in the work of eradication. Many other important and really vital problems for the farmer can be solved only through organized efforts of communities or large bodies of farmers.

What community organization can accomplish for their communities, so can a county organization accomplish on a larger scale. As the organized community work is stronger and more effective than the work of the individual, so is the work which a county organization may accomplish greater than that which the community organization can hope to undertake.

Crook county needs an organization of farmers and the farmers are in much greater need of such an organization than the county. The problem of markets for example, is one that can be solved neither by the individual nor by any local community.

I have a tentative plan for such an organization for this county, which plan was suggested at the county agriculturists' conference at Corvallis in January and of which I should like to receive opinions from farmers and others in the county. This plan is as follows:

Each organized community elect a delegate to represent them at a central meeting in the county; each community in the county having the privilege of organizing and electing such a delegate. These delegates shall meet at some central point in the county, usually the county seat, to discuss their various problems and a solution to same. They shall elect a board of directors or executive board from their number, who shall have power to act for them in all matters of interest to the organization and who may meet monthly or quarterly as decided by the delegates present at the regular meeting. The primary object of the organization will be the improvement of all agricultural conditions, including marketing, etc., and to assist in the direction of the work of the county agriculturist. I would suggest also, that one member of the county court, elected by that body be a member of this county agricultural council or whatever the delegates may choose to call the organization. This is a brief outline of a proposed county organization, which outline all community organizations have received by letter from me and which several of them have already approved. I would like very much to have each farmer's individual opinion of the plan and shall be very glad indeed to receive suggestions for improvements and for carrying the plan into effect.

OUR WORKS.

A certain articulate self consciousness dwells dimly in us, which only our works can render articulate and decisively discernible. Our works are the mirror wherein the spirit first sees its natural pigments; hence, too, the folly of that impossible precept, "Know thyself," till it be translated into this partially possible one, "Know what thou canst work out."—Carlyle.

The McCormick Binder Saves Down and Tangled Grain

WHEN it comes to cutting extremely short grain, or grain that is down, tangled, and lodged, as yours often is, the binder must have an exceptionally rigid reel with a wide range of adjustment.

The reel on the McCormick binder can be adjusted very close to the guards, so that the operator can force short grain, or grain that is lodged and tangled, on to the platform canvas. There is never any accumulation of grain in front of the cutter bar. No matter how badly the grain is down, the McCormick binder picks it up and binds it all.

It is the unfavorable season that tries the worth of a binder. The McCormick stands the test. Come in and let's talk it over.

ORGANIZATION OF FARMERS SUGGESTED

By A. E. Lovett, Agriculturist.
 The organization of farm communities is now a proven success in Crook county. Not only have the older organized communities continued their organized efforts toward the betterment of their respective neighborhoods and succeeded almost beyond belief in the things they have undertaken but also both the older and the newer organizations have accomplished that no amount of individual work could have accomplished in eradicating rabbits in the county; the total number of these rodents reported killed by these organizations being 51,043 for very little over two months' work and at a cost of less than 700.00. Had the work of eradicating this number of rabbits been left to the individual and then had the county pay a bounty of 5 cents per head for this number of rabbits, very few more rabbits would have been killed in the same length of time and it would have cost the taxpayers of the county $2552.15 besides the necessary expense of the men killing the rabbits, or at least this same $700.00. Also, the assistance of the U. S. Biological Survey was made possible because these community organizations and this assistance has promoted both economy and efficiency
