BUMBLE BEE BUSY WORKER

Only Severe Cold Weather induces Insect to Take a Rest From its Labors.

If one were born a bumble bee, his idea of life success would be 40 acres of red clover waist high, in full June bloom and fragrance all the year through and forever. What one bumble bee could do with 40 acres of clover no bee nor mortal ever knew; but the bee, if human wise, would want all that and more.

Invade his flowery honey farm at the height of the season, and he puts out no restraining hand. There is no padlock on his gate. The whole field is a-hum with polyglot plunderers coming from everywhere to carry away the very goods that are gold to the bumble bee. But he puts up no defense. He makes no vicious counter-offensive, as the yellow-jacket might. If you search for him here you find him diligently prospecting with his honey pump humming a barytone solo as he works, loads of pollen strapped to his running board, his tonneau bulging with joy fodder. He is having the time of his life.

When the 40 acres of red clover is a wilderness of dry stubble under a scorching July sun, and his millions in clover are swept away by the hand of the strong, this bumble bee will not be found hanging by a spiderweb to a fence-row fireweed, a bankrupt suicide. Not he. In this fence corner left by the mower, clad in his velvet suit of black and yellow, even now he is working over the dump of a goldenrod mine, and gold is shining from his pants pockets. Moreover, he has a fair swing left in his honey jug, and he is still humming his song of high June.

As the season goes down the steep slope toward chilly weather, the bumble bee does not dig his reluctant heels into the sod, lag sullenly back and turn a regretful eye over his shoulder, with his heart in the lost red clover. He takes the small sweets of poverty as he did the rich sea of June honey.

From a June millionaire's estate he has fallen to the fortune of an autumn tramp, taking a handout from a belated weed and begging a night's lodging in the last bloom of a wayside hollyhock. But he still retains his well-brushed suit, his good deep barytone and his memories of June.

PROVED ABILITY TO REASON

Hard to Explain Monkey's Action in Putting Out Fire Unless That Admission Is Made.

A Louisiana planter who owns a pet monkey which answers to the name of Jocko, tells an anecdote about him which proves that such animals can and do reason.

The children of the house and Jocko are boon companions, and of a summer afternoon enjoy a frolic together upon the lawn. One day someone threw a match down and the grass ignited, making a little blaze.

Jocko saw it and stopped and looked, then glanced all around, and, seeing a piece of plank not far off, ran for it, crept cautiously to the fire, all the time holding the plank as a shield between himself and the flame, then pressed it down and extinguished it. What child could have reasoned better and done more?

Although, perhaps, no danger could have come from the fire, still no one knows what the result might have been, and the monkey evidently believed that prudence is the better part of valor.

He'd Forgotten.

The school dramatic society was giving its first performance of the season and the play they had chosen for the momentous occasion was "Julius Caesar."

All went smoothly till Caesar's dead body was brought in, and Marc Antony had to deliver his famous speech.

He put his heart into the part and the audience felt acutely for the poor citizens, who were all presumably horror-stricken and overcome with grief, when Antony gently but firmly grasped, as he thought, the face-cloth and slowly, very slowly, began to draw it back.

Just then an excited whisper came from the other end of the corpse:

"This end, you idiot!"

But Antony was too much wrapped in grief to hear. He persevered and then suddenly disclosed to the intently gazing audience Caesar's boots!

Rhine's Wanderings.

A remarkable thing about the Rhine is its length for so small a river. Unlike the Nile, which contains less water at Cairo than at Berber, 1,500 miles upstream, the Rhine has numerous affluents, but never attains the dignity of a real river, as Americans understand such definitions, until it enters Holland.

The "German Rhine" owes its origin to the Swiss mountains, wanders with apparent aimlessness—first west and then north and northwest, after leaving Lake Constance—until it enters Holland, where it becomes as sluggish as any Dutchman who ever dwelt in New Amsterdam.

Too Severe.

"You told me when you were a suit-or for my hand that my will would ever be law to you," said Mrs. Gripplins.

"So I did, my dear, so I did," replied Mr. Gripplins, mildly. "But at that particular time little did I dream that your will would ever take the form of—er—marital law."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

VICTORY DANCE?

Surest Thing You Know!

Luna Lodge, K. of P. will give its Annual Ball on this date—Remember it

FEBRUARY 14, 1919

This is the annual chance for all the medium-old and old-young ones and all the rest to get out and limber up. This annual event was omitted last year on account of the war but this year it is coming back stronger than ever. Come out and get two years' fun in one night. This dance is guaranteed by the committee to make anyone forget bone spavins, collar boils, or corns and to cure stiffness in the joints. The entire membership of the lodge is on the floor committee.

The music will be good. The committee has secured a
