MEET AGAIN.

Once More The City Council Meets and Does Business.

All members of the city council were present at roll-call on Monday evening when Mayor King called the meeting to order—and were ready for any amount of business which might be brought up before the body.

The committee appointed to look up the matter of the account of C. R. Organ in reference to the bill which he claims against the city for work done as marshal was not ready to report, and the matter was laid over till the next meeting—or, more properly speaking, to the adjourned meeting which follows next Monday evening.

A petition was read regarding sidewalks. John Nolan, J. A. Carr, and others asked that suitable sidewalks be laid on Oswego street from Portland Boulevard to Columbia Boulevard—and the matter was referred to the street committee.

The street committee reported that a contract had been made with N. A. Gee to move the building now used as a city hall and jail to the Oihuse property which the city proposes to buy as soon as the bonds are sold. The building was to be moved on Tuesday. The matter of allowing the telephone poles to remain in the street was laid over.

Ordinance 49, which referred to dogs, was taken up and handled. This ordinance modifies the rate of the license—as the figures formerly demanded were considered high. The ordinance was unanimously adopted.

Ordinance 50, relating to the establishment of a board of health; ordinance 51, relating to the disturbance of the public during the hours when Nature gets in her best work by the bells upon the cows—and forbidding the wearing of those necklaces; and ordinance 52 regulating the sale of firearms, fireworks, explosives, etc., within the city limits, were all read the third time and adopted.

Moved by Mr. Leggett that the electric line be permitted to lay its lines from Jersey street to the new freight house, and Mr. Lindquist seconded the motion. The resolution was limited to a period of three years—and was then unanimously adopted.

A request for a franchise to run a ferry for teams across the river from this city was laid on the table to allow further information.

Adjourned to Monday evening, June 26.

He Worked Him.

It was an old game—but it worked here in Saint Johns a little while ago. A stranger came here, loafed about a few days, and made several acquaintances. Suddenly he received word calling him away.

The stranger told one of the boys—and tried to borrow some money. Of course he couldn't do it. Then he offered to sell his watch. It was a bright new one, "of solid gold," worth fully one hundred dollars—but the owner just had to have a few dollars. Finally the lad who desired to go said to his chum, "Let me have your watch and five dollars and I'll put up mine for security for a few days till I can write you and send you the goods."

The Saint Johns boy did so. Three days after the watch stopped. He took it to a 3-ball uncle at Portland to have the thing diagnosed. He said that watches like that were a drug on the market now at $21 per dozen.

And so we learn!

Tomorrow is to be a big day at the Portland fair. Spectacle peddlers at the fair are frauds and rascals of the deepest dye. The same crowd follows up these fairs—and fishworms' teeth are more numerous than honest, decent men in the gang.

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Norton have gone to Long Beach, Wash., to remain three months. Mr. Norton is a resident of Point View, and has been associated with N. F. Noren in the real estate business.

Frederick Weyerhaeuser sr., head of the great lumbering concern bearing his name, was in town looking after business interests on Tuesday last. He was accompanied by G. F. Long, treasurer of the Weyerhaeuser Co.

Mrs. S. M. Hull and her brother, Henry Comstock, and Miss Cecil Comstock, were guests of Mrs. G. A. Rice on Wednesday. The party is originally from Michigan, but has been "doing" California and Oregon for the past six months. Mrs. Hull will remain with Mrs. Rice a few days and then join her relatives in a trip through Washington before returning to Michigan.

A friend of ours in northern Iowa writes asking—how we "like it out in the land of roses and flowers, bull frogs and cherries, and liars and fleas," and where the climate is "like this all the while." Well, you old frost bitten icicle, we like it all right. We are just having a bully time. Your crab apples are not in it with our cherries either in size, looks or taste. And one of our fleas will make a dozen of your mosquitoes look like 30 cents. Ask us something real hard.

Miss Clara Beller, who has acted as typographical expert on THE REVIEW for several months, has severed her connection with this journal and goes to Ilwaco for the summer. Miss Beller is an expert in typesetting—but feels the need of the ocean's refreshing roar; and this paper parts with her with regret.

