When Lincoln Beachey, a son of San Francisco, on the occasion of his homecoming after breaking all world rec. ords as a daredevil looper of 909 loops, performed two entirely new and death defying stunts over the completed palaces of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition it was his aged mother who for the first time waved him on to fresh achievements. Page wire is about twice as strong as other wires and being made of coil spring steel has a power of resistance that is not found in any other woven wire fence. Page wire is the only wire known that is not affected by hot or cold weather, and Page wire will not get slack unless the posts give away. We guarantee Page Wire Fence to be the most satisfactory fence made and can cite you to dozens of farmers and stockmen in this vicinity who have carefully compared Page Fence with other fences on their farms and ranches and who will unhesitatingly say they consider the Page Fence the best and the cheapest.

The "catalogue house" fence is made to sell cheap---read the glowing description of the wonderful qualities of the wonderful fence---its wires are made of the strongest steel---its weave and knot is a perfect marvel---but the hungry hog soon bores through it -- the refractory cow soon learns that it can be torn down, and the cold nights and hot days soon slack the wires while through the same trials or even twice greater the PAGE fence stands as good as new and even better for it has gained the reverential respect from the cow and the hogs in sad experiences, and the man who thought that one fence was just as good as another has had his eyes opened. Fence COST does not always end with driving the last staple. It depends on the fence. A good fence is a good investment. It is a protection against wire cuts to your horses; it is security against the ravages of the rabbit or the visit of the coyotte. The loss of a good horse, the destruction of ten acres of grain by rabbits, the gleaning of a big field by your hogs after the crop is gathered will easily pay for $150 worth of fence. Without the fence the loss is yours. Page Fence can be had in many different styles, to suit your needs, made in rolls of 20, 30 and 40 rods for economical stretching. Page fence requires fewer posts than other fences as its wires stay tight.

A pig-tight fence, with ten horizontal bars, every one a double-strength Page wire. Stronger that common hog fences; little pigs cannot go through or under. It has combined breaking strain of over 11,000 pounds.

Stretches of 150 to 190 feet are frequently made with Page wire for foot and sheep bridges across the rushing mountain streams of Southern Oregon.

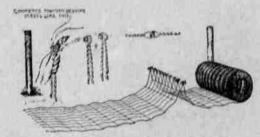

About two weeks ago a suspension v-bridge of Page wire was made in Crook county, on the H S. McCall ranch, that has a span of 2200 feet and carries a deck load of 1400 feet of lumber. In a photograph made of this structure there were fourteen people standing in the middle of the span and the drop or sag does not amount to more than three feet. These bridges are built at a fraction the cost of cable and take but little time.

So far as we know, no other such suspension bridges have been made of any but PAGE WIRE. Catalogs and prices sent on request.

PAGE METHOD OF SPLICING BOTH QUICK AND SECURE

Loops are turned at the factory in each end of every line wire of Page fence, and every roll of fence contains a bunch of small coils by the use of which two rolls of fence are joined together in the same manner as you would place two keys on a ring at the same time, thus joining your fence together quickly and securely. This feature is of special value should you want at any time to change your fence from one line to another, as you can readily see it is the work of but a very lew minutes to turn the coils out of the loop ends.

We are in the Fence Business to stay, because we have the fence you will always want
