WHY NOT PLAY SQUARE POLITICS?

Why can't the Portland Journal play a square game in politics? Why not lay all the cards on the table; tell the voters the whole truth instead of camouflaging the points the voters should know, in considering the pro-posed delinquent tax bill amendment.

Last Sunday the Journal devoted considerable editorial space in discussing the proposed law. The sum and substance of the Journal's wail was a hint that the Oregon press will not discuss the bill on its merits.

Nothing could be farther from the uth. The press of Oregon has been discussing the bill on its merits for several weeks, and all the while Editor Jackson, the millionaire proprie-tor of the Journal, who fathers the proposed amendment, has cleverly covered up the most important feature of the present bill.

Has the reader ever seen it mentioned in The Journal columns that th present delinquent tax publication provided for printing the delin-t list only after personal notice has been sent out to the taxpayer? This the fact, and yet the ordinary. sane, and in fact the only inference that can be drawn from the Journals editorials is that the great Sam Jack-son has devised a law to do away with publication of delinquent lists and substitute instead a wonderfully efficient plan of personal notification by mail. He would have the voters elieve that there is no mail notice provided at present.

Let the present delinquent tax bill alone. It is the fairest piece of legislation of its kind of any state in the union. Why? Because it provides for a mailed notice to be sent out, and as a precautionary measure, it provides that where mail notice is ineffective, then, and then only, may publication be made.

The tax collector's books are filled with mistaken addresses, people are continually moving and changing about. The publication in the home paper will always reach them, either directly, or through friend, relative or neighbor.

The bill was passed by our legisla-ture to protect the unfortunate delinquent property owner from the title grabber and others of his stripe. Cut aut the publication provise and you let down the bars for the title graband shyster to "pick up" econmy dirge is pathetically funny, all things considered. The county does not pay out one red cent for delinquent's publication. The man

Opponents of Governor Withy-combe have devoted all of their time to critisizing minor details of his administration, and in so doing, innuen-do, misrepresentation and misstatement of facts have been freely and recklessly employed. None of his critics has has the fairness to say that Governor Withycombe is loyally, patriotically American, and has at all times earnestly cooperated with the administration in the prosecution of

None of these critics has pointed out the fact that it was due in large measure to the leadership of Governor Withycombe that Oregon has led all other states in responding to the sountry's call for soldiers and sailors, liberty bond and Red Cross drives and all other patriotic endeavors. They have neglected also to relate anything of the splendid efficiency of the state's military organization at the outbreak of the war, and for whose efficiency the Governor was responsible. Neither have they told the people of the state that Governor Withycombe in the organization of the military forces of the state, the medical corps, selection of officers, nor Withycombe that Oregon has led medical corps, selection of officers, and the formation of draft boards, absolutely ignored politics and chose men salely for their fitness and com-and down the state soliciting votes. Governor Withycombe, in a statement to the voters of the state, issued recently, definitely announced that he will not wage a personal campaign.

Governor Withycombe has always had the reputation of being one of the first state officials at his desk in the morning but those who frequent the morning but those who frequent the state house note that the Oregon executive has, since the accumulation of so many duties related to the war program, been probably busier than ever before. He still takes a vigorous horseback ride occasionally but these are started later in the afternoon than formerly and many of them are confined to inspection trips among the state institutions about Salem. In his address to the voters of Oregon Governor Withycombe says: "No matter how active other candidates for political offices may be I am de-termined now, as I was at the time of the primary election last May, not to conduct a personal campaign. I shall not have the time, the money, nor the inclination to go up and down the state, figuratively or personally, in solicitation of votes. This is no time to seek political preference purely for selfish gain or aggrandizement. I feel that all spare time and all spare resources should be devoted now to-ward winning the war. It would be positively unpatriotic to spend large sums of money trying to divert the public mind from wartime duties to thoughts of politics. Both the money and the affort should be utilized in more commendable ways.

For nearly four years I have been privileged to serve the people of Ore-gon as governor, endeavoring to give the state a sound, dignified business-amendment was defeated in the Unit-ed States Senate by the votes of Democratic Senators. More Repub-licans than Democrats voted for the measure while 21 of the 31 votes against the measure were cast by the Democrats. True to his promise at the time of his appointment, Senator McNary voted with the Republican Senators to give women the right of suffrage.

"In his price fixing bill, as in his career as a senator, Mr. McNary has shown his ability, his vision and his statesmanship. We are grateful to the state of Oregon for having given us such a senator. He reflects credit upon his state and does honor to his nation" — United States Senator Johnson, formerly Governor of Calif-
