Let the Peninsula Bank write you a fire insurance policy.

Mrs. L. A. McKeon returned last Sunday from a three weeks visit with friends in Spokane.

The finder of a long, flat office key will find the owner by inquiring at The Review office.

The night hawks announced the beginning of the new year by a violent ringing of the fire bell.

It is reported that the corner room in the Sherman & Stine block has been rented to a gent's furnishing house.

New Years day was a quiet one. The business houses closed early and everybody rested during the afternoon save the printers.

D. S. Southmayd, painter, paper hanger and decorator, has plenty of 1906 wall paper in stock at 708 W. Richmond street, St. Johns.

After spending her vacation at home Miss Anna Swengle left for Dallas Sunday to resume her studies at the college at that point.

The first concrete sidewalk in the business district will be laid in front of the Sherman & Stine block on the corner of Jersey and Burlington streets.

A very thin covering of snow on the hills opposite the city was one of the sights of New Year's day. A little altitude makes a great difference in Oregon.

Capt. Spores and wife moved to Portland the first of the week to take up their residence. The move was necessary on account of the captain's duties as harbor inspector.

Father Maples wishes to thank the unknown friend who remembered him at Christmas time. The gift is highly appreciated by the old pioneer.

A. G. Anderson of Silverton, Ore., was in St. Johns last Saturday on business connected with his real estate interests here. Like all others he is pleased with his investments.

The four-masted sailing vessel Aurora finished loading lumber at the St. Johns Lumber Co.'s mill the first of the week. She carried away 1,500,000 feet of first class lumber for use at San Francisco.

A. B. Van Dran, landlord of the Depot Hotel at Albany, Ore., was in town the first of the week, looking over the bargains in the real estate line. The gentleman an extension breeder of Chinese pheasants, and has a number of birds on exhibition at the depot at Albany that are admired by thousands of travelers.

Our husky friend W. G. Clark, fresh from his eastern trip, showed up Wednesday morning with a sample ear of Illinois corn 13 inches long. Like all others he says the east is a nice country and very prosperous, but he prefers to live in Oregon. That the trip agreed with him may be inferred from the fact that he gained 22 pounds during his absence.

Mrs. Mae Wright has returned to St. Johns. Any one wishing lessons in vocal music or elocution will find her at 510 Gresham street, near the water tower. Mrs. Wright came to St. Johns highly recommended. She has studied in the National College in Chicago, and has a diploma from the Chillicothe Conservatory of Music. Voices tried free of charge. Hours 10 to 12 and 4 to 6.

The West Coast Laundry is now located in its new home near the ferry landing. The change was made the first of the week and work resumed Wednesday morning. Little or no inconvenience resulted. The laundry is now one of the best equipped on the peninsula. Besides increased floor space the new machinery installed will enable Mr. Johnson to turn out more and better work than ever. The reputation of the West Coast Laundry is second to none on the coast and the increased facilities will serve to add to its fame.

The differences of opinion that prevented the Philadelphia street improvements last fall have been adjusted, and we understand as soon as favorable weather comes the widest street in St. Johns will be graded and sidewalks from the top of the hill to the banks of the Willamette. It is to be hoped the property owners will insist on a grade that will permit of teams ascending and descending the hill in perfect safety. The lesson learned in the Burlington street grade should be put to practical use by the Philadelphia street people. Unless we are awfully mistaken it will be.

A great future is predicted for Maegley Junction.

Buy your cigars and tobacco of Harris & Goodell. The only exclusive cigar store in St. Johns. Corner Jersey and Tacoma streets.

Gust Frank has purchased the G. W. Moody residence on Kellogg street. D. W. Arnold, who recently purchased the St. Johns Art store, engineered the deal.

If more business men would advertise there would not be so much competition in some of the business lines. A man who does not advertise is never considered a competitor by an up-to-date man seeking a new business location.

E. C. Hurlbert and wife expect to leave the middle of this month for a tour of the eastern states. It is Mr. Hurlbert's intention while on the trip to make arrangements for the manufacture of a two-in-one salt and pepper shaker which he has invented.

The man who has a place where he can go and pull off his wet shoes and then shoves his tootsie woosies into a pair of comfortable slippers is pretty well off in way of bodily comforts. It is only when he is deprived of this luxury that he knows how to appreciate it.

Supt. Edlesen of the water works is entitled to the thanks of the numerous hurdle jumpers who live on West John street for the excavations made and the trestle he built across the mud hole at the corner of John and Fillmore. The men, women and children in this locality have jumped this particular mud hole so often that they are proficient as goats in the art.

