

WITH tense interest the whole world is watching the development of the situation between Austria and Serbia. What shall be its immediate result, what its final outcome? Although Serbia backed down on July 25, will this quarrel between neighbors extend beyond its original territory and eventually involve all the great powers of Europe in a general war?

That Austria would be supported by Germany should Russia decide upon hostile measures in support of Serbia was considered absolutely certain. Both Austria and Germany are next door neighbors of Russia and are united in the common interest of preventing Slav expansion and aggression in the Balkan peninsula. Whether Italy, the third power in the triple alliance, would actively support Austria was a question open to speculation. It is true that the terms of the alliance make it practically obligatory for Italy to lend its support to Austria and Germany in the event of a war with Russia, but it is believed by many that owing to Italy's close relations to Montenegro, which is outspokenly friendly to Russia, and in view of certain internal conditions Italy may remain neutral.

Whether England and France, the other great western powers, would eventually side with Russia was a question of deep concern to all Europe. France, being a rather close ally of Russia and naturally hostile to Germany, may consider this a welcome opportunity to seek redress from its hereditary foe for the taking away of Alsace-Lorraine in 1870-1 and may enter into the general mixup with that end in view.

Attitude of Minor Powers.
That an outbreak of hostilities between Austria and Serbia may arouse a sympathetic wave among the bel-

AUSTRIA'S ULTIMATUM.
The Austrian ultimatum to Serbia contained the following demands:
First.—The Serbian government must publish official disavowal of its connection with anti-Austrian propaganda.
Second.—The Serbian government must make a vigorous investigation of the part played by Slavs in the assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand, heir to the Austrian throne, and his wife.
Third.—Serbia must suppress all the pan-Slavic societies which are carrying on a political campaign against Austria.
Fourth.—Serbia must suppress the activities of Slavic agents in Bosnia and Herzegovina who are working for the detachment of territory from Austria.

ligerent and intensely clannish peoples of the Balkan peninsula is extremely likely. Montenegro has already announced that it will give its support to Austria, and this may prompt the other minor powers of the Balkans to take sides in accordance with their racial, religious and political interests. Rumania, at one time a staunch ally of Russia, is no longer friendly to that power—at least, not to the extent of fighting for it. It is believed that Rumania will remain neutral in the fight and will carefully guard its territory against encroachments by either of the hostile powers. Only in the event that Bulgaria should decide upon giving active support to Austria is it believed that Rumania would abandon its neutrality and attack Bulgaria. Turkey, Greece and the other eastern powers of Europe may not be drawn into the conflict in the beginning, but in view of the intense feeling of racial jealousy and hatred between the Mohammedan and the Christian elements struggling for supremacy in that part of Europe it is doubtful that they will remain neutral through the entire conflict.

The Strength of the Armies.
Germany, with 316 ships in her navy and an estimated war strength of land forces amounting to 2,250,000 men, leads the nations involved in military power. Russia is next, with 190 ships and an estimated fighting force of 1,845,000 men. Austria has 114 ships and can probably put 1,500,000 men in the field if necessary.

Of the sea fighters Germany has 33 battleships to Russia's 9 and Austria's 13; 103 torpedo boats of all classes to Russia's 203 and Austria's 72; 23 submarines to Russia's 20 and Austria's 6. The rest of the naval strength is confined to cruisers, eliminating the non-fighting craft in the three navies.
Russia's standing army in peace is not much less in numbers than her war strength, being 1,500,000 men. Germany supports 672,000 men in her army at all times, Austria has 425,881 and Serbia 30,038. All require continuous military service. Russia's demands being the greatest, with a term of from three to four and one-third years.

During the last few years Russia's entire army has been reorganized, re-armed and retrained, and a new navy is in course of construction.
While Austria can put an army of 1,500,000 in the field, there are also available for duty 3,000,000 unorganized men.

Serbia has a field army of only about 150,000, with a reserve imperfectly organized of 150,000 more of a total population of 3,000,000. These figures, however, do not tell the whole story. Serbia belongs to a race of fighters. All the men and nearly all the women know how to shoot and to defend themselves.

HOMEMADE TROUSERS.

With a Word to the Woman Who Makes Her Own Gown.

Would men ever get anywhere, do you think, if they fussed around with as many disconnected things as most women do? And the worst of our case is that we are rather inclined to point with pride to what is really one of the most vicious habits of our sex.

We have all seen the swelling satisfaction with which the comely young schoolma'am, complimented upon a pretty gown, announces, "I made it myself." And we have all heard the chorus of admiring approbation following the announcement—joined in it, perhaps, and asked to borrow the pattern. But really, viewed in the light of reason, what is there about the feat upon which she should so plume herself?

Suppose that a man should point proudly to his nether garments and say: "Lo! I made these trousers." I have not a mental picture of even the most economical of his fellow clerks or mail carriers, or clergymen, or school-teachers, crowding around to admire and cry: "What a splendid way to spend your time out of business hours! And it looks just like a tailor made."

Which last is just as truly a lie when we tell it to our fellow women as it would be if men told it to men.—Mary Lee Harkness in Atlantic.

VISIONS IN THE EYES.

Why It Does Not Appear Absolutely Dark When You Wink.

When a person winks his eye he momentarily covers the entire eyeballs and everything therefore should turn absolutely black and be in total darkness for the instant. As a matter of fact, he certainly is in total darkness, but he is unconscious of same.

