

Live Wire Talks to Club Members

C. H. Moore, district superintendent of the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Company, with headquarters at Portland, spent several days in Crook county the past week. He met the directors of the Pioneer Telephone & Telegraph Company, at Bend Sunday where some improvements have just been completed in the local office. In company with W. F. King, George Noble and Andrew Noble, Mr. Moore came to Prineville Monday evening by automobile, coming in by way of Laidlaw, Cline Falls and Redmond. The meeting of the Commercial Club was attended Monday night and in response to a request to say a few words, the gentleman from Portland said: "What you people in Prineville need is the spirit of pulling together. Don't wait for the other fellow to do the public work; do your share and your neighbor will soon see the error of his way and pitch in and assist. I dislike very much the word, booster. Change that word to worker and it will sound better to the newcomer. I think the thing which has done this county more harm than any other one thing is the booster, and the fellow who has but slight regard for the truth. The truth about this country is plenty good enough, and the sooner everybody realizes that just so much quicker will the real substantial settler who is willing to put in some good hard work developing the country will begin to come. Then you can figure your real progress has begun. You have all the natural resources in Crook county to make the richest and most populous one in the state. All you need to do is to see that the railroads, the real estate dealer, the immigration agent and everyone else tells the truth and does not try to make the prospective settler believe he is coming to a country where all he has to do is to plant a dollar, sit on the front porch, smoke his pipe and watch it grow into a ten dollar gold piece the first six months. Truth in advertising pays, not because it is good policy, but because it is good business."

Asked about the telephone business, Mr. Moore said the Pacific Company expects to provide Central Oregon with a much improved long distance service by the early summer, making it possible to talk with Portland or other Northwest cities with the same ease as talking between your local towns.
