

WE ARE STILL SELLING STOVES!

Our first shipment of 65 heating stoves is exhausted, except a few odd sizes, while in some styles—notably, our "Cheerful" line—we have in the third shipment since the heater season has opened. This same "Cheerful" heater is the best wood stove in St. Johns; has heavy cast bottom and sectional cast lining, spark shield over damper; large, close fitting door provided with smoke curtain that prevents smoke from issuing into the room when fuel is put in.

Our line of Crown and Cascade Ranges, all made by Niagara Stove Co., Buffalo, are going out so fast we can scarcely keep a line of samples on our floor. They are winners. Let us show them to you and give you prices.

Let us sell you a wire door mat. Easy to clean and will last a lifetime.

Full line of paints, oils, all kinds of inside varnishes, etc. In fact, our stock includes everything found in a first-class hardware store.

MAKE SALESMEN OF YOUR WINDOWS AFTER DARK

A store may shut its doors at sunset, but if its show windows are Electric Lighted and attractively dressed they are doing as effective soliciting for the next day's business as a corps of sales people.

Up-to-date stores nowadays consider window lighting a necessity, whether they remain open after dark or not. Competition forces modern methods. Is your store "HUT UP" after sunset in the old style or in the new?

There is no known illuminant which will light a shop window as effectively, handsomely and satisfactorily as Electric Light. Fabrics are shown in their true colors and every little detail is brought out in true proportion to its surroundings.

If your window is not Electrically Lighted you are throwing away chances for increasing your business only measured by the number of people that pass your store after dark.

Based on our new scale of Reduced Rates for current on Meter basis, Electric Light is not an expense—it is an ECONOMY.

As fine beavers ever seen anywhere were furnished the local meat markets for the holiday trade. The carcasses were very large and fat and dressed so as to display to best advantage.

All along the car line between St. Johns and Portland the vacant tracts are being cleared of the brush and platted for market. In another year handsome homes will adorn the places where an undergrowth of fir trees and huge stumps now stand.

The party who robbed the telephone box in The Review office the first of the week of a portion of the money it contained was seen, and the best thing he can do is to return the nickels he stole. Better save the trouble, sonny, that is sure to come.

Emil Paaz, pipe fitter and general utility man at the Stanley-Smith lumber mills in Hood River valley, is visiting with his family in this place this week. W. L. Markle, machinist on the same mill, is spending a few days with his brother here.

While one of the electric cars was coming into St. Johns about 6:30 o'clock Christmas night it struck a piece of barbed wire which had been hung on the trolley wire near Smith's Crossing. Besides throwing a shower of sparks and extinguishing the lights no damage was done.

N. A. Gee the contractor is raising a handsome bunch of goat whiskers on his chin. He says it will be of great benefit to him in moving buildings, as he can now balance a good sized house on his chin without wearing the skin off. Mr. Gee says he got the idea while riding the goat at one of the lodges last week and thinks it will work to perfection. Anyhow, it is very becoming.

If you would ask yourself how many men were employed in the little town of Linton, what would your answer be? There are over 300 men working, and all at the very best of wages. The saw mill runs day and night and employs 250 workmen, while the box factory has 50 men on its pay roll. Besides these a number of carpenters, plasterers, masons, laborers, clerks, etc., find steady employment. Linton is saying nothing, but saws wood and makes boxes twenty-four hours a day.

The recent heavy rains proved too much for the recently constructed sewer, and in the opinion of those who made the examination additional work will be required to make the sewer available. The trouble is the water at the upper end flows south along Jersey street instead of toward the river. According to a member of the council the sewer is ten inches lower on Jersey street than it is a hundred feet away on Burlington. The result is that the upper end is useless. Instead of running away the water is stagnant and disease breeding. It has been estimated that $1,000 or more will have to be expended to correct the mistake.

On the level we believe the patrons of the St. Johns car line will stand for anything. The street car officials know they are copper bottomed, steel ribbed and as tough as a fir knot. That is the reason why the open cars are run on the line. Last summer we sweat and broiled in the huge closed cars while the patrons of other parts of the line fanned their perfumed anatomy by using the open ones. Last Saturday night a half hundred of our warranted-to-never-catch-cold St. Johnites dodged the rain drops of one of the worst nights of the year in one of these open conveyances. It was rather tough on the passengers, but it was good for the doctors. The cause of religion was not helped in the hour and forty-five minutes consumed in coming from Portland. If you are going to run open cars during the winter, Mister Street Car Man, kindly furnish buffalo overcoats for each passenger. They are warmer than the lattice work.

The work of sluicing the dirt out of the west end of the cut to be made across the peninsula in the southern part of the city by the Portland and Seattle railroad is liable to begin at any time. The engine to be used in pumping the water is in place and the connections are all made. Scaffolding for holding the troughs that will convey the dirt into the river has been built, and only a few details remain before operations begin.

Nearly everybody knows that many of the markets of Portland resort to the use of chemicals to preserve their meats, and that fully one-half of the sausage is a preparation of chemically treated refuse that a well bred dog would not eat. The limit was reached this week when a St. Johns man brought home a package of clams dosed with enough formaldehyde to kill a family. And they have a market inspector in Portland.

Ten dollars down and ten cents a day are the terms on which University Park lots are sold. University Park lots are selling right along while others are still, because University Park has the largest payroll on the peninsula, because it has Bull Run water, a university which brings a cultured class, a liquor restriction which excludes saloons. Portland public schools, and first and foremost it believes that a steady growth and good morals pay best in the long run. Francis J. McKenna is the selling agent for University Park lots.