The reason he is unconscious is that the eye is incapable of removing a certain view from itself until an eighth of a second has elapsed. So the view seen just before the ball goes into eclipse continues to be seen for an eighth of a second. But as the eye is not covered by the lid as long as this, a new view arrives to supplement the old view before the old one has vanished. Thus the darkness is not noticed, although there is no doubt that it exists.

This same peculiarity of the eye enables moving pictures to have their being. It is also the reason why a lighted torch whirled rapidly around shows a path instead of a sequence of torches. Also why a rapidly rotating wheel does not show its spokes. If a snapshot be taken of such a wheel it does show the spokes, however, and proves the above fact of persistence. Or if the wheel be viewed by a lightning flash it shows them.—New York World.

He Escaped.
He was standing at the counter of a gun store waiting for a clerk when an acquaintance came in. He was one of those communicative acquaintances who catch the victims by the buttonhole and talk and talk and say things over and over. Presently the clerk came up.

"Do you keep the Maxim silencer?" asked the waiting man.
"Yes, sir."
"Is it any good—will it stop the noise?"
"It will."
"Have you one for a large bore?"
"We have them for all sizes."
"Will they work on a repeater?"
"They'll work on anything."
"Then put one on Bill here and charge it to me."

And in the moment of mystified silence that followed the rude man made his escape.—Indianapolis News.

Tongue Charms.
The tongues of animals have been and still are in some parts of the world favorite amulets. A tongue cut from a living fox is said to ward off disease of all kinds, but as the person carrying one will surely die if he happens to meet a fox at any crossroads the charm is seldom used. The tongue of the vulture plucked out with iron and hung about a man's neck in a new cloth will bring him what he desires, and some East Indians believe that if they do not bite off the tip of the tongue of any wild animal they kill they will not have good luck in hunting.—London Tit Bits.

Thoroughly Equipped.
Small Girl—Please, Mrs. Jones, mother, wants to know if she can borrow a dozen eggs. She wants to put them under a hen. Mrs. Jones—So you have got a hen, have you, my dear? I didn't know your mother kept hens. Small girl—No, she doesn't; but Mrs. Smith is going to lend us a hen that is going to set, and mother thought if you'd lend us the eggs we could find the nest ourselves.—Pearson's Weekly.

Not Her Fault.
"It is the duty of every man and woman to be married at the age of twenty-two," said the lecturer.
"Well," said a woman of thirty, with some asperity, "you needn't tell me that. Talk to the men."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Liberty.
Liberty is the right to do what the law allows, and if a citizen could do what the law forbids it would be no longer liberty because others would have the same power.—Montesquieu.

Hard Luck.
Binks—That chap pitched three years at Yale. Winks—What's he doing now? Binks—President of a bank. His arm went back on him.—Chicago News.

Truly there is a tide in the affairs of men, but there is no gulf stream setting forever in one direction.—Lowell.

Pictorial Farming.

Photographers and engravers have made farming very fascinating. With the right periodicals before him a fellow can spend a very delightful evening in agricultural pursuits.—Toledo Blade.

Real Sorrow.
Arthur Borchler, the actor, was once discussing stage emotion with a friend.
"Many of our emotional actresses shed real tears on the stage," said his friend.
"Yes," Mr. Borchler agreed, "especially if they happen to have their own money in the production!"—London Globe.

Add a Zest to It.
"I never had much taste for mathematics when I was a boy," said Dustin Stax.
"But you managed to do some great calculating in a business way."
"That's different. It's wonderful what an interest you can give to a row of figures by putting a dollar mark in front of them."—Washington Star.

TENACITY OF PURPOSE.*
I know of no such unquestionable badge and ensign of a sovereign mind as that tenacity of purpose which, through all change of companions or parties or fortunes, changes never, bates no jot of heart or hope, but wearies out opposition and arrives at the port.—Emerson.

Notice of Sheriff's Sale of Real Property.

Notice is hereby given that an execution and order of sale was regularly issued out of the circuit court of the state of Oregon for Crook county on a judgment and decree given and made therein on the 3d day of August, 1914, in a cause therein pending wherein James Rice was plaintiff, and Edward Schrader was defendant, which said execution and order of sale is directed and was delivered to me and commands me to sell the property hereinafter described for the purpose of satisfying the judgment and decree in said cause, namely: for the sum of $100.00 with interest thereon from the 25th day of November, 1907, at the rate of 10 per cent per annum; for the further sum of $50.00 attorney's fees; for the further sum of $20.71 with interest thereon from the 15th day of March, 1911, at the rate of ten per cent per annum; for the further sum of $21.00 with interest thereon from the 15th day of March, 1912, at the rate of 10 per cent per annum; for the further sum of $12.72 with interest thereon from the 15th day of March, 1913, at the rate of 10 per cent per annum; for the further sum of $28.00 with interest thereon from the 1st day of April, 1914, at the rate of 10 per cent per annum, and for costs and disbursements of this suit amounting to $17.50 and accruing costs.

Now, therefore, in pursuance of said execution and order of sale and for the purpose of satisfying said judgment and decree and the costs of this sale, I will

On September 8th, 1914, at the hour of 10 o'clock a. m., at the front door of the court house, in Crook county, Oregon, sell at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash in hand, all of the south half (sh) of the northeast quarter (ne) of the northwest quarter (nw) of the southeast quarter (se) of the southwest quarter (sw) of section fifteen (15), township eleven (11) south of range 18, E.
