

Will Wurzweiler Slips One Over on Friends

Portland Telegram.—"Bill" Wurzweiler, who owns almost everything in Crook county worth having and who lives at the Imperial Hotel here, might as well be "bawled out" now before he sheds innocent blood. Among the landed estates on which "Bill" pays taxes, road, personal, real and income, is a janiper belt of 150 acres through which flows a large stretch of the Metolius river, said river being jammed full of fine juicy trout. It is so full of fish that every time the trout take a full breath it makes a six-foot tide and overflows seven sections of sage brush and jack rabbits. Nine times out of ten when a coyote takes a drink in the stream he gets bitten on the nose by some playful fish.

That is plot incident No. 1. Incident No. 2 is April 1st, opening day of the trout season.

Incident No. 3, introduced into the action for purposes of involving major theme of plot, is a large 3 year-old Hereford bull who is monarch of all the geodetic and railroad surveys in that part of the country, and he has lorded it over that 150-acre juniper domain for the past 18 months.

Incident No. 4, further entangling the plot and leading directly to the denouement, and which is apt to bring Wurzweiler face to face with a murder charge, is the fact that "Bill" has been inviting all the friends he has in Portland and elsewhere to go up to his ranch and fish.

"You see," explains "Bill" as he leads the angler off into a corner, "I haven't the time to fish out the stream and the trout are getting so thick they are wearing each other's scales off and haven't got room enough for exercise without making the water tired."

"Bill" has at least 50 zealous Laak Waltons ready to take the first train into the interior.

Now comes plot incident No. 5, short tableau and denouement.

"Jeff" Myers heard Wurzweiler invite "Jim" Kyle, mayor of Stanfield, and "Jack" Cröwe, proprietor of the Marion Hotel of Salem, to go up and bag a few ton of trout, and immediately the tall sycamore of complacent Democracy butted in and scrambled the eggs.

"Say you guys," yelled Jefferson loudly, "do you want to sacrifice your bright young lives on the horns of a 1600-pound 3-year-old Hereford dilemma for the sake of a string of fish? I know what I'm talking about. I can show you a pair of $15 all-wool trousers that I wore once and "Bill" Wurzweiler's barbed wire fence wore out. I, Jefferson D. Myers, patriot, statesman whom nobody can force to run for governor, accepted Wurzweiler's invitation to go up fishing last year, and I never saw the river. I didn't see the bull until it was too late and if it hadn't been that kind nature had bestowed a long pair of legs upon me, I would not be here to tell this tale."

Myers explained that with only seven yards start of the bull, he reached the wire fence and cleared it by exactly nothing and left fluttering from the fence portions of his pantaloons he could ill afford to lose.

Wurzweiler has had no trespassers to worry him on his ranch since the bull was placed in charge and so far as he knows none of the fish in the Metolius river has had any cause to worry, either.

Please Don't Trip Over Your Own Feet

By MOSS.

HASTE maketh waste. The more haste the less speed. Haste ever trips over its own heels. The Koran even goes farther. It says, "Haste is of the devil."

The hasty buyer is ALWAYS WASTEFUL. If you want to buy an automobile you don't rush in where angels fear to tread, do you? No; you read up all the advertisements on cars you can. You get posted thoroughly on the subject. If your wife wants to provide a week's supplies for the home she's not going to rush off and buy pell mell at the first place she happens to come to, is she? Not much. She's going to watch the paper REGULARLY for SPECIALS and then she's going to make out a list of what she really wants and buy where she gets the MOST and BEST for the money. Sensible and economical buyers always find it to their advantage to keep CONSTANTLY POSTED by reading the ads. In this paper. Make our advertising columns your DIRECTORY OF ECONOMY.

PAYS SIX TO ONE.

A man who could invest a quarter and get back a dollar and a half would think he had struck a good thing. That is about what a farmer can do in the handling of manure. Twenty-five cents' worth of acid phosphates added to the stable manure will return 150 cents' worth of crops. The Ohio experiment station has proved it, many farmers have found it to be so, and yet most of us fail to invest the quarter or make the worse mistake of falling to care for the manure at all.—National Stockman and Farmer.

