

HEART CAN FEEL NO PAIN

But Vital Organ Sends Out Its Message of Warning When Physical Danger Threatens.

The heart has no nerves of sensation. Stanley M. Rinehart, M. D., writes in the Saturday Evening Post. If the surgeon could get to it without cutting through the sensory nerves on the surface of the body he could operate upon the heart itself without causing pain.

If the heart cannot feel, how can there be pain in heart disease? Branches of the heart nerves go to certain subcenters in the spinal cord, and there they connect with the superficial nerves of sensation.

True heart pain is always due to exhaustion of the heart muscle and may be recognized by the presence of other symptoms. It is made worse by the slightest exertion; by anything that increases the rapidity of the heart's action.

More significant than pain is a feeling of contraction, of tightness in the chest behind the breastbone, which may be experienced by those of middle age. It is especially noticeable after a full meal, after smoking or during exertion.

CAT SCORED USUAL VICTORY

Japanese Legend Merely Another Feather in the Cap of the Ever-Conquering Feline.

There is an enchanting story told by the Lady Sai Shonagon, a beauty of Japan of nine centuries past, of the emperor's favorite cat — herself a spotted beauty. She had received a cup of honor and had been raised to the third rank of nobility.

fast, and sought refuge in his arms. The emperor, much shocked, sent for the lord high chamberlain, and pronounced sentence of poor Okinamu. A thrashing and exile! The Lady Sei describes him as hitherto a happy dog and much esteemed. But a short time before he had been carried in a procession in a willow litter, with peach blossoms and hollyhocks on his head!

Isn't the Law Wonderful!

A Belgian paper tells of a woman living at Mons who is denied a marriage license because she does not know her name, age or birthplace.

The case is analogous to that of a man named Mahony who was hanged some years ago. When the prison physician pronounced him dead, the body was cut down and delivered to the relatives. Life was not extinct, however, and a few hours later the man was quite himself again.

Saffron in History.

Saffron is the dried stigma of the crocus flower and is found mentioned by Homer; is written about in the Canticles as a sweet-smelling herb and was in the materia medica of Hippocrates and of the early Chinese. It was long ago produced in Persia, and in Cilicia, where the town of Korghoz is a degeneration for the old name Corycus that itself came from the ancient name of crocus, that city having been the saffron market of the east.

Picking Up a Language.

It is said that Darwin mastered the Spanish language during his voyage from London out. It was a voyage of many weeks—not the fifteen to twenty-day trip of a modern steamer. Last year one of Argentina's foreign ministers found it necessary to come to New York en route to Buenos Aires from a Castilian-speaking country, and during the twenty-day voyage here he acquired sufficient English to converse with astonishing readiness.

SEE SUICIDE NATIONAL PERIL

Influential Japanese Newspapers Exalt Christian Idea as to the Sacredness of Life.

Suicide, which has always been prevalent in Japan, is, according to the Japanese press, even more rife than ever since the financial crisis in the Land of the Rising Sun, says the Literary Digest in a recent issue. The Osaka Mainichi, which sees peril to the nation in the prevalence of self-slaughter, acknowledges the excellence of the Christian view that suicide, instead of being merely an apology for failure, is a crime.

The Osaka Mainichi says further: "Death—much more suicide—means evasion of responsibility . . . and the notion that those who commit suicide have the keenest sense of responsibility is wrong. Suicide is the embodiment of egotism and irresponsibility. One of the strong points of the Christian people is their conviction that to kill one's self is as criminal as to kill others."

Remarkable Photographic Feat.

Conspicuous among a number of remarkable scenes in a three-reel motion-picture film recently taken of an Ohio steel mill in operation, is one that actually shows the boiling of molten metal in an open-hearth furnace heated to 3,000 degrees Fahrenheit. The photographic feat of successfully registering this action in detail on the film is particularly interesting because the subject is one that a human eye can not gaze upon unprotected, says Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Potato Flour Mixed With Wheat.

A fifty-fifty mixture of wheat flour from the United States and potato flour of domestic make has been ordered by the Netherlands government for its people with the hope of keeping down the price of imported wheat. Unless something is done to keep down the price of imported wheat it will soon be out of the reach of the populace, says the Chicago Journal. Potato starch was used in a great deal during the war for the purpose of piecing out the wheat flour supply, and it was not generally acceptable to the people, but potato flour will not be open to the same criticism, and it is anticipated will prove more palatable.

Book as Granaries.

Books are the great civilizers of the race, the granaries of intellectual food. Therefore to designate in all order which books of those that are made are, indeed, public taboos, and which are straw; carefully and conscientiously to examine and explain one man for the million, the public function which are conducive or detrimental, in whole or in part, to learning and progress, is one of the most important and nobler works in which man can be engaged, while to prostitute the powers requisite for such a position is one of the basest.

The Shumia Juhors entertained the senior Shumia Club Tuesday afternoon, the first of February, at the home of Mrs. Harold Maison. The approaching Valentine Day was the occasion for the very pretty decorations, the rooms being brightened with numerous hearts and the refreshments carrying out the Valentine idea.
