School Notes

By Clarence Mertching

Crook County High School's chance at capturing the 1920 football championship for Central Oregon, took another leap, when Redmond was defeated on their grounds by a score of 47 to 7. With plenty of confidence in their prowess, the Redmond aggregation lined up against the locals to give them a taste of the same that Bend got a week previously. The game was called about 4 o'clock and after it was once started there were few delays because of injuries or disputes. Prineville kicked to Redmond. After the first few minutes of play Redmond succeeded in completing a pass, the end carrying the ball for a touchdown. After the first touchdown of the game, the play was kept well in the opposing team's territory.

Redmond was outplayed in every phase of the game. End runs and passes featured their attack. A few passes were completed, though most of them were either blocked or intercepted. Line bucks were not attempted in the latter part of the game. Prineville attempted only two passes, both being incomplete. The backfield had one new man, Tom Jacobs, who took Cecil Brown's place as halfback, because of the latter's inability to play as the result of an injured leg. The strength of the line was increased by the addition of Lester Coshaw, who is now holding down the center position. In weight and the number of experienced players, Redmond had the advantage. Crook County, however, had much better team work and coaching.

Redmond has a very loving bunch of players. Their affection was noticed time after time, when they tackled one of our men carrying the ball. They were taught to tackle low, and they did—down around the ears.

A return game with Redmond is scheduled to be played on the home grounds November the sixth.

Forty-two people is the average being served in the lunch room at the high school; as many as fifty having been served at one time. For each lunch, it is arranged to have three things served. One hot dish is always served, such as tomato soup, corn chowder, scalloped cabbage, scalloped cauliflower or baked beans. Besides this, bread and butter and cocoa are always served. The price ranges from three cents to seven for each dish served. On an average, the lunch does not cost more than twelve or thirteen cents each day. It is planned to charge only the actual cost of the food.

More and more this feature of the high school is being appreciated by the students living a great distance from the school, and it is a feature that has been installed in nearly every up-to-date school in the country.

Exams are like the poor—they are always with us. This marks the end of the first six weeks period.

The Senior class in English Literature have been studying the mechanics of poetry, to prepare them in their study of the early English writers and the modern writers. To insure a thorough understanding of the writing of poetry, poems were required of each student as a part of the classwork. Following are samples of the humorous and serious poems written by members of the class.

Rev. F. C. Laslette, formerly of this city, addressed the student body Thursday morning. The topic of his lecture was "Books." He dwelt for some length on the merits of "the greatest of all books—the Bible." The object of his address was to stimulate the desire to read good books and classics in preference to the cheap fiction. Mr. Laslette has appeared a number of times before the student body, where he has many friends.

The enrollment of the high school has been increased by the registration of Lester Coshaw, Junita Tull, John McCoy and Priscilla Webb.

Last Tuesday evening at about six o'clock, the football boys that played on the team in any of the three games played this year, were given a treat by Mr. Evans. After football practice, the boys were taken to the Domestic Science Department.

The Dance of the Sunbeam Fairies They came thru my laticed window And danced on my kitchen wall, Like golden flitting fairies.

Entranced at a mystic ball, To and fro with rhythmic motion, To tinkling music airy;

And I lost myself in watching This dance of the sunbeam fairy. Just a patch of golden sunbeams That came thru my laticed blind, But it filled my heart with gladness, And left a peace sublime.

Ode To A Ford The old policeman called, "Look out, are you blind?" I looked around to see what was behind.

I jumped to one side so the car I would miss, When something went 'clankety bang and ker-hiss.'

I woke myself up in a hospital ward, When I asked what had hit me, They said, "T'was a Ford."

I then to myself gave a long and deep sigh, If 'twas only a Ford, I refuse flat to die.

So here I am sitting as safe and as sound, As if I had been never knocked to the ground.

Now in kindness of heart, I give you warning, Never go walking early in the morning. (After the night before.) (Continued on page 12)

Terrebonne NEWS NOTES

The fair at Redmond was well attended by the Terrebonne people, and all pronounced it a success, considering that it was the initial show.

Mr. Isaac Martin has just finished a cistern and piping water into his house. Mr. Martin has not been on his ranch very long, not a year, and he has done wonders in improvements.

Miss Hazel Williams spent the weekend with her parents here. She is attending high school at Madras.

Miss Nina Elliott lost her watch at the Redmond fair.

Mr. Lee Foss, who has been visiting at Pendleton and Spokane, returned home Saturday.

Dewitt Williams's mother returned to her home in Oklahoma, after a several week's visit here.

Mrs. W. Hall and her father, N. Elliott, went to Madras Saturday on business.

Mrs. E. Benton's mother from New Mexico, came Saturday for a short visit.

O. Cyrus who lives east of Opal City, will move into town soon, so that his children may attend school. BORN—To Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Lantz, a seven pound boy. Saturday, Mrs. Lantz, a relative, is also visiting there.

Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Thomas of Portland, visited last week with Mr. and Mrs. Hance. Mr. Thomas represents The Farmer's Fire association.

Mrs. L. Snapp returned home Friday, after a visit in Bend.

Devers returned home from Eugene for the weekend, and went to Bend Monday.
