There will not be any services in our church Sunday evening as our people will attend the illustrated sermon in the Presbyterian church.

A cordial welcome will be extended to all strangers who will meet with us at any service.

WHITE WAR BREAD

One quart cooked rice thoroughly tender and drained dry as possible; one quart mashed potatoes cooked in their jackets and peeled, mashed and beaten smooth with fork; add to rice and beat again with fork till smooth; two tablespoons sugar; one-half yeast cake softened in barely enough water to moisten; add to rice-potato mixture and beat till well mixed; keep in warm place till light and fluffy. I usually make mine at noon and find it light next morning. Sift in sufficient flour to make considerably stiffer dough than for ordinary bread, the quantity of flour will depend on dryness of rice; work down twice before molding into loaves; add salt with flour; allow dough to double in bulk or a little more than double each time before working. I have not yet tried this bread with rice cooked in milk in a double boiler but where compressed yeast is available so that the yeast could be raised more quickly, I believe the quantity of flour might be reduced to less than the two quarts necessary. This recipe makes a white, light, thin crusted loaf that keeps moist much longer than an all flour loaf and that makes lovely toast. Potatoes should always be boiled in their jackets for this bread, otherwise they absorb too much moisture and the idea is to keep yeast as dry as possible.