One of the nastiest rain storms St. Johns has seen in years prevailed Wednesday night and all day yesterday. There was water everywhere. Everybody had a bad case of the blues. When the ladies met they would greet each other with "My, but isn't this dreadful?" and the sterner sex gave vent to their feelings by greeting each other with "Goddemity, isn't this hell?"

As yet the ferry company have not begun the construction of their new boat, being unable to secure a practical boat builder. The immense amount of ship building now being done on the coast has had the effect of making workmen scarce and hard to get for anything outside the large contracts. The machinery for the new boat has been purchased and the company has given bonds to deliver it when called upon at any time within the next 60 days.

Last Wednesday Mr. L. M. Holbrook added to his already large real estate holdings in the southeastern part of the city by purchasing twelve acres of A. C. Fairchild of Long Beach, California. The price paid was $12,000. The sale was made by W. J. Peddicord, the Philadelphia street real estate dealer, whose office is in the Adams building. Mr. Holbrook's new purchase will be platted and placed on the market in connection with the 100 acres recently bought by him in the vicinity of Maegley junction.

The drug store had several loafers loitering in it when an aged lady came in and handed the drug gist a prescription to be filled. In a few minutes the task was done, and the customer, after hunting for her purse, inquired the price, the druggist blandly replying: "Seventy cents." "Seventy cents?" said the old lady, who was quite deaf. "Seventy cents!" roared the drug mixer. "Seventy cents! All right, here is your money," and dropping a nickel and two pennies on the counter she sailed majestically out before the astonished pharmacist had time to recover his breath. Upon being gazed by the loiterers he said he didn't care very much because he made five cents on the deal, anyhow.

Try Hinkston & Frazen's bread. More improvement bonds are advertised in this issue.

W. W. Goodrich is convalescing slowly from his recent illness.

Rough dry washing at 6c per pound. West Coast Laundry.

The pupils of the public schools resumed their studies last Wednesday.

D. L. Page, who was severely injured by a fall from the new city hall about a month ago, was out on the streets for the first time last Saturday.

The council met Tuesday evening last and passed the ordinance designating the tax levy for the coming year, and then adjourned. Only five members were present.

An outline cut of the new $20,000 school house to be built in the southern part of the city appeared in last Sunday's Oregonian. It will have eight rooms, and the style of architecture is very much like that of the present school on Jersey street.

Rev. J. Perry Conder, who conducted services in the tent on Ivanhoe street the past summer, was married at Salem on Wednesday of last week to Miss Claudia Chier of that place. Gilbert Overstreet of this city acted as best man. The newly married couple will make their home in Salem.

Buy of the large furniture dealers and you help pay big rents, big expenses and big salaries. Our way—small rents, small expenses, small profits, small prices and quick sales. Investigate. Uhlig Bros., Furniture, stoves, ranges, photographs and sewing machines. 106 Tacoma street, St. Johns, Ore.

Newly arrived residents from the east have a hard time figuring out why there is so much water in the wood they buy when the dealer swears it is dry. Dry wood in St. Johns in winter is what they call wet wood in the east. The reason the word "dry" is used here is because it commands a better price.

"Whose business is it to take care of the street crossings and see that they are navigable? is a question that a dozen people asked in The Review office yesterday. As the present is the only time of year that any benefit is derived from the expense of putting the crossings it does seem that some provision should be made to keep them clear of mud.

Chas. Arnett and W. G. Clark returned last Tuesday from a months visit in Illinois, Minnesota and Colorado. Mr. Arnett said in regard to the trip: "We found everybody prosperous. The farmers had big crops, the factories are crowded with orders and everybody has money. Land continues to go up in price. In Illinois it sells from $50 to $200 an acre. In Minnesota they are enjoying a season of prosperity. No, I would not go back there to live for the best farm I saw. Oregon is good enough for me. I did not see a place that had the prospects that Portland has. Unless the unexpected happens my address will continue to be St. Johns, Oregon.

The following from the Roseburg Review is the truth plainly told. Nail it to the wall and read it once a week: It is little use for the local editor to waste his lungs and strain his spine in trying to boom a town when the citizens all stand around with their hands in their pockets and indifferently wait for something to turn up. If the capitalists or business men do not put their shoulders to the wheel and do a little boosting, it is useless for the editor to try and boom things. He can write "boom" articles till he gets bald headed, but if the citizens themselves do not take hold and push, the town will forever stick in the mud. Of what use is it for the local paper to suggest improvements and new enterprises if the suggestions are not acted upon? One man cannot boom a town. It requires the concerted action of the citizens. When one man shoulders a town and attempts to carry it there always a lot of cranky kickers ready to jump on top of the load. Unity of action is what counts.

