WANTED—Work for man and wife on ranch. Experienced in feeding cattle. Frank Wilcoxon, Bend, Oregon. 312p

This Year the Spirit of Thanksgiving Should Properly Be Filled With Praise.

HO that views the universe in its orderly movements and sees the mind of the Almighty in the fixed blessings of existence can doubt that out from the cataclysms of the world war the choice of blessing or cursing will work out in the victory of the good? The old cry, "Hath God forgotten to be gracious?" needs no longer be voiced. God has not forgotten to be gracious. So that, as the Americans assemble in their churches on the day set apart for expressing national gratitude, they will rejoice above all else that the nation of freemen has adopted as its motto: "Whom the Lord makes free is free indeed." Let them rejoice that America is bent upon proclaiming liberty to the entire bounds of the earth. The curse of autocracy, the curse of a blasphemous assumption that God is on the side of the strongest battalions, the curse of debauchery of human ideals and human aspirations, the curse of the establishment of force in the place of purity; of power in the place of peace—this is the cursing that is being wiped out in blood. The blessing of world peace and the prevalence of the spirit of brotherhood and of mutual advancement for the peoples—such is the peace that is being wrought out. The United States has placed its all on the altar, realizing that sacrifice is the noblest virtue of a nation. Hence, while exuberance may not abound, the spirit of thanksgiving is filled with praise over the mighty manner in which the mind of the Almighty is being made clear in the movements of the times; with the United States playing a leading part in its impressive unfolding.

No Time to Abandon Custom. It has long been the honored custom of our people to turn in the fruitful autumn of the year in praise and thanksgiving to Almighty God for his many blessings and mercies to us as a nation. That custom we can follow now, even in the midst of the tragedy of a world shaken by war and immeasurable disaster, in the midst of sorrow and great peril.

CENTRAL OREGON IRRIGATION DISTRICT

Continued from page 1 of patented unsold land, valued at $45 per acre; 2,000 acres of unsold excess acreage, valued at $20 per acre, and $30,000 uncollected maintenance. All lands in the District are to be relieved from all encumbrances and delivered to the district title free.

In the matter of water rights, the district is guaranteed all the water that can be taken in at the headgates. This practically means a prior right to all of the natural flow of the Deschutes river and a term of years is named in which the district has to determine how much of this water is needed. Under the terms of contracts to settlers 1.8 second feet of water per acre was permitted each year. Many farmers have declared that this amount is not sufficient to irrigate the land for all crops, and under the contract five years are given to determine this feature, state or federal officers to make the decision. In the event that it is not sufficient an additional amount is to be granted.

The guarantee of all the water that may be taken in at the headgates, according to the officials, should make it possible for the district to sell water to other lands lying in the neighborhood of the canals. Through the improvement of the canals, which will prevent seepage it is estimated that the flow can be increased to a greater extent than will be necessary to operate the lands of the district.

"It must be understood," Mr. Thompson declared today, "that the company had previously sold all of its rights to the North Unit district. The Central Oregon Irrigation district had previously tried to deal with the company and were unable to do so. Following the purchase of the company rights by the North Unit district, that district had no use for our rights, and because of this fact it was impossible for us to secure a better bargain than we could have hoped to gain in dealing with the company alone. The contract is entered into with the North Unit district and the Central Oregon Irrigation company jointly. This will insure this district that in the event the North Unit people fail to live up to the terms of their contract it is still effective with the company."

The Central Oregon Irrigation district embraces approximately 50,000 acres of land, of which nearly 3,000 are now under cultivation. Under the control of the district and with the company eliminated it is expected that the number of acres under cultivation will be greatly increased during the coming year.

As soon as the contract has been signed by the company and the North Unit district, a district election will be held to vote bonds for the amount necessary to take over the holding of the company. This election will be held sometime early in January.

THE EFFECT OF WORRY

Some of the best physicians in the United States have agreed that the most harmful thing that can be done in connection with the Spanish Influenza situation is to be afraid of the disease, worry about it and attempt to run from it.

Prineville has indeed been fortunate in connection with the disease, and individuals should be none the less vigilant in avoiding conditions that would encourage its spread.

Physicians have stated freely for years that victims of disease are those who are in the poorest physical or mental condition to withstand attacks which are easily and many times unconsciously thrown off by a more healthy and vigorous individual.

From an editorial in the Inquirer of Philadelphia we extract the following:

"Panic is the worst thing that can happen to an individual or a community. Panic is exaggerated fear, and fear is the most deadly word in any language. The fear of influenza is creating a panic, an unreasonable panic that will be promoted, we suspect, by the drastic commands of the authorities. Let a person become excited over the daily reports of new cases; let him brood over them; let him shake his head in dismay and with every little ache or pain that may be harmless in itself give himself over to dismal imaginings, and he is providing a fertile field for attack. His mind fears it, becomes receptive to it, invites it."

KING SOLOMAN IN OUR MIDST

After a trial replete with objections to the relevancy of testimony of a witness on cross examination, the case of the State of Oregon vs. Chas. Thornwaite, charged with assault and battery upon the person of Frank Winer, was brought to a close this morning when Justice of the Peace Eastus, sitting as a committing magistrate, refused to bind the defendant over to the grand jury, but dismissed him with a severe reprimand for attempting to take the law in his own hands. The court explained that while he thought the defendant had overstepped his rights, yet he did not think that the ends of justice could be any nearer approached by carrying the case to the grand jury and causing the county to spend a hundred or two dollars in investigating and prolonging a personal fight between the parties. The complaining witness, Frank Winer, is a horse trader from Prineville, and the trouble arose over a horse trade. Yea, verily, we say all the Solomons are not dead yet.—Bend Press.

CROOKED RIVER ROAD TO BE SURVEYED VERY SOON

Judge N. G. Wallace is in receipt of a letter from Merbert Nunn, State Highway Engineer, in which he says that M. O. Bennett has been ordered to proceed with the survey of Crooked River road. He also says that the survey was ordered some time ago but was delayed because of the lack of men.

He also added that he is pleased to note that Crook county voted $95,000 to aid the state in the construction in this county.