FOUR SPUD CROPS A YEAR.

Spaniard's Methods May Be Good For Others to Imitate. From Spain comes the report of a Spaniard who grew four crops of potatoes on the same land in twelve months. The potatoes were grown under ordinary conditions, and the ground was fertilized with horse manure.

First crop, Scotch seed potatoes, planted Aug. 22 and dug Nov. 6, 1911, fair size, firm and good quality; second crop, Scotch seed potatoes, planted Nov. 9, 1911, and dug Feb. 19, 1912, fair size and very good quality; third crop, Scotch seed potatoes, planted Feb. 21 and dug May 19, 1912, large size and much better than those of preceding crops; fourth crop, Spanish seed potatoes, planted May 22 and dug Aug. 19, 1912, poor yield and potatoes small.

The grower attributes the poor quality of the last crop to inferior seed, lack of water for irrigation and to several very hot winds that prevailed in July; but, as in other years, the crop of this same period has been a good one, the low yield of 1912 does not detract from the feasibility of the plan.—Rural New Yorker.

FOES OF THE ROSEBUD.

Get After the Fly and the Slug if You Want to Save Your Flowers.

To destroy the green fly, colonies of which congregate on the young growth of the rosebushes and suck the juices of the plant, and other insect pests, we spray the bushes with tobacco dust after wetting them so the dust will adhere. We have also found fresh white hellebore dusted on the bushes a very good remedy. A sifter can be made by punching the cover of a baking powder can full of small holes and using the can in the same manner as a salt or pepper shaker.

The rose slug, a light green worm that eats the leaves, may be controlled by applying whale oil soap, one-half pound dissolved in four gallons of water. The rose bug, a hard shell beetle that eats the leaves and blossoms and greatly damages the roses, is best controlled by hand picking or knocking off on a sheet in the early morning. Rosebushes can be kept quite free of insects, however, by liberally and frequently sprinkling with tobacco dust.—Rural Life.

Keep the Calves "Coming."

The calves must be kept "coming," whether they suck the cows or are hand fed. Skim milk calves grow strong and thrifty if given a chance. Their milk has to be clean and enough of it. With it they need something to take the place of the cream that is gone. Corn is a good substitute. Oats help also. Ground flaxseed in the milk is fine, but it costs too much these days. For cheapness and results corn and oats crushed together or just plain corn coarsely ground and fed dry are hard to beat.—Iowa Homestead.

Hand or Power Spraying?

Hand spraying is more expensive than power spraying. The cost varies much in different cases, depending on the efficiency of labor, convenience and other essentials, and much depends on the apparatus used. The pump should have capacity to maintain high pressure, and the nozzle must throw a fine spray. The requirements are the same for every kind of spraying.—Farm Progress.

Handy Trench Cleaner.

To a short piece of half round post securely tack on the curved side with shingle nails a sheet of heavy galvanized iron about fifteen inches long. Bore a hole in the block at an angle of about forty-five degrees, deep enough to receive a long handle. This works very satisfactorily.—Farm and Fireside.

"GOING TO LAW."

A conveyance of land described as running with the meanders of a non-navigable stream gives title to the thread of the stream in the absence of a contrary intention shown by the deed.—Robinson Versus Wells, Ky., 135 S. W. 317.

In selling personal property the general rule is that where no misrepresentations are made by the seller in respect to the quality or condition of the property the purchaser buys at his own risk and cannot recover damages on account of defects or unsoundness, but where animals or articles are sold for food the law implies a warranty on the part of the buyer that such provisions are wholesome and fit to eat, and the rule of buyers' risk does not apply.

WAR NEEDLESS.

War is in the interest of a few people, not of all. The profits are garnered by a few, while the masses pay the taxes. A few men gain glory, while the mothers of the nation furnish the sons who make food for battlefields. War rests upon feeling, not upon necessity. As people increase in intelligence they not only take an increasing pride in deciding questions upon the basis of intelligence, but with increasing information they learn the awful cost of war as well as its uselessness. Intelligence leads us to understand the causes that lead up to war. We understand as we grow in intelligence what subsidized patriotism means, what it means for people to hide behind the plea of patriotism as they attempt to advance their own pecuniary interests.—W. J. Bryan.

