REDMOND'S POTATO SHOW GREAT SUCCESS

Large Variety of Tubers and Other Crops Exhibited

MANY PRINEVILLE PEOPLE GO

Mustard Crowned King Murphy—Sports Were Good—Many Candidates There

The sixth annual Redmond Potato Show is a matter of history, and as in former years, the exhibit of potatoes was better than anyone expected to find for we forget from one year to the next just how good a Redmond potato show really is.

There were 46 different entries for the main prizes in the potato division alone, and the type and size of so many of these were so uniform and so near the perfect potato, that a novice would have a hard time trying to decide just which was the best bunch of potatoes.

But, while the event is primarily a potato classic, a great many other high class exhibits were evident in the pavilion.

Next to potatoes, the Redmond, Terrebonne and Powell Butte districts excel in root crops of all kinds. Stock beets and carrots, sugar beets, turnips, table beets and carrots and all other kindred products were displayed in profusion.

Onions of a half dozen or more varieties, well cured and a good size, were on display and cabbages, large and solid, formed an exhibit that made visitors hungry for sauer kraut.

The threshed grains, especially several varieties of field peas, all well matured and in large quantity, showed that tubers and root crops alone are not all that can be raised in that part of the county.

Corn, yellow flint field varieties, large ears, well filled and properly matured, pop corn, rice and other varieties combined to make a creditable exhibit of corn.

Another feature of the show, which however is always good in Redmond, was the fancy work and culinary exhibits, and the array of canned fruits and vegetables.

The school exhibits had some exceptionally good pieces also, and assisted materially in balancing the show in the pavilion.

As a show, the exhibits were less in number than the last three years, largely because of the late season, and for the further reason that the farmers have been very busy caring for the best crops that have been raised in years and had no time to prepare articles for the show.

The quality of the articles on display, however, was of the best and it is safe to say that potatoes from this display could and may go out again, as last year, and capture the prize in competition with the world, being judged by the best authority on earth.

The livestock division was less in number of entries than last year, although there were some excellent individuals shown.

The street parade on Friday, and a football game on Saturday both drew good crowds, and a large number of cars from Prineville were in attendance on both of these days.

Track events were good, and barring the fact that lack of moisture made the track heavy, and racing autos and motors filled the air with dust, these events were above the usual standard for a community fair.

Candidates were present in abundance, and from the diligence they were exercising one would gather that every man of them felt himself doomed to sure defeat. When asked how the outlook was for him, they all claimed that victory is already assured.

King Murphy, in the person of S. D. Mustard, potato king of the world, was crowned with fitting ceremonies on Friday afternoon and the crowd marched to the coronation to the strains of a popular air from the Prineville Band. Long live the King!

AGRICULTURAL COUNCIL HAS IMPORTANT MEET

On Saturday noon, before an excellent repast spread by the girls of the Redmond High School in the domestic science building, the County Agricultural Council met for the first time with the new County Agriculturist, R. A. Blanchard. The lunch was served at 12:30 and after their appetites were satisfied, the council gathered around a table where a session was held until 3 o'clock in spite of the fact that Senator Lane was to speak after dinner at the Potato show. Those present at the council were:

E. S. Barnard, Secretary-Treasurer of Powell Butte; C. F. Hoskins, Vice-Pres., of Lower Bridge; W. F. Mackey, Terrebonne; Wm. Ogg, Redmond; J. L. Gibson, Powell Butte; C. D. Jarrett, Redmond; C. H. Erickson, Alfalfa; Chas. O. Christiani, Prineville and Dr. P. H. Deneer, of Bend.

R. A. Blanchard, County Agriculturist, opened the session by outlining the relation of the county agent to the U. S. Department, state college, County Agricultural Council and the farmers of the county. He also prepared copies of suggestions of the concrete lines of endeavor that can be accomplished, which were distributed to the members with instructions to bring the matter up before their local clubs, with the aid of the agent definite program of work for the next year will be prepared.

P. V. Maria, state leader of county agents, explained the relation of the college to the county. Mr. Maria also spoke at length on the duties of the council and the true conception of the county agent, mentioning the perennial effort of the college and Government in dispelling the prevalent conception that the county agent is an agricultural wizard whose function is to tell farmers how to run their farms.

After the council discussed at length the line of work they would pursue with the county agriculturist, whom they direct, a motion was passed adopting the issuance of a monthly County Agricultural Council Bulletin, in place of the old mimeographed exchange list. This is after the one edited by Mr. Blanchard in his work as county agriculturist in Montana. A new constitution was adopted by the council, which conforms to the state wide constitution for all County Agricultural Councils.

