NEW IDEAS

It used to be that a man went into the nearest store and said: "Give me a collar, size 15." Now he goes into a certain store of his choice and says: "I want a blank collar, you know what style."

It's just one example of how specialized store service has revolutionized buying by simplifying it. Men appreciate being served as individuals when they find a store that gives them such attention, where values are to be found and where their satisfaction is looked upon as the most important feature. That's where they are going for their needs.

Ours is a store of that caliber ---a dollar buys a dollar's worth and the man who buys a neck tie is treated just as well as the man who buys a Clothcraft suit or overcoat

Come and satisfy yourself on this point