IT NEVER COMES AGAIN.

There are gains for all our losses. There are balms for all our pains. But when youth, the dream, departs It takes something from our hearts. And it never comes again.

We are stronger and are better Under manhood's sterner reign. Still we feel that something sweet Followed youth with flying feet And will never come again.

Something beautiful is vanished. And we sigh for it in vain. We behold it everywhere— On earth and in the air— But it never comes again. —Richard Henry Stoddard.

MAN WHO ARRIVES.

The man who arrives is the man who has will, who has a vision and looks into the future to make life worth while. In business he is not satisfied to do the work that is before him. He will do the work of the other man. He can do two men's work as well as one—the kind of man who goes to school at night to better his position. He is the kind of man you cannot down, the kind of man Paul was, for if there ever was a man to arrive it was certainly Paul.—J. D. Rockefeller, Jr.

Ordinance Number 212

An ordinance locating and designating the center line of Third street east from the east line of "A" street to the east boundary of the city limits:

Whereas, it appearing that there are several discrepancies between the recorded plats and surveys as made, laid out and staked over and upon the ground of the Original Plat and Survey of Prineville, and the several Additions to the said town, now City of Prineville, Crook county, Oregon, and whereas, it appearing that the center line of Third street west from "A" street as re-established and fixed by the L. D. Weist survey and ordinance of said city adopted and passed in conformity with such survey, is two and one-half feet north of the center line of Third street east from "A" street, as laid out and surveyed over, through and across the First Addition to Prineville, Crook county, Oregon, and whereas, the center line of Third street east from East "E" street as laid out and surveyed over, through and across the Third and Fourth Additions to Prineville, Crook county, Oregon, makes an angle to the north of ten minutes with the center line of Third street as laid out and surveyed over, through and across the First Addition to Prineville, Oregon,

And whereas, it appears to be to the best interest of the public and the inhabitants of the City of Prineville, Crook county, Oregon, that the said center line of Third street be straightened to the East line of "A" street east to the east boundary of the city limits, Now therefore, the people of the city of Prineville, Oregon, do ordain as follows:

Section 1. Beginning at the center line of Third street on the east line of "A" street as established and marked by an iron pin, placed by the L. D. Weist survey, thence in an easterly direction making an angle of seven minutes and thirty-six seconds to the south with the center line of Third street through the original plat of the City of Prineville, as re-established and marked with iron pins, by the L. D. Weist survey, to the east boundary of the city limits.

Section 2. All curb lines between the east line "A" street and the eastern boundary of the city limits along said Third street, shall be twenty-eight feet on either side measured at right angles to the center line of Third street as fixed and designated by section one of this ordinance.

Section 3. This center line as re-established and designated in section one of this ordinance shall be and hereby is for the use only in the building of curb on said Third street, and shall in no wise be construed as effecting or to effect the property lines as surveyed and marked on the ground of the said First, Third and Fourth Additions to the said City of Prineville, Crook county, Oregon.

Section 4. Passed by the City Council of the City of Prineville, Crook county, Oregon, after the third reading. Approved by the Mayor of the said city on the 8th day of April, 1914. G. N. CLETON, Mayor.

A Difficult Case.

Patient—You are worried about my case, doctor. I can see it in your face. Doctor—No-o, not exactly. Patient—Tell me the truth, doctor. I want to know just what you think. Doctor—Well, to be quite candid with you, I was worrying about your bill. You haven't paid me a cent in two years.—Puck.

Reciprocity.

The king was in his counting house, counting up his money. The queen was in the parlor, knitting something funny. The king collected all his coin to buy the queen a present. She made a ten cent gift for him, and everything was pleasant. —Pittsburgh Post.

Contradictory.

Tom—Your boss is a contradictory sort of man. Bob—How not? "Why, he said you were his right hand man." "So I am." "Go on! You're left handed."—Yonkers Statesman.
