THE MOTHER'S MOTIVE

The National Congress of Mothers which closed its annual session in Portland on Saturday, passed resolutions that show the real feelings of the women of the world regarding war.

"Regardless of who the victors may be, the greatest devastation of war is seen in the next generation, fathered by those declared unfit to be killed but who, nevertheless, are the only ones left to father the children of the next generation. Every war is a war against woman" continues the resolution.

A study of the condition existing today in any of the warring countries of Europe will reveal women in all of them suffering untold privations; left to care for families doing drudgery of all kinds or starve to death; forced to perform such labor in order to feed and rear their sons to be used in the ranks as targets for the cannon. What can be the motive of a mother to care for a family in this age when these things are possible? Such a condition is so foreign to the plans of nature that it seems that it is entirely within the power of the women of the earth to absolutely prevent war. Assuredly they will attempt it in some manner in the future.

ONCE AGAIN

The cycle is again complete and another school year is a matter of history. For some it means that the school days are over, and the real business of life is commencing.

To others it is but a few months until the duties of another school year will begin.

To all however, there is a summer ahead, during which much can and should be accomplished. It is a fact that the life of any individual can be foretold to some extent at least during the early years. You cannot afford to lose any time. Life is short and every day, every hour, is worth untold sums to you. Don't be a drone. The greatest rewards of life come to the great workers. The country is crying for able young men and young women to do things. You are needed; don't waste time, get busy and keep busy.

GOOD DAYS AHEAD

Central Oregon has every reason to feel jubilant over the outlook for the coming year. The continuing rains promise an abundant growth of all kinds of crops. Meat stuff for which the country has been famous for years will be prepared at a minimum cost on the ranges and the good condition of all the ranges will insure fat cattle and sheep coming into the feed lots this winter and well filled stock yards to greet them.

Throughout the wheat belt crops look better than for years, and as the acreage is greater than ever before, it is not amiss to estimate that the harvest will show a heavy percentage of increase over all former years.

The horse market is good and will be much better during the next six months, and wool is higher than it has been for years.

The development of the timber resources which has already started at Bend will provide a market for many of these crops for years to come.

Taken all together, it can be truthfully said that this part of the state has better prospects for prosperous times than ever before.

Sunday's Oregonian carried the endorsements of a large number of newspapers, among them the largest in the United States, all approving the action taken by the President in his issue with Germany, and promising without regard to political faith, the solid support of the press in any issues that may arise. Such solid endorsement and expression of faith has seldom been recorded.

President Wilson decided upon the attitude of the government in the Lusitania matter, and framed the note to Germany practically without assistance from any cabinet officer. Truly he is a man of great ability.

We are able to report from an authoritative source, that up to the time of going to press, the county seat has not been moved from Prineville to Bend, regardless of persistent rumors.

Prineville was present at the track meet at Redmond Saturday, and the results were quite satisfactory, to Prineville at least.

Good Morning Neighbor!

Have you seen anything of Kamstra lately? Yes, he is always Johnny on the spot. You probably have not been in Prineville lately or not read his ad, but he carries a fine stock of Jewelry of all descriptions and has other goods suitable for graduation and weddings and everything in that line.

If you are in need of anything, it always pays to see him and never overlook his ad.

Well, good-bye. I will see you later, and much obliged for the "tip" about Kamstra.
