BUILDING FOR THE FUTURE

Much space is taken in the Journal this week for the exploitation of pure bred stock. We are firm in our belief that the future of the Prineville country depends on the quality of her livestock.

That we are not alone in this belief is evidenced by the fact that two carloads of the choicest of the offerings of the great Pacific International Exposition, just ended, will come to the Prineville country. These animals, mostly males to head the herds, were purchased by men of vision. Men who can see in the mind's eye the value of pure bred stock covering the fertile acres and broad plains of Central Oregon, and taking the place of stock of indifferent breeding. The pure bred will develop at an earlier age, will make faster gains on a given ration, and will produce a better finished article than the scrub.

"Dick" Biggs, one of our foremost advocates of the pure bred, furnishes an outstanding illustration of the man who is banking on the future. He paid $3500 for one animal, a sire of worth, and in all he spent $8,000 for pure breeds. He is sure of a big return on this outlay. No man can show where anyone has ever gone wrong by putting even big money into the real thing in pure breeds, and the sooner the average stockman realizes this fact as a fact, the quicker he will put himself in the successful stockraising class.

In one investigation recently conducted it was shown that the pure bred animal had the best of the market to the amount of $53.38 per head. This test was fairly made and shows the gain of the pure bred over the scrub or grade, with the same preparatory treatment.

We would repeat, that the builder for the future in the livestock business will invest in the pure bred now. It is never too late to mend, but the best time to mend is as soon as you can find out that you are on the wrong trail. There is only one thing for the stockmen of this or any other section to do, and that is to get in the pure bred class as fast as it is possible to do so. By this method, and only this, can they keep up with the prevailing advance in everything that goes to make meat and wool.

ONE MORE INSTANCE

In the wanton murder of J. N. Burgess last week Oregon suffered a loss that the state can ill afford.

It is doubtful indeed if such an act would have been committed had the capital punishment law been on our statute books.

People of the class who will commit murders of this sort are not afraid of the most severe sentence now possible in this state. The average "hard boiled" criminal does not have a fear of the penitentiary of this day.

States like Oregon attract these criminals from the states where the capital punishment law yet exists and murder in all its forms becomes more common.

If these people cannot be punished as they should be for these outrages we may well look forward to mob violence, for the public temper will not tolerate this condition indefinitely.

Let some one prepare a measure for the ballot that will make murder in cold blood punishable by the death penalty and then let the press and the law-abiding people of the state get behind the measure and pass it. It will have a decided effect on the criminal history of the state, and no innocent men will suffer.

BEND TEAM MEATS DECISIVE DEFEAT AT REDMOND FRIDAY

CRUOK COUNTY TEAM GOOD

Jefferson High of Portland May Meet Local Champions Soon. Would Make A Fast Game

Crook County High again has the championship of the Central Oregon football teams, putting Bend down for defeat at Redmond on Friday with a score of 19 to 6.

An effort is being made to get the Jefferson High team of Portland, which team holds the championship of the Willamette valley, for a game here within the next ten days.

In its report of the game, the Bend Bulletin did itself proud, and we here-with reproduce their version of the defeat of their team:

"The powerful and smooth running football team of the Crook County high school clinched its claim to the championship of Central Oregon by defeating the Bend High school team at Redmond yesterday, by a score of 19 to 6. Prineville had previously won one game and held Bend to a tie in another.

"Except for occasional and spasmodic flashes in the first three quarters and a more sustained period of speed in the last, the Bend team was completely outplayed during the entire game by the heavier, speedier and better organized Prineville eleven. In one of those flashes in the second quarter Bend stiffened like a stone wall and held her opponents in their tracks within a foot of the goal for three successive rushes, thereby raining the ball. It was only a flash, however, for Brosterhouse punted at once, the ball went to Prineville and in four rushes more it was over the line for the second score.

