

SHAKEUP COMING IN AMATEUR GOLF

President R. C. Watson Would Change Important Rule.

ANENT PROFESSIONALISM.

President of United States Golf Association Would Make It Impossible For Amateurs to Teach or Write About the Game or Lend Their Names For Advertising Purposes.

That amateur golfers who lay out, remodel or give advice for the improvement of golf links for money, write articles telling how to play the game, accept board or expense money for playing in hotel tournaments or who accept for advertising purposes, free of charge, certain makes of clubs or golf balls are all treading on the border lines between professionalism and the standard of union pure amateurism desired by the United States Golf association is the warning contained in a letter now being sent to secretaries of clubs in the membership of the association by Robert C. Watson, the president. The letter is as follows:

"Owing to the fact that certain situations now exist, it is necessary to change section 7 of the bylaws of this association, which defines the status of an amateur golf player.

"It is to be regretted that certain players, members of clubs belonging to the United States Golf association, have been and are utilizing their golfing ability in various phases for cash remuneration, directly or indirectly, which is in violation of the said bylaws. This association has heretofore, does now and always will attempt to keep the game clean, but unfortunately semiprofessionalism—and in fact practically out and out professionalism—is creeping into our ranks and must be stopped before it becomes a serious menace.

"First—Amateur golf players are and have been asking and receiving cash remuneration for laying out golf courses, criticising same and making changes in their present physical construction.

"Second—Amateur golf players are and have been accepting cash remuneration for writing articles in newspapers, explaining in detail how to play certain shots.

"Third—Amateur golf players are and have been accepting free board and traveling expenses from hotels, etc., to play in tournaments and exhibition matches in order to add to the interest in the events for advertising purposes.

"Fourth—Amateur golf players are and have been accepting and using exclusively for advertising purposes free of charge certain makes of golf balls and golf clubs and other golf articles.

"Summing it up, prominence in the game of golf is now being used by amateurs for the purpose of cash remuneration, directly or otherwise, to themselves."

PUGILISTIC NOTES.

Freddie Welsh, the English champion, who won another victory by out-pointing Joe Mandot in a ten round contest at New Orleans, arrived in New York, accompanied by his manager, Harry Pollock. Welsh is rather blue over the bad beating Champion Willie Ritchie received from Charley White of Chicago in their contest at Milwaukee. He claims Ritchie's setback may lead the London fight promoters to cancel his twenty round fight, with him, scheduled to be fought in London in July.

Johnny Howard, the promising middleweight of Bayonne, N. J., will not be able to fight again for several weeks, as he broke two small bones in his right hand in the second round of his battle with Harry Baker at the Broadway Sporting club of Brooklyn.

In a letter received by Danny Morgan, Dan McKelrick, who is in Paris, says that the big fight there on June 27 between Jack Johnson and Frank Moran is being freely discussed. Danny further states that Willie Lewis is now the manager of Tom Kennedy, the American heavyweight.

BOOST SOCCER FOOTBALL.

New England Colleges Favoring the Game—Dartmouth's Good Team.

Soccer football as a college sport received favorable mention at the annual meeting of the New England Association of Colleges for conference on athletics. Several speakers declared it should be developed more than at present. Professor Henry C. Wilder of Williams praised the game as one that would do more to develop a man than any other now played.

In discussing the subject of inducing athletes to matriculate at a particular college W. A. Garcelon of Harvard told of the system of Harvard clubs through the country which offers scholarships for scholastic ability and proficiency in athletics. Representatives of some of the smaller colleges expressed strong opposition to the idea of debarring freshmen from participation in athletics.

Walter Camp of Yale expressed the opinion that the time was coming soon when colleges would make some arrangements to allow a limited portion of the general public to purchase seats for the important intercollegiate contests, a privilege now denied them by inadequate seating facilities. Most of the speakers were in favor of barring coaches from the bench during baseball games.

A WADDELL STORY.

Joe Cantillon Tells Another About Late Pitcher.

Memory of Rube Waddell will live forever in the heart of Joe Cantillon, manager of the Minneapolis Millers. Joe has a fresh bunch of stories on the Rube every time you see him.

"Rube's big heartedness has never been exaggerated," said Joe. "In fact, his generosity has never been fully told. Year before last down at Hickman, Ky., the Rube was with me at Christmas time. A storekeeper called me up Christmas eve and told me the Rube was inviting everybody who pitched the store to stop in and get fitted for a pair of gloves. The merchant thought the Rube had gone daffy and wanted to know if he should stop him. I told him 'No,' to let the Rube have his fun and if he couldn't pay for it I would. He gave away forty pair.

"Rube was lonesome, and the Christmas spirit was upon him, and he couldn't do anything else that would have brought him more pleasure."

BROWN WORKING HARD.

Three Fingered Wizard Finds Managerial Duties Are Difficult.

When Miner Brown joined forces with the Federals and later became manager of the St. Louis team it is doubtful if he anticipated the quota of honest to goodness work he was wishing on himself.

was stiff and cold and has had difficulty in making his high priced stars and minor league recruits get along well together.

