NEWS FROM THE SCHOOLS

Mr. Baughman left Friday afternoon for The Dalles, returning late Sunday night. The purpose of his trip was that of arranging dates for the various debates of the Upper Columbia District, of which he is Director.

The enrollment of the high school band numbers seventeen. The boys will make their first appearance in connection with the military training about Christmas time. We will speak of this in a later issue of the Journal.

Miss Jackson will supervise a parents' day at the "open air gym" Tuesday, November 14th. Seats will be provided on the walk for you and at the close of the exercises you will be asked to look over the work of the Domestic Science and Art Department.

The girls of the Art department had their first fashion parades last Friday, having completed their first dress. Another of these features will follow when they have completed their wool problem which they now have in hand.

The coming debate try-out for our local boys has been set for November 17 and 18—there being 14 students hard at work for this event. The possibilities for good debating material in this year's campaign are, indeed, very pleasing. If brains, persistent effort and midnight oil bear any relation to the state championship we are certainly in the fight.

An instructive discourse on "The Passion Play" was given by Miss Alma Lippman, Monday morning in Assembly. She told us that this play is presented once every ten years in an open theatre, in the small city of Oberammergau.

BLANCHARD HAS POISON TO FEED JACK RABBITS

There are still 174 ounces of deadly poison in the office of County Agriculturist R. A. Blanchard at Redmond, waiting to soothe the savage breast of little bunny into a permanent state of quiescence. The rabbit may be popular at Easter time, but on the "High Desert" just now friend Villa is as safe as a turkey in June beside poor Mr. Jack Rabbit. Forges are being mobilized, a line of reinforcements established and hostilities planned in cold blood. Ethics of war disregarded and diabolical are the methods of slaughter. Bullets and cold steel traps regal beside the cruelly planned, tempting meal, where many a jack rabbit will eat his last supper.

Mr. Blanchard has arranged with Mr. Marrin of Rivers, Mr. Fogg of Hampton, Mr. Brookings of Brookings and Mr. Johnson of Millican to hold meetings on the 2nd, 3rd, and 4th respectively. At these meetings interest will be stimulated, enthusiasm aroused and an effort made to get every farmer in concerted effort against the jack rabbits. The results of work carried on last year were very gratifying. The Biological Survey maintained a man for several months. This year, the county agent has made application to the Survey and receives assurance that a man will be detailed to work with the farmers of the county again. On observation of the U. S. Biological Survey, which covers a period of over 20 years, the co-operative plan of ridding a country from rabbits is the main successful system. Every assistance possible will be given by the office of the county agriculturist.

located in the Province of Bavaria.

This play consists of a rehearsal of the trials of Christ during his last days on earth. Hundreds of thousands of people witness the performance of this play, which begins at eight o'clock in the morning and lasts until six in the afternoon—one hour being allowed for luncheon. Miss Lippman handled her subject with her usual simplicity, setting a high standard for the Senior speeches and fulfilling her assigned title "a queen of a girl." Miss Mabel Grant will appear next Monday.

Last Friday's discussion centered around the proposed constitutional amendment—The Single Item Veto. This discussion was one of peculiar interest both because of the subject which is one involving to a certain degree, limitations on representative government and the enthusiasm of the speakers. Oscar Payne, a student from Virginia, the champion state of Democracy, upheld the affirmative side of this question, arguing that Single Item Veto is a good thing for Oregon. He was followed by Attorney Upton who argued clearly and forcefully against this measure, explaining logically that the basic principle of our government is that of representation and therefore the more legislative power invested in any one man, the less representative of the people will be the laws. It is unnecessary to mention the fact, however, that the high school body considers it a treat to hear Mr. Upton speak. We remember at this time his kindness of last year to the Civics Class. Attorney Bechtell was then called to the front and responded with a willingness and enthusiasm that did us all good. He spoke in favor of the affirmative granting, however, that there is good argument on either side. He closed his remarks by congratulating the High School for bringing into the regular school work such "seemingly" outside things. We certainly agree with Mr. Bechtell, that we are fortunate in having an opportunity of doing such work in view of the fact that we are favored with remarks from competent citizens such as himself. Chairman Yancey then called on Pastor Reid of the Methodist church. Mr. Reid responded with alertness, telling us a "hound-dog" story which rang as true as the enthusiasm of the old Missourian himself, to relieve, as he said, the "tention." Otherwise he occupied himself in refutation of Attorney Upton's arguments. He was received with hearty applause. We are eagerly awaiting Mr. Reid's promised assembly speech.
