

GET WISE, ADVERTISE!

A duck and goose, with faces long and sad And notes which showed that they were fighting mad, Stood talking, stamping foot and shaking head,
And this is what the two birds said:

"I cannot see," quacked Mrs. Pekin duck,
"Why that old hen has all the happy look!
She lays an egg not half so large as mine,
And then men call her 'Marvel' Superduper!"

"Where are the children that I raised last year?
Yet that old hen and family are all here.
I lay big eggs, I'm handsome, by heck, Yet my good looks won't save my rubber neck!"

"You sure are right," honked Mrs. Tou-some Goose.
"I, too, am sick of this villainous abuse.
I hear them talk as if that hen is gold.
Why, heavens, I'm not half so old!"

"I lay an egg that's four times large as hers.
And yet they heap on me their nasty slurs.
Boohoo! They ate my gander last Thanksgiving day.
And I must go the same sad way!"

Then from a bough a solemn owl looked down
And handed this opinion, brief, profound: "Fardon, fair ladies, but you're not full wise Or, like old Biddy, you would advertise."

"Why, Mrs. Duck, your egg you drop into the creek Or lay at four a. m. and never tell the trick.
And, Mrs. Goose, you hide your egg down at the dam
And keep as quiet as an old dead clam.

"Don't stand here knocking all forlorn.
Go lay an egg, then loudly blow your horn.
For he who will not advertise, by heck, Is sure to get it in the neck!"

AMERICA'S CRACK QUACKS.

American quack society, exclusive of humans, consists of the Pekin, Indian Runner, Aylesbury, Rouen, Cayuga, East India, Call, Blue Swedish, Mus-covy and Crested.

They all descended from the wild Mallard except the Muscovy, a native of South America and the only duck that nests and roosts in trees.

America's most prominent ducks are the Pekin and Indian Runner, and they head the waddler procession because of peculiar, practical characteristics.

The Pekin, origin China, has been changed by American experts into the finest market duck in the world. It is large, long bodied, wide backed, broad breasted, deep keeled, of elevated carriage in front, sloping toward rear and is well rounded all around. It is a fast grower, easily forced for market, hardly reaching in adults twenty-five pounds to the pair, and when well fed presents a most beautiful golden yellow carcass, and it is also an excellent layer of big eggs. It is a creamy white in color, and a flock of big Pekins on green sod is certainly a fine sight. The Pekin is the exclusive duck on all the large duck plants of this country.

The Indian Runner, origin India, as its name implies, is not a waddler. It runs, and the way it has run into prominence in this country is remarkable.
Its color is fawn and white. It is about half the size of the Pekin, has the same yellow carcass, is of delicate flesh and delicious flavor, but its peculiar and remarkable characteristic is its ability to lay an abundance of eggs the year around.

It is called the "Leghorn of the duck family," and well it is named, for there are few flocks of hens that can outdis-

INDIAN RUNNER DUCK.
tance this quack on eggs and many that it puts into the shade.

The real Runner lays a large white egg much on the style of the Minorca, and when sold "accidentally on purpose" for the latter epicureans declare them the most delicious Minorca eggs they ever ate.

DON'TS.

Don't call yourself an expert until your work proves you such and others declare you such.

Don't expect customers not to kick at dressed fowls with full crops. Sell feed if you will, but don't try to pass it off as dressed poultry.

Don't go into the exclusive broiler business unless you know the business and you have a market or you may have a broiler explosion.

Don't expect to go right along making money hand over fist in poultry.
You will have reverses, but reverses are not always curses.

Don't rush to sell off young stock unless you are an expert on development. Many a young fowl sent to market would have made a high mark for breeding and show if it had been allowed to grow.

WHEAT AND ITS BYPRODUCTS.

As wheat is the favorite grain of man, so it is also popular with poultry, being attractive in color, size, shape, flavor, easy of digestion and free from coarse hull.

It is called the safest grain for poultry, and in protein (10.2) and carbohydrates (73) it is not quite so well balanced as oats, but it is without the coarse, indigestible hull, and it contains more protein and starch and less oil and fatter (carbohydrates) than corn.

Red wheat is best for poultry and pigeons, being more digestible than white, which has more starch, and new wheat is more difficult to digest than old. Middlings and bran, the by-products of wheat, are very valuable foods and are used by many in preference to whole wheat. They are cheaper and, with other grains and meats, may be manipulated to form a balanced ration. The shell of wheat is

IN THE WHEATFIELD.
the bran, between the bran and flour.
The middle layer is the middlings, rich in gluten, of high protein content (12.8 protein, 60.7 carbohydrates).
The middlings make muscle and blood and when wet are sticky and when used in mash make the bran, ground corn and oats stick together and make them more attractive and edible. Wheat bran is a much used byproduct.

It is not so rich in protein as some grains, its content being 12.2 protein, 45.3 carb, but it is rich in mineral (5.8 ash), which especially makes bones and eggshell and adds certain mineral salts needed in digestion and the body.
Bran is particularly valuable because it adds bulk to the ration—makes it spongy, so necessary that the digestive juices may work through.

In summer on range the hen adds this bulk from vegetable sources, but in winter it must be supplied, as the grain ration is too concentrated, and bran supplies the deficiency, and, being bulky and not rich in its elements, it does this without adding much to the fattening quality of the ration, which is necessary to avoid, as overfat is so detrimental to egg production. Adulteration of bran is generally the case when it is very fine. When very coarse it is about all fiber. The medium is best, and bran is of good quality when it chews into a cud and the particles stick together.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

Fanciers often lose the ribbon at shows because they do not name their birds. The judge has enough to worry him and to hurry him without having to grab a half dozen times for a scared rooster.

Such a bird never poses to show off his good points because he has never been trained. Tambling show birds should begin when they are young.

Skunks near a poultry plant should not give a poultryman cold feet. It's a chance to make easy money by trap, as they walk right into a trap. The hides bring good money. If you should accidentally collide with a skunk don't burn nor bury your ratment; hang it over smoking cedar and it will soon lose that polecat perfume.

A slick trick to get chickens without the trouble of a midnight raid was worked by an individual who visited Pennsylvania poultry dealers under the guise of "chicken inspector" and declared he was sent out by the state department to collect "sample chickens." He displayed a badge and gathered lots of samples and then mysteriously disappeared.

The high price of winter eggs will induce many to go in for chickens in the spring to get pullets to lay fresh eggs for them next winter. It is wise for these in selecting stock to remember that not every strain of fowls is the good winter layer.

Poultry experts of the department of animal husbandry, Washington, are still on the hunt for a noiseless rooster. If late snoring Washington society demands a noiseless cockadoodle, why not also a yapless poolfer?

When Vorriss Luiker of Williamsport, Pa., shot a dog that carried off one of his prize hens he was at once arrested for cruelty to animals because he used a rifle and the bullet only wounded the brute. While a load of shot or bullet would be a surer finish, a quiet talk with the owner of such a dog generally abates the nuisance without any unpleasant complications.

When Stephen Krupa of Jeannette, Pa., heard a noise at the window of his pigeon loft an investigation showed his racing pigeon, Sunny Jim, had arrived home from Rio Janeiro, South America, a distance of 4,200 miles, the wonderful flier having covered that vast space in just forty-eight days, much of the journey over sea.