The following resolutions were adopted: Whereas, we believe that the plan of the Bureau of Biological Survey, together with the assistance of the agricultural college and the County Agriculturist, has been demonstrated to be economical and effective, and since these departments are willing to continue their cooperation, therefore be it resolved: That Crook County Agricultural Council favors the cooperative plan and respectfully urges our county court to adopt that measure of procedure.

That be it resolved: That the Crook County Agricultural Council is most emphatically opposed to the confiscatory and revolutionary Single Tax Measure, to appear upon the ballot of the coming election under the title "Full Rental Value Land Tax and Homemakers' Loan Fund Amendment" and that we urge upon all those interested in the agricultural development and welfare of the state of Oregon, to assist in defeating this bill so overwhelmingly that its sponsors will be discouraged from perennially presenting such measures to the voters of Oregon. Vote 307 X No.

Great credit is due to the girls of the domestic science department of the high school. The girls were under the direction of their teacher, Mrs. Lee, and not only set a dainty table, but a well cooked dinner. The effort was a credit to the department and their teacher.

MEN ARE CHASED BY RABBIES CRAZED BULL

A three year old Durham bull, suffering from rabies, created considerable excitement at the Alex Hinton ranch on McKay, Monday.

The bull was with a herd of cattle in the north end of the grove where the picnics are held and attracted the attention of Harry Neal and Alvin Wise who came to, as they supposed, assist the animal out of some distress, as he was bellowing loudly.

These men came to the animal in a bunch of willows, and as soon as they were seen, he at once made a mad dash for them that sent the men scurrying for cover.

Being handicapped with "chaps" and spurs, the men were being easily overtaken by the maddened animal, when they dashed past a tree, the bull stopped to horn the tree for a few moments which gave the men an opportunity to put the rail fence between them and the bull.

He soon discovered his mistake and resumed the chase to the fence, several rods of which were scattered over the landscape.

A. A. and Roy McCord arrived about this time and the suffering animal was shot and buried on the spot.

The bull was valued at about $300 by its owner, Mr. Hinton, and was the best of a trio of the same breed owned by him.

He does not know when and where the animal received the infection.

Another valuable bull belonging to J. W. Stanton died at the Stanton ranch on Mill Creek recently, which had all symptoms of this same malady.

SALOONS MAY OPEN NEXT TO SCHOOLS

A Cleverly Framed Measure Makes That Possible

BE SURE YOU VOTE 315 NO

Speech of Anti-Saloon League Leader at Salem Exposes That Measure

Speaking before the State Convention of the Baptists at Salem Friday afternoon, October 20, R. P. Hutton, of the Anti-Saloon League, brought out the fact that the brewery amendment would permit the establishment of original package saloons next door to anybody's home, in city or country; that it might even be put next door to school houses; and that this amendment gives them the right to sell liquor to children. Other points which he brought out were:

"Again, the brewery amendment would discriminate against the farmer. If the farmer made cider up to six-tenths of one per cent, he would be yanked up by the law; but if the Portland brewer made beer seven times that strength, and sold it to children, the law would legalize it, and he would be hailed as the savior of Oregon posterity through malting their progenitor.

"Prohibition keeps Oregon money in Oregon and keeps this wealth distributed. The brewery amendment would concentrate it in a couple of Oregon brewers' hands. Self-interest joins decency and morality in urging us to vote against the malted-fathers' bill.

"The brewers' amendment legalizes selling liquor to children, and permits the opening of original package saloons next door to your home, be it in city or country. Vote 315 X No against original package saloons.

"Oregon breweries used only two per cent of Oregon hops. 46 per cent went to other states; 52 per cent went abroad. For years the largest Portland brewery bragged in its ads that they used imported hops."

W. H. BIRDSONG HAS RIGHT HAND MANGLED

Thrashing Machine Cylinder Removes Fingers

VICTIM IS WELL KNOWN HERE

Accident Occurred at Birdsong Ranch Near Paulina Last Saturday

W. H. Birdsong, of Paulina, was the victim of an accident on Saturday that resulted in the loss of the first and second finger of his right hand.

Morgan's thrashing machine was at work on the Birdsong place, and after thrashing the rye crop it was the intention to stop the machine and clean out all grain and chaff and to start on the oat crop.

After the power had been turned off, but before the cylinder had stopped revolving, Mr. Birdsong was scraping the chaff from the feed table and in some way reached too near the revolving cylinder.

The tip of his finger was jerked into the machine before it had quite stopped, and the first finger was cut into lengths of not more than three quarters of an inch up to the hand, which member was badly mangled.

The second finger was almost as badly mutilated, the removal of both being made necessary by the injuries. Both the thumb and third finger were injured, but will heal without complications it is thought.

The accident occurred on the Birdsong ranch about six miles above Paulina at eleven o'clock on Saturday, and Mr. Birdsong was brought to Prineville that afternoon for medical attention.