With a stump-puller of 300 horse power capacity Schauf & Davidson have been yanking stumps from their nests at the lower end of Jersey street. Yesterday they were clearing stumps from in front of the new Holbrook building—to the satisfaction of a crowd of onlookers. The machine does its work perfectly—and so far hasn't gone after anything it failed to get.

THE KING GANDER.

Don't Shoot Him or You'll Get as Crazy as a Coot.

Never hear tell of a king gander, I suppose? No; most folk hadn't. The sharps that write the bird books says there ain't no such thing, but I know better. I've seen one.

There ain't never but one king gander at a time, same's a country never has but one king at a time, but a king gander's a real king, that's what he is. It ain't just because he's the biggest gander of any or the knowin'est. It's somethin' more. He's kind of a tall, wild goose that flies but knows it. He's captain of 'em all, an' it's only the neck of the geese that flies with him.

Now that ain't all neither. What do you suppose became of that big king gander Bill shot? Ever hear of a dead gander bein' carried off by his flock, restin' on their backs an' them a-honkin' out a reg'lar buryin' dirge? Well, I've said enough. Fact is I've said all I dare say.

But I tell you this: If ever you have a chance to shoot a king gander don't you do it. 'Tain't good luck. If you don't believe it look at my brother Bill. He killed one—leastways he shot him—and then what happened? Only the Lord and Bill Huckins knows. An' Bill 'll never tell. Why not? 'Cause he's been as crazy as a coot ever since—yes, sir, crazy as a coot!—Outing.

FOOD AND WEATHER.

Why People Eat More in Winter Than They Do in Summer.

It has been shown that the consumption of food increases in direct proportion to the decrease in temperature. We eat more in winter than in summer, and the inhabitants of the temperate regions require more food than those of the tropic zone.

This is due to several causes. In the first place air is denser in colder climates and more oxygen is taken in with each breath, so that a greater supply of carbon-derived from food is necessary in order that the two gases may combine in their proper proportions for the maintenance of bodily heat. Again, the inhabitant of a cold climate usually has to work harder than the more fortunate southerner, whose wants decrease as nature becomes more generous. The harder the daily labor the greater the amount of food required.

Climate not only affects the quantity but also the quality of the food consumed. The Eskimo could not live upon the delicacies of nature which load the tables of the poorest in the tropics, for the conditions of his existence require the consumption of an enormous amount of fatty matter, so that blubber is to him a chief necessary of life.

OBSCURE PASSAGES.

Lines Whose Meaning Was Not Clear to Their Authors.

A writer in London Truth recalls that Browning, when asked the meaning of a passage in "Sordello," replied, "Well, I know the poem had a meaning to me when I wrote it, but what it was I cannot now say." The writer goes on to quote parallel answers of Coleridge and of Goethe, which comforted him long ago, when he first transcribed them. Coleridge wrote the greater part of book 2 of Southey's "Joan of Arc" and annotated the long passage beginning, "Maid beloved of heaven," thus: "These are very fine lines, though I say it that should not, but hang me if I know, or ever did know, the meaning of them, though my own composition." Lord Francis Egerton, when translating "Faust," wrote to ask Goethe's explanation of a passage which puzzled him and received the reply that the poet himself was at a loss for its meaning. "Surely," runs his answer to Lord Francis, "you at twenty-four should know better than I at seventy-four the meaning of a passage I wrote at your age."

Understanding Poker.

The women believe that every man knows all about poker, but only a few men do. It is true, however, that nearly every man pretends to understand the game thoroughly. When there is a poker joke at a theater all the men smile and look at their women folks with a sort of pity, but the fellows who smile know very little about the game and are afraid to play it, for in almost every little social affair connected with chips and pairs there is a horn gambler industriously engaged in working chumps. The few men who really understand poker have a habit of winning the money of the men who pretend to understand it, so the large majority of men know nothing about the game further than that a good hand is hard to get.—Atholion Globe.