The single Bend score as a result of the sudden galvanizing of the team in the fourth period. There had been some see-sawing up and down the field when suddenly Bend cut loose and with two forward passes and a little rushing beat the Prineville defense for a touchdown. Opportunity to try for goal was lost when the ball was placed on the ground after the score.

"The Prineville scores, one in each of the first three quarters, came as the result of hard, steady, old-time foot ball plugging, of no especial brilliance, but with the whole team working together in the way that produces results. Only twice were the backs on either team able to break through for an advance of any distance but the Prineville machine tore off the necessary yardage time after time. Bend, on the contrary, seemed to go up against a stone wall on its rushing, being forced to kick regularly as soon as it had had its four tries for a first down. Coyner, at tackle, made one of the few good advances for Bend during the game, the other being by Brosterhouse. The latter, on defense, faced several difficult situations, but was able to bring down his man every time.

"The two teams were supported by enthusiastic crowds and between the halves the students of the two schools did the customary serpentine on the field, ending with cheering. The Redmond people, hosts of the two teams for the day, furnished efficient policing of the grounds.

STEARNS-WHITE

The wedding of Harry Stearns and Crystal White, both of this city, occurred at the H. J. Lister residence in this city Saturday of last week.

Immediately after the ceremony, which was performed in the presence of a small group of relatives and friends, the young people departed for their future home in Portland, where Mr. Stearns has a position in one of the large banking institutions.

The young couple were married in traveling costumes and left overland in their own car the same day. Rev. W. L. Van Nuys performed the ceremony.

BEND ATTORNEY ARRESTED

On a warrant alleging assault and battery, Ross Farnham, prominent Bend attorney, was arrested here this morning, but was allowed to go on his own recognizance. The time for hearing in justice court has not yet been set. E. O. Stadler, another Bend lawyer, is the complaining witness.

Barnes NEWS NOTES

Rains have visited our section and have made the roads very bad.

Uncle Sam Logan has been quite ill the last week and was taken to Prineville for medical attention. He is at present at the Home Hospital and is improving.

Orville Davidson of Prineville was at his home at Barnes last week, looking after business matter. He took a bunch of steers back to Prineville to feed this winter.

Harry Barnes is now hauling lumber from the Maury mill. T. T. Armstrong is building a dike in his hay meadow. He says he finds it a little frosty to plow.

Harry Hackleman went to Prineville with Orville Davidson to help drive down a bunch of feeders. F. A. Hackleman and son, Abe, went to Prineville last week to meet Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Cline, who came from Washington to visit Mrs. Cline's mother, Mrs. T. A. Hackleman, of this place.

Oscar Black is at Harley Saunderson's while Mr. Saunderson is in Prineville visiting his family, who have been at that place since school started.

Chas. Sherman was a business visitor at Barnes last week. Harry Barnes had the misfortune to lose a nice calf with black leg.

Sid Rogers and Bill Smead, who have been riding for cattle at this place, left Friday for Prineville.

The Endless Chain

Consider that when you meet your obligations promptly each month you are serving yourself first and best.

It operates this way: Your merchant is rated by his promptness in meeting his monthly bills. If a merchant discounts all his bills and is never delinquent in meeting his obligations his business is more desirable to the wholesalers and jobbers than the other kind. Therefore these firms seek his trade. They offer him inducements. When they have any special bargains they give him the advantage of them. He can then pass them on to you, saving you money on many articles. You will have a warmer reception in any store, if you are always prompt in settling your obligations. If the merchant has any special bargains he will keep them for the customers who settle up on the d.t. It is an endless chain that works to the benefit of the prompt paying man or to the detriment of the slow paying one.

One of the factors in the high cost of things is the necessity for carrying accounts so long. This interest has to be accounted for in some way, it must of necessity come out of the ultimate consumer. If he is slow pay, he has to bear a greater portion of this interest cost than the prompt paying individual.

Being one of a series of display editorials, the purpose of which is to create a better understanding between the local merchants and the consumers.