He is securing the country now in an effort to pick up some more pitchers and a couple of utility men.

ONE ON SCHAEFER.

Baseball's Leading Comedian Had Sad Adventure In Egypt.

Germany Schaefer hired a guide in Cairo and demanded to be shown the spot where Moses was found in the bulrushes. The guide led him to the banks of the Nile and pointed out the spot, even gathering some of the rushes for Schaefer to send home.

An hour or two later Schaefer grabbed another guide, and after a time the guide offered, for an additional fee, to show him the spot where Moses was found in the rushes. He led Schaefer a mile or two in the other direction and pointed out another spot.

"Nothing doing," yelled Schaefer. "That's eight places I've been shown where Moses was found."

"True," asserted the guide. "The river was in flood, and Moses landed in many places."

A PEEP AT MEXICO

The Country's Area Now and What It Was Originally.

HAS LOST A VAST TERRITORY.

Nearly a Million Square Miles of Its Land Have Been Added to the United States—Still a Big Country, Though, and Has an Enormous Coast Line.

It is interesting to note that the area of Mexico is practically as great as that of the United States between the Mississippi river and the Atlantic coast, the great lakes and the gulf of Mexico, varying in altitude from sea level to 18,000 feet. Its climate is affected by these elevations and by a range of eighteen degrees of latitude. Twelve hundred miles is the distance traversed in passing south from Juarez, on the northern boundary, to the capital, and 900 miles more to the southeastern boundary. The gulf of Mexico and Caribbean sea coast line extends for 1,700 miles, while the Pacific ocean and gulf of California touch 4,000 miles of Mexican coast.

Prior to 1838 Mexico, as a Spanish colony, and the United States covered approximately equal areas, but the Texas secession and the result of the Mexican war added nearly a million square miles to our territory, and the extent of Mexico now is less than one-fourth that of continental United States. Mexico has still territorial expanse equal to the aggregate of Austria-Hungary, Germany, France, Great Britain and Ireland. The total area of the republic, 767,000 square miles, is less than that of Texas, California, Montana, New Mexico and Arizona combined.

The average density of population of Mexico approximates twenty per square mile, the most thickly populated parts, outside of the federal district, being the states of Tlaxcala and Mexico, the former being less than Delaware in size and of about the same density of population and the latter being nearly as large as New Hampshire, but with more than twice the number of inhabitants. The federal district, molded after the District of Columbia, but of eight times greater area, is surrounded by the state of Mexico, the large population of the capital, 470,000, materially aiding in bringing the average to more than 1,200 per square mile.

During nearly 300 years subsequent to the conquest by Cortes, Spain dominated Mexico. A century ago a bold effort for freedom was started, which eventually resulted in the republic of Mexico of today. More than half of the first century of Mexican independence was abortive, one eoterie after another coming into temporary power and a number of those acclaimed rulers after brief regimes meeting ignominious death at the hands of the people they sought to govern.

The form of government adopted by Mexico follows in general that of the United States, having executive, judicial and legislative divisions. Each of the twenty-seven states is represented in two houses of congress, composed of senators and deputies. Congress holds two sessions each year for limited periods. Each state has its governor and legislature and is subdivided into districts or counties, over each of which a jefe politico is placed, the districts having subsidiary municipalities with magistrates, presiding officials and councils. The so called autocratic feature or the government may be largely due to the fact that governors hold office with approval of the president, that jefe politico have similar relations with the governors and that the officers of the municipalities are generally controlled by the jefe politico.

The church and state are independent, and congress cannot pass laws prohibiting or establishing any religion. Of the 16,000,000 inhabitants two-fifths claim direct descent from ancient tribes or families which are accepted as the basis of Mexican history, two-fifths are of mixed native and foreign blood, the remainder being classed under the common appellation of "foreign."

The City of Mexico, 264 miles by rail west of Vera Cruz and 7,400 feet altitude, is reached by two rail routes climbing from the hot lands through difficult mountain passes, one of which closely follows the trail taken by Cortes in 1519, by General Winfield Scott with American troops in 1847 and over which fifteen years later the invading French troops passed. It is the most populous city. One-half of the railroad mileage of the country is between sea level and 5,000 feet and about an equal amount between 5,000 and 10,000 feet. —From National Geographic Society in Washington.

Ancient Gold.

In olden times gold was obtained abundantly from the rivers of Asia. The sands of Pactolus, the golden fleece secured by the argonauts, the yellow metal of Ophir, the fable of King Midas, all illustrate the eastern origin of gold. Alexander the Great brought nearly $500,000,000 of gold from Persia. Gold also came from Arabia and from the middle of Africa by way of the Nile.

Ways of a Woman.

"Let us go into the garden," he said as the twilight hour approached. "I'm afraid you'll want to sit in the hammock with me and hold my hand." "I swear I won't." "Then what's the use?"—Detroit Free Press.
