, Thou lifts thy unassuming head In humble guise. But now the share uprears thy bed And low thou lies! —Robert Burns.

RULES OF CONDUCT.

Never put off till tomorrow what you can do today. Never trouble another for what you can do yourself. Never spend your money before you have it. Never buy what you do not want because it is cheap. It will be dear to you. Pride costs us more than hunger, thirst and cold. We never repent of having eaten too little. Nothing is troublesome that we do willingly. How much pain have cost us the evils which have never happened. Take things always by their smooth handles. When angry count ten before you speak; if very angry, a hundred.—Thomas Jefferson.

FLOWERS WITHOUT FRUIT.

Prune thou thy words. The thoughts control Not o'er the swell and throng. They will condense within thy soul And change to purpose strong.

But he who lets his feelings run In soft, luxurious flow, Shrinks when hard service must be done And faints at every woe.

Faith's meannest deed more favor bears Where hearts and wills are weighed Than brightest transports, choicest prayers. Which bloom their hour and fade. —John Henry Newman.
