HOW A NEW POPE IS CHOSEN

ST. PETER'S AND THREE PROMINENT PAPAL PC SIBILITIES.

N the eleventh day after the his duties are so much more varied death of a pope, the tenth day in ordinary calculations, but eleventh if the day of the pope's death is counted, the cardinals meet in conclave to elect his successor. The laws governing the conclave are many and minute. The general course of the conclave is set forth here.

The pope dies. As soon as he is dead the officials of the papel court leave the palace; nowadays they will simply leave the chamber of the dead pope. for it must not be forgotten that the pope is still, together with his officials. a prisoner, ac outside of the Vatican the officials cannot go except in dividually. than those of an ordinary bishop, was chosen at first by the people of the city. Then grew up, little by little, the restriction to the cardinals of the right of suffrage in choosing the pope. The Romans for many years retained the right of objecting to the choice. Then, after the right of the people had become obsolete, the emperor of the holy Roman empire asserted his right to a controlling voice in the elec-Three outside powers still assert a right to interfere. These powers are France, Austria and Spain.

Food Brought to Conclave.

The conclave begins on the evening of the eleventh day after the pontiff's death, or else at some other time. The door is closed and locked with two keys, one of which is kept by the carThen they take this oath: "I call upon God, who will be my judge, to witness that I choose the person whom before God I judge to be elected and that I will do the same on the accession, and, having sworn, they drop their bal-iots into the vase. The ballots are prepared thus: At one end the cardinal writes his name. He then folds the ballot so that his name shall not appear as the ballot is examined first and seals the fold. The name of his candidate he writes in these words: "I choose for supreme pontiff the Most Rev. —," and seals this part of the ballot. When all the cardinals present have voted the tellers begin the count.

of the dead pope. The dean of the | dinal camerlengo, the other by the sacred college, the senior cardinal priest and the senior cardinal deacon then take charge of the administration of the affairs of the church and send notice to all the cardinals not in the These cardinals are not summoned; they come at once without being called. For ten days funeral services are held daily in St. Peter's church, and then the body is placed in a temporary resting place

Latitude For the Cardinals. The period of ten days is fixed by law, but it is not obligatory on the cardinals to obey the law. In fact. there are several things fixed by the Roman ceremonial governing the conclave that may be disregarded. So the conclave may begin within ten days or it may not begin for a good deal more than ten days. It all depends. But on the appointed day the cardinals gather in St. Peter's and the cardinal dean celebrates the mass of the Holy Ghost. After this the car dinals, in procession, singing "Vent, Crentor Spiritus," march to the place of the conclave in the palace. There the dean recites the prayer, "Deus qui corda," and the constitutions govern ing the conclave are read and the cardinnis take oath to obey them. During the rest of the day the cardinals re-governor of the conclave, a prelate chosen by the cardinals. A turning box is built into the door, through which food is passed; the keys are kept by an outside guard and by the chief master of ceremonies on the inside. The room is guarded closely.

There are many more persons in the conclave than the cardinals. Each cardinal is entitled to two servants and a third if he is very feeble. Then there are two eacristans, two masters of ceremonies, one religious to hear confessions, one secretary, who has one servant; three surgeons, four barbers, one carpenter, one mason and several general servants.

The conclave having begun in the evening of the eleventh day, the cardinals go to their "cells." These are wooden booths arranged in the largest hall of the conclave; there is one booth for each cardinal.

Excommunication No Bar.

In the morning the cardinal-dean says a low mass of the Holy Ghost, at which all the cardinals receive the communion. This is said in the Sistine or the Pauline chapel. Then a scrutinium, or vote, is taken. Only the cardinals are allowed in the chapel at this time, but no cardinal can be kept out. A cardinal arriving late may be admitted, but only a sick person may leave the conclave after he is once in. Even an excommunicated cardinal may vote if there should be such a one.

Three cardinals, one from each order, are chosen to act as tellers. In turn 1831 lasted fifty days. The cardinals tual bishop of Rome was much more the cardinals approach the vase on the did not have to live on bread and wa-

He then sents himself before the high altar and receives the salutations of all the cardinals, who kiss him on the foot, the hand and the mouth, The cardinal-cameriengo then places the ring of the fisherman on his finger, which the pope gives back that his name may be engraved on it. Then the senior cardinal-deacon, preceded by musicians and the choir singing "Ecce Sacerdos Magnus," goes to the balcony and announces the election to the people: "I announce to you a great joy. If the cardinal-dean himself is chosen pope, the cardinal-camerlengo acts in his place in the conclave after the election. The burning of the ballots formerly was a very important signal to the waiting crowds in Rome, as it meant that the election had not been

The regulations prescribed that, if the cardinals cannot make a choice in three days, thereafter until they do they shall have but one meal a day. and if they do not make a choice in five days thereafter, their single meat shall consist of bread and wine or water. These were changed later and no such rule holds good now. The conclave which elected Gregory XVI, in
