Spring Suits Appealingly Graceful

Spring suits make their appeal to us from new angles this season, for there are almost none among them that so much as suggest severity of line or finish. They are easy and graceful and decidedly chic. They look thoroughly comfortable for summer time, and rely upon the vestee to provide warmth for crisp spring days. They are more or less ornamented with narrow, flat or soutache braid, or with long and short stitch embroidery or couching. Among decorations, embroidered hand effects are in great demand. Crisscross tucks or narrow silk braid, faultlessly stitched on, in a crisscross band pattern, are among the details that have captivated the devotees of tailored clothes everywhere.

These decorations of embroidery, pin tucks and beautifully stitched braid are among the luxuries, for they add as much or more to the cost of a suit as is asked for the goods it is made of. Some women who are clever with the needle buy a plain, well-made suit and embroider or braid it to suit themselves. This lifts it out of the ordinary immediately and places it on a new plane among those aristocrats in street suits that are priced at something like a hundred dollars or more—usually more. These high prices are explained as the result of the great advance in the price of labor. If this is the case it is some consolation to consider that those who do the work are being well paid for it.

The suit pictured is the most popular of new models and is of beige-colored tulle. The skirt is without decoration and has a four-inch hem. Soutache braid, stitched on one edge, forms the attractive ornamental band that enriches the coat. It widens at the center where three small bone buttons are set in each side of the center panel. The round collar and flaring sleeves are embellished with a braided pattern.

Jet Buckles, White Shoes.

White buckskin shoes shown for the South show jet buckles of various sorts. Usually they are very effective. One method of mounting the buckle is to place it on a foundation composed of closely plaited black ribbon, which extends just far enough to give the buckle a little backing. Sometimes, too, white satin evening slippers show jet buckles, or small jet buttons fastened flat against the tongue section or the edge of the shoe as it slopes up to the instep.
