CHOP SUEYNowadays

Oh, bring us back the glad days,
When prices weren't so high.
And what we really needed
We could afford to buy.
When clerks were glad to see us,
And no-one was up stage,
And every man was willing
To earn his weekly wage.

The Servants want more money,
The grocer needs it, too.
The prices asked for meat and chops
Are almost out of view.
The office boy got nasty,
And jumped his job today,
Because I gently hinted,
That he ought to earn his pay.

The Ash man isn't working
The janitor's not here,
But no one has the courage
With them to interfere.
The painters and the plumbers,
Beside their labors sit,
But no one says "get busy,"
For fear they'll up and quit.

Their Good Night Message

One of our local citizens tells this story, and he says it happened at a very prominent home: It occurred in the evening. I and several others were calling. As we sat chatting in the parlor we heard the patter of little feet at the head of the stairs above. The mother of this particular home raised her hand for silence "hush" she said. "The children are going to deliver their good night message," she said softly. "It always gives me a feeling of reverence to hear them. They are so much nearer the Creator than we are, and they speak the love that is in their hearts never so fully as when the dark has come. Listen." There was a moment of intense silence. Then "Mamma" came the message from above, "Willie found a bedbug." —Elmore Eye.

There was a flip young clerk at the boarding house table, who was always trying to show off. He seldom asked in the usual way to have something passed to him, but had to get off something smart. One day when he wanted the milk, he sang out. "Drive the cow down this way." The landlady who sat at the head of the table, called the maid, saying as she handed her the pitcher: Here, Mary, lead the cow down to where the calf is bawling." —Pipstone Leader.

A wee editor has appeared at the home of Lander, Junior, of the Oregon Republican. Is that what you call the editorial wee?

Be More Explicit

An Iowa teaming firm advertises in the local paper. "We haul anything from a piano to a load of cattle." Now what would one be hauling from a piano to a load of cattle? Had they said Organ instead of Piano, we should have known at once that they meant the bellows.

Mexico's Only Drawback

A railroad man who had been stationed in Torreon for a number of years was relating some of his experiences in the peppery republic to a few companions in the hotel lounge when finally one of the listeners asked. "Well, tell me what is the matter with Mexico anyway?" "Oh, Mexico is alright," replied the other. "The only trouble with it is that it is so overrun with Mexicans."

A Michigan paper has a department with the heading "Flatiron News" but we fail to find any hospital stories, however.

A newspaper reporter who was inclined to be lazy in his methods of picking up news, met a brother reporter who was as keen as the other was lazy. "Anything doing?" asked the lazy one. "I have a report that a man choked to death in a restaurant, but I haven't learned his name yet," replied the other. "How did it happen?" asked the reporter eagerly scenting copy. "He was eating a piece of horse meat," was the reply, "and someone said Whoa!"—Liverpool Sun.

Let's start a barefoot club. We do not see how such a club could advance the price of shoes. If no one in America will wear a shoe until September we guarantee that ladies' pumps with no more leather in them than there is paper in a postage stamp will not sell for $20 and up.—Mitchell (Ind.) Tribune.

An Iowa paper admonishes its readers to "watch out for Current Worm." If there is any good in watching for worms at all, it would be a good scheme to keep an eye out for those of the future, too.

A young couple went to a minister's house to get married. After the ceremony the bridegroom drew the clergyman aside and said in a whisper. "I'm sorry I haven't any money to pay your fee but if you'll take me down into the cellar I'll show you how to fix your gas meter so that it won't register."—Oregon Republican.

This Is What Beat Him

They say that over in Miami county Burton Green made a speech at an agricultural meeting with a view of advancing his candidacy.

"I am a practical farmer," he said boastfully. "I can plow, reap, milk cows, work a chaff cutter, shoe a horse—in fact," he went on proudly. "I should like to know one thing on a farm that I cannot do?"

And then after an impressive silence, a small boy in the back of the room shouted: "Can you lay an egg?"—Rochester Sun.

Up To The Minute

My shoes, they cost me 14 bones. My shirt of silk, so loud it groans. My hat is fashions shining light. Oh, won't I be a nifty sight, In overalls.

Myself and all the other dubs We always join the latest clubs. And though it make my friends to weep I'll jump the fence with the other sheep.

In overalls.

Like all the rest of fashions tools, Who brush aside the wisest rules I'll blindly follow, if I'm led. Where even Angels fear to tread,

In overalls.

And now I lay me down to sleep; My coat and pants, you may them keep. But if I die before I wake, Oh, please be kind, and do not take,

My overalls.

Far out upon the wide black tide. That flows from here to other side, I hear a shriek from a drowning wretch.

Who, careless-like, forgot to fetch, His overalls. But when I come to Jordan's shore, Far from the white lights galore, I'll stand upon the rivers brink, And pray the water will not shrink.

My overalls.

And now I come to the pearly gate And there my awful record state
