$3.50 WATER RATE FOR WHEAT MADE

Portland, Ore.—For wheatgrowers of the Pacific northwest, after long contention for the justice of a price on parity with Chicago, there is gratifying assurance in an official message from Herbert Hoover, received by W. B. Ayer, federal food administrator for Oregon, which definitely announces the establishment of a $3.50 water rate from Portland to New York, and an approximate parity price.

Apparent disparity between the basic price of $2.95 for Pacific coast wheat, recently decreed by proclamation of the president, and identical with that fixed last year, will be set aside by the shipping board's agreement to carry northwestern wheat in government vessels at the $3.50 rate, which automatically insures growers a basic compensation of approximately $2.18 per bushel.
