

Quite a Funny Bone.

"I tell you, having a rib cracked is no joke, now."
"Isn't it? I supposed it was perfectly safe splitting."—Wisconsin State Journal.

SORROW.

We never have any more than we can bear—nothing that has not been borne before, and bravely. There is not a new sorrow in the world.

The Usual Comeback.

He—Your extravagance is appalling! Nothing apparently is good enough for you.
She—Yes, I made that very apparent when I married you.—Pittsburgh Press.

Hardly.

An English political speaker was addressing an audience. Urging his hearers to give utterance to their views, he said, "If we remain silent the people will not hear our heart-rendering cries!"

On Installments.
"Is this piano yours?"
"Oh, about an octave of it."—Boston Transcript.

Mrs. May—For many years I've suffered from dyspepsia.
Miss New Friend—Don't you take anything for it? You look healthy enough.

Mrs. May—Oh, I haven't got it, but my husband has.—Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune.

Suspicious.

Patient—Doctor, what ails me? I feel as if I should fly.
Physician—Perhaps you should. What have you been doing?—Washington Star.

Connoisseur.

Artist—I looked forward to selling you that drawing!
Art Editor—Ah, Dobson, your perspective is as bad as the picture's!—Buffalo News.

Home Ties.

Wicks—How did you manage to get your wife to give up her vacation?

Wiseman—I gave her a potted fern for a birthday present, and she won't go away and trust it in the care of any one else.—Boston Globe.

His Selection.

"Well, my little boy, what lessons do you like most in school?"
"De ones I don't take."—Wisconsin State Journal.

Prestige.

"Me brudder's goin' to be admitted to de bar terday."
"Huh, dat's nuttin'! Mine's in all de bars every day."—Pittsburgh Press.