Harvey Briggs, the former well known clerk at the Peninsula Bank, but now in the lumber business at Bridal Veil, Ore., spent New Years day in the city. "You St. Johnites think you have too much rain," said Harvey, "but you ought to see the water come down at Bridal Veil. It is awful. Umbrellas are of no use. We all wear oilskin coats and overalls, and even they do not last over a couple of weeks because the rain drops bore them full of holes. And when you want to know how hard the wind blows come and see me. Our office dog only wears hair under his collar. His body is as bald as Rockefeller's head. All the mill men come and go from work carrying a crowbar in each hand to keep from going up in the air. Buttons on your clothes are of no use because the wind cuts them off, and— Here comes my car!" And the Adonis of Bridal Veil sprinted for the cannon ball bound for Portland.

Instead of one, St. Johns is likely to have two packing plants.

Ask your grocer for Hinkston & Frazen's Bread. It is good.

Furnished housekeeping rooms. Inquire 605 N. Fillmore street.

Oregon has had a touch of good old Virginia weather for the past few days.

The rafters of the new city hall are in place and it will not be long before the roof is finished.

During the week The Review received a letter from far-off Bangor, Maine, inquiring about St. Johns.

Mrs. F. W. Valentine was called to Silverton the first of the week to attend the funeral of a dear friend.

J. C. Robinson, wife and daughter Bessie, formerly of Michigan, but now residents of Portland, were the guests of Dr. Hartel and wife on Christmas.

The charter commission meets at the city hall tonight to finish the work of revising the charter. Any taxpayer interested in any change should be on hand and make the fact known.

There will be a meeting of the Commercial Club next Wednesday evening at the office of D. C. Rogers. Ginger up, and try and be one of the live ones in St. Johns by attending the meeting.

Dr. and Mrs. Hartel of this city have each recently suffered the loss of a father, and the mother of the latter also died several weeks ago. The three deaths took place in the state of Michigan, where they resided.

Why keep your wife's temper ruffled with a poor stove? We keep the best stoves and ranges at prices that are hard to beat. Come in and see for yourself. Uhlig Bros., House Furnishings, 106 Tacoma street.

The users of coal say the mineral fuel was not to be obtained in the city during the week. Will some dealer in coal kindly leave his name at this office so that inquirers for this kind of fuel may be directed to his place of business?

The masquerade dance of the firemen on New Years eve was a grand success. Miss Jessie Brown and Frank Robertson secured the two first prizes, while the second prizes fell to Frank Thornyke and Norman Rhonberg.

FOUND

$11,000 Waiting for Him in Portland.

G. F. Handley, who attempted to conduct a news stand at the Peninsula Bank corner some months ago, is shaking hands with himself that he was not allowed to do so. Because his stand occupied a portion of the sidewalk he was arrested for violating the city ordinance. Not appearing for trial his property was confiscated and sold. Many felt sorry for Mr. Handley. But he pocketed his loss and went to Portland, where he rented a building at the corner of First and Alder streets and put in a confectionery and news stock.

Mr. Handley's store is near the neat market of Frank L. Smith, whose "Fighting the Beef Trust" has made him and his market famous. Somebody, probably of the opinion that Mr. Smith's advertising was bringing him more than his share of business, decided to open a market near him. Mr. Handley held the key to the situation by holding a five-year lease on the premises desired by the opposition. Would he sell his lease? Of course he would if he could get his price. After some dickering Mr. Handley was offered $11,000 in cold cash to move out. He accepted the offer.

The deal is a record one considering the money invested. Mr. Smith says his competitor is backed by the meat trust, and that he will be found doing business after the other fellow has quit.

In the meantime Mr. Handley is congratulating himself that he was not allowed to begin business in St. Johns.

From Father Maples

Santa Claus came to St. Johns on the 25th day of December and visited five churches and loaded the Christmas trees with candy and nuts and many toys. The officers of all schools were pleased, and we think the number of children in the schools will increase.

The old gentleman, Santa Claus, came through the mud and rain to Father and Mother Maples and gave them many useful things which will never be forgotten.
