FEEDING THE HORSE.

Animal's Weight the Best Guide as to Quantity of its Ration.

It is a great mistake to stuff a horse with as much food as it will eat, under the idea that strength and endurance can be bottled up or stored as a reserve to be drawn upon as required, says the American Cultivator.

It is also a mistake to suppose that a heavy feed efficiently compensates for a long fast. Those horses "do" best, look best and work best that are fed in moderate quantities at short and regular intervals. Horses should be fed early in the morning, so that digestion has time to take place before they are taken out to work, and nosebags should be carried, or the animals returned to the stable, so that they may be fed during the day. No heaped up manger or full rack at night, when the horse returns empty and tired, can compensate for the absence of food for many hours from a stomach which in nature is kept two thirds full. It rather causes digestive disturbance, and that means either an acute attack of colic or feebleness and lack of condition.

The general improvement of the various breeds of horse as in any given line of live stock production must come largely through the use of good sires. The use of inferior, nondescript sires, while yet practiced to some extent, has long since been found to be one of the factors which tend to decrease the profit; hence in the selection of sires the farmer should look to the ranks of registered stallions. The illustration shows a pure bred Percheron, a prize winner this year.

Horses with large bones and loose looking joints generally require more food in proportion to their weight than short, closely built, compact animals, but no fixed principles can be applied, and in regulating the food allowance to a stable of horses it requires intelligent supervision to note the necessity for an increase or the desirability for a decrease in individual cases. Weight may be made the basis of feeding, and sufficiency or insufficiency may be deduced from increase or decrease. If the weight diminishes under any kind of work—whether it be hauling, hunting or harness—it is because the food supplied is not sufficient for the energy expended. If the horse maintains its weight it is neither overfed nor overworked. If it gains weight it is being too highly fed and food is being wasted.

TREATING STOCK WOUNDS.

An Antiseptic Solution Should Be Kept in Every Barn.

There should be in every barn a quantity of disinfectant that may be readily mixed with water and used in the case of wounds sustained by any of the stock, writes a correspondent of the American Cultivator. Potassium permanganate is excellent and can be purchased at any drug store in powder form and used in water in amounts such as will color the water a light red. It has the advantage over many antiseptics of not irritating a wound. Creolin is also very largely used, added to water until it gives a milky appearance. In fact, any of the commercial antiseptics will keep a wound free from infection if used early, and the formation of large running sores will thus be prevented. A scratch or wound, small as it may be at first, may quickly become infected, and then it will not heal until the infection has been freed from the germs that are causing the trouble. But if treatment is begun at once the trouble can usually be prevented by bathing two or three times a day with an antiseptic solution, which will keep the wound clean so that it will rapidly heal.

The best home treatment of old sores is to bathe them two or three times a day with hydrogen peroxide and syringe them out with warm water, followed by a small quantity of the same antiseptic. However, in the case of a wound of long standing it is nearly always advisable to consult a competent veterinarian, who will prescribe treatment only after a thorough examination.

Wintering Brood Sows.

Keep the brood sow in good, thrifty and healthy condition. Allow her plenty of exercise. Feed her green food in the winter. She is very fond of alfalfa hay and mangel beets with one feed per day of middlings and milk. Give her a dry, comfortable straw bed, also plenty of fresh water, and she will winter in prime condition.

SCHOONER WRECKED OFF OREGON COAST

Marshfield, Or.—Except for the assistance of the dredge Colonel P. S. Michie and the coast guard crew here, all on board of the steam schooner Claremont, bound from San Francisco to Willapa harbor, would have been lost when the ship struck on the extreme end of the sunken jetty and foundered.

The experience of the crew of 23 is thrilling and all were taken off by breeches buoy after the line had been picked up from the dredge Michie, which caught a line thrown off the stranded vessel by the captain, steward and first mate. The lines were quickly arranged and fastened to the mast of the Michie.

Only one woman was aboard the Claremont, Miss Oliveita Paulner, of Aberdeen, Wash., who was among the bravest of those aboard the vessel.

Captain S. Benson, master of the vessel, says that just as he headed the boat toward the entrance of the harbor she was struck on one side by a breaker, and for a short time control of the ship was lost. It was just long enough for the boat to hit on the end of the submerged jetty.

VILLA BEATEN, IS REPORT

General Obregon Claims Victory After 16-Hour Battle.

Vera Cruz.—General Obregon, in a report received here, says that after the troops of General Villa attacked his men at Trinidad he drove Villa back to Leon, capturing or killing 2000 of the Villa forces. The fight continued for 16 hours Saturday.

Generals Villa and Angeles, according to reports, were moving south from Leon to strike Obregon's flank. General Obregon says the move failed utterly and that Villa lost many officers. General Obregon put his own losses at 200 men. He says he is pursuing Villa northward.

Profit-Sharing with Retail Buyers

On August 1, 1914, we made the announcement that if we could make and sell at retail 300,000 Ford cars between August 1, 1914 and August 1, 1915 we would share profits with the retail purchasers, to the extent of from $40 to $60 on each car. We have sold over 300,000 Ford cars in the time specified, and profit-sharing checks of $50 each will be distributed as rapidly as possible after August 15, 1915. Retail purchasers who have not yet mailed us their profit-sharing coupons, properly endorsed, should do so without delay.

Our plan to profit share with retail purchasers of Ford cars during 1914-15 has been most successful. We thoroughly believe in it, but, realizing the uncertainty of conditions generally makes it advisable to defer any announcement of future profit-sharing until a later date.

We are, however, confident of our inability to reduce costs for several months, and therefore can offer no profit-sharing for cars delivered during August, September and October, 1915.
