IT WAS NICE FIGHT.

The Mass Meeting Ticket Was Elected Entire And All Seemed Satisfied.

It was a mighty pretty day for an election—and the city was particularly free from all disturbances. There were energetic workers busy as bees the whole day—and a goodnatured banding and general jollification always followed a meeting of rival candidates.

THE REVIEW started the system of a clean campaign—and everyone quickly fell in with the plan. To sling mud is harmful to all—even to the man who throws it; because some of that dirty stuff will stick to the fingers and spatter the garments of him who handles it! The lead by this paper was a happy one: it made better feeling all around: it made a victory the more graceful and a defeat the less bitter.

The race for treasurer was a pretty one. No one really wanted it until they were nominated—then each hustled because he was averse to being second. Last year G. M. Hall was beaten by one vote: this year he was anxious to be a winner.

G. G. Carhart made a nice fight for councilman: not that he desired political preferment but because he had been nominated. Both he and J. H. Black we considered elected in case of any break on the citizens ticket.

The writer of this feels like throwing a bouquet at himself for the manner in which he was elected. His opponents were fair and honorable: and THE REVIEW made a greater effort to elect J. W. Hanks than it did to elect Thorndyke. Thorndyke issued no printed matter of any sort nor did his name appear in the columns of this paper save as connected with the official lists. He knew the churches were against him because his colleagues (who had a vote) favored high license; and he knew, too, that the long continued illness of Mr. Hanks had made votes for him by sympathy and sorrow for he was liked. Had Mr. Hanks been well and strong and physically able to fill the duties of his office none would have taken a nomination against him. He is a favorite. The following shows the vote:

| 65—AGAINST THE BONDS. | |

F. W. Valentine's majority was 140; G. M. Hall's plurality was 57; and W. L. Thorndyke's plurality was 74.

The bonds carried, as will be seen, by a handsome figure.

The smallness of the vote of several of the candidates can never be successfully accounted for.

The judges and clerks in both wards were very pleasant and accommodating to THE REVIEW.

Election Notes

Judges in the first ward were John Poff, J. F. Earl, and P. G. Hansen. The clerks were G. E. Loy and G. W. Overstreet. The challengers were Scott Lindley, Edward Monahan and John Lagerty.

The judges in the second ward were C. W. Hinman, L. B. Chipman and C. R. Organ. The clerks were Paschal Hill and G. G. Gould. The challengers were D. Perkins and N. A. Gee. At ten o'clock there were 32 votes cast—and a supply of voters was very steady.

A Girl This Time

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith, Friday, March 30, a daughter. This little girl comes as a sweet sister to a son nine years old. Mr. Smith, as he pays for the good cigars, asserts that he has done his best to prove that marriage is not a failure.

Keep Your Eye On St. Johns.

Died on Sunday.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Cole, 526 Richmond street, Point View, Marcus D. Wheeler, who has for many years resided with the family, died on Sunday, April 1, at the age of 69 years.

Mr. Cole was an old soldier—and a hard-working man in every way. He was a lover of the home—and was rarely found away from it. He was an honest man—and no more need be said.

His death resulted from senility. Funeral was held on Tuesday from the Methodist church—Rev. F. L. Young officiating.

The remains were cared for by Undertaker Cook.

At the services were seen some twentyfive old soldiers, veterans of the civil war—quite a large gathering for so small a city. The casket was properly draped with the American flag.
