SUPPORT YOUR FRIENDS

A week ago, two of our most enterprising merchants received the first carload of water melons ever consigned to this point.

As a result, melons have been sold during the past ten days at about half the usual price, and the gain is that of the community. There were enough melons to supply every family in the community with one or more, and if you have not had yours, buy it today. In that manner, you will be encouraging a movement that will mean dollars to you.

One of these same firms is carrying an ad in this issue, in which you are advised on the fruit situation. His theme is addressed to the public in an effort to help the entire community, and every word of his statement is true. Read it and heed it.

The fruit situation is acute, will be more so, and you should realize this and go to your dealer and talk with him about your needs and prepare now to meet them.

The problem of the retail merchant is to get goods at anything like a reasonable price, and get them into the hands of the consumer with a reasonable profit.

Never before was the situation so difficult as it is today, and the problem is not that of the dealer alone but of the community.

In all the history of Prineville merchandising, there never was a time when the dealers were better fitted to care for the needs of the consumer than today, and the buyers, even of small quantities of groceries, clothing or any other commodity, cannot afford to spend one cent of money at any other point this year.

Prineville is your town, the Prineville merchant is your merchant, and if you will tell him your needs as they are, your complaints if you have any, it will be to the direct advantage of yourself most of all, then of the community, and lastly of the merchant.

Cooperative shipments, car lot shipments, which will enable you to buy goods at lower prices are not only possible by you supporting your local merchant, and it is up to you to help yourself, if you want help, for only in this manner can the merchant and community help you.

THEY KNOW WHAT THEY WANT

The land owners under the Ochoco Project showed wisdom and unity of action in their vote of 57 to 3 on the bond issue last Saturday.

The time is past when there is room for argument with these people they know what the water will do for them on these lands, they are satisfied and pleased with the progress-being made in getting water to them and without display or protest, they almost unanimously approve of the work of the board, the contractor and the engineering force.

Never since the work started on this project has there been such unity of action as is manifest today, never has each dollar expended brought in more actual returns to the project, and never has there been the feeling that exists at this time throughout the work that the project will not only be worth all it is costing, but much more to the land owners.

In the face of all wavering and changeable conditions, some reactionary attempts from outside quarters and a feeling of unrest in the country, the land owners are to be congratulated on their approval of the work of their employees, the engineers, the board and the contractor.

They know what they want, why they want it, and just how to go about it to get it. They are satisfied.

Eight thousand rabbits met their death last week in the Boardman country. Drives and poison did the work, according to the report brought back to Heppner by County Agent L. A. Hunt. The rabbit evil is recognized as a serious one by all the farmers in the north end of the county and organized efforts are being put forth to rid the county of this pest. A call has come to the Morrow county agent from the residents of Gilliam county, in the lower end, to help them fight the rabbit pest, but Mr. Hunt says help from here will be possible only when "Gilliam county laps over into Morrow county."—Gazette-Times (Heppner).