A year ago this week lots in the best residence district in south St. Johns were selling, and not so very fast, either, at $200 and $225. We remember how one man tried to get up a pool and buy a block. He could not make it. The people he interviewed were afraid and thought the price too high—just as they do now. The lots sold, however, and last fall the company reported their holdings closed out. And now these same lots are bringing double the money they did a year ago, and the owners do not care whether they sell or not. What may be said of the southern part of the city may be said of other sections. During the coming year there will be building in all directions. Property will increase in value more rapidly than ever. Now is the time to get in on the ground floor.

The Review would make a suggestion to the motormen and conductors on the car line: When you are late in arriving in St. Johns and wish to get away quickly, do not, the moment the car stops, begin to ring the bell and give a couple of toots of the whistle. Wait until the passengers get off and those waiting are aboard. Clanging the bell and whistling the moment you stop only invites confusion. Those going to town block the way of those wishing to get off, and everybody gets rattled. The woman with a baby in her arms and one or two at her side has enough to think about without trying to push through the flying wedge who do not wish to be carried back to the city. A little head work will do more to get you on your way than pounding the bell and blowing the whistle. Anyhow, give it a trial.

Mrs. Frank Peterson has recovered to such an extent from her recent illness that she was able to start on last Monday for a visit with friends and relatives at Lebanon.
Now that Christmas is a thing of the past and the new year is rapidly approaching it is high time that you should order your supply of printed stationery for the new year.
Those who have occasion to stay over night in Portland should note the ad of The Pennington, 375 Alder street, in this issue. It is centrally located and first class accommodations may be secured at reasonable rates.
Fred J. Koerner has completed the lower story of the Holbrook block on Burlington street and it is now in the hands of the painters. We understand the three stores have been rented and will be occupied as soon as they can be made ready.
News item in the White Salmon Enterprise: John Hammond and Miss Blanch Hottman have introduced a new dance. It is called the Cod Fish Gallopade. The movement is like that of a jack rabbit when the hounds are after it. O my, but it is a howling success.
The White House, the new hotel managed by W. J. Galyean, is one of the most popular in the city, and is filled to overflowing. Every convenience is provided for the comfort and welfare of guests, and the large patronage proves that the pains taken are appreciated.
Robert A. Dadsman and Miss Clara Benely were united in marriage at the residence of W. L. Thorndyke last Saturday afternoon. Justice Thorndyke tied the knot in a satisfactory manner and Mrs. Thorndyke was held as witness. The young couple will make their home in St. Johns.
Al Isenhath, a former resident of St. Johns but now head sawyer for the Hartford Lumber Co. operating at Hartford, Wash., was a business caller in town last Monday. Mr. Isenhath says there is no place on the coast that can compare with St. Johns, and he is eagerly looking forward to the time when he can once more dwell among us.
Work on the caissons of the Portland and Seattle bridge across the Willamette near the dry dock is progressing favorably. Altogether there will be five caissons and the concrete work on the first one was finished last Monday, and the rock work began Tuesday. Four caissons are in the water, the last one being towed to its place yesterday. A large force of men are employed and more are to be added as soon as room can be made for them.
While real estate in St. Johns is in demand, it will be well to keep an eye on Linton, the thrifty burg across the river. Although older than Portland she is slowly and surely coming to life. Unless signs fail there will be something doing before the 1908 calendars show up. The electric road along the west bank of the river means quick and cheap transportation from Portland. This will attract many who are looking for cheap homes, and the result will be a thriving city. We understand land is being platted off will be in the near future.
One of the belles of Oak street, Portland, tiring of the monotonous grind of the suburb up the river, hid herself to St. Johns last Friday for a touch of high life. The pure air she inhaled was exhilarating, and inside of an hour she was issuing challenges for a scrap with anything in town, give or take 50 pounds. Chief Bredeson escorted her to the city hall without difficulty, where she was given a half hour to get out of town by Municipal Judge Thorndyke. She celebrated her release by inhaling more air and some booze. She spent the night in comfortably furnished quarters on the first floor of The Bredeson. Without friends or money to pay her fine, she was forced to spend fifteen days in the county jail by order of the court.

One of The Review readers came into the office during the week and asked: "Does anybody in St. Johns sell coal? The only people who advertise coal for sale are Faulk & Merrill at University Park." The inquiry was answered by referring the man to the advertiser. Still we wonder why our home people buy out of town.

SCHOOL MEETING
Held Last Evening Was an Important One.

The public meeting held in the school building last evening to make arrangements for securing additional school room and levy the school tax for the ensuing year was attended by a representative body of citizens. On motion the school board was instructed to use their own judgment in securing the necessary room. The matter of the report of the administrator of the James Johns estate was taken up and discussed at length. It was first sent to council by Judge Webster, but that body decided they had nothing to do with it and very properly turned the report over to the school board. It was the consensus of opinion that the matter had been delayed entirely too long and graft was eating too large a hole in the estate. As the report was a lengthy affair and carried with it a suggestion from Judge Webster that an attorney be secured to look the matter over and incidentally tear off another hunk of the estate, it was decided to defer action until a future meeting. The board, however, was instructed to take what steps were necessary in securing a clear title to the same.

The tax levy for the ensuing year was then taken up. It was found that the liabilities would be in the neighborhood of $28,000 and it would require a 6 mill tax to meet the same. After some discussion it was decided to allow the number of mills asked for.
