THE LIGHT THAT'S BRIGHT

ELECTRIC LIGHT is pre-eminently the light of happy content. It dispels gloom, dinginess and discouragement. Light homes make light hearts.

ELECTRIC LIGHT is practical light—a light that is at once clean, convenient and economical. At the prevailing rates for current on meter basis, it is well within the means of all, and when used sensibly—economically—electric light is as cheap as it is good.

The following from a Southern Minnesota paper just received ought to make a person feel warm: The week has been another severely cold one. The thermometer each morning, with the occasional exception, ranging from 20 to 30 degrees below zero—yesterday morning it was 27 below. The wind blew a perfect gale on Saturday, and Monday roads were so drifted the mail carriers could not cover their routes.

Members of the 1906 class of the St. Johns High school tendered a reception to the faculty and the graduates of this year, in the assembly room of the high school building last Friday night. The room was tastefully decorated for the event, and a great deal of merriment occasioned by the ceremonies incident to the initiation of the new graduates as members of the alumni. Refreshments were served, and a general good time enjoyed by the young people.

Clark & Wilson have just made one of the largest deals in a timber way that has ever been transacted along the Columbia river. The deal whereby the above named gentlemen became the possessors of 400,000,000 feet of fine timber land near Goble, involved an expenditure of $800,000. This timber will be logged off and transported to the large saw mills of the new owners at Linton. Reed & Pelton of Portland were the parties who owned the timber for the past three years and cleared over half a million dollars on the transaction.

Prof. Alderson of the public schools, through an election to be held today, will organize a "city council" composed of the pupils in the different grades. A mayor, recorder, chief of police, and two councilmen from each room will be chosen. The idea is a good one, and will be of lasting benefit to all the pupils.

The Review was in error last week in stating that Cedar Park was to be shorn of its trees and the tract platted and placed on the market. The article brought out considerable discussion as to the advisability of the city bonding itself to secure the money necessary to buy the tract and convert it into a city park. It is the only large tract of land left that is close in and which could easily be converted into an ideal park.

The hull for the Swift Packing Company's dredge, which is being built in Supple's boat yard, will be completed in ten days and ready for launching. It is a solid mass of timber. The city fathers hied themselves to Cazadero last Tuesday to attend the opening of the General Electric Co.'s large water power plant at that point and to attend the banquet given in honor of the event. In consequence there was no regular meeting of the council last Tuesday evening.

Owing to a misunderstanding the typewritten copy of the revised charter failed to reach the council at the special meeting called for its consideration last Saturday night, and, as a consequence, nothing was done. To go over the matter carefully and note the changes made by the charter commission the city fathers have a tedious task ahead of them.

As it is said there are a few devotees of the great American game in St. Johns, the following may interest some of them: A machine which automatically shuffles a pack of cards in an instant with the cards concealed from sight, and which changes the position of nine out of every ten cards, is the latest mechanical device for card players. It not only protects the cards from injury but gives an absolutely square deal shuffle. The machine weighs four pounds and attaches in a moment to any table. It is about 12 inches high.

AFTER DARK PRANKS

Or, Where is the Man Who Stole the Hog?

Tom, Tom, the piper's son,
 Stole a pig and away he ran;
 The pig was eat and Tom was beat,
 For some one had skipped with it down the street.

That's the way Louie Richard, better known as the Abe Ruef of St. Johns, sings the good old nursery rhyme nowadays. The incident that led to Abe's parody occurred last Tuesday when he killed a fine Berkshire porker of the Philadelphia ham weight. This particular pig has been in Abe's possession for a couple of months and has been fed with food to flavor the meat according to Abe's epicurean taste. Every morning her porcine highness was given a quart of port wine as an appetizer to attack a peck of acorns. The noonday luncheon consisted of a pail of corn meal mush and milk, and this was followed by a hearty dinner of roasted chestnuts and celery. Every night she slumbered in a stall carpeted with lamb's wool, and blankets of the finest texture prevented the night air from making her uncomfortable.

Last Tuesday she had reached the proper weight, and Abe concluded to sample the meat he had prepared. The family boiler full of hot water awaited the arrival of Butcher Bennett when he appeared at the abattoir with a vicious looking butcher knife in his hand. Her highness was about to be assassinated. Tearfully Abe drove her from her quarters and cracked her between the eyes with a rusty hammer. With a snort that sounded like "woof" the daintily fed beast sank to the ground. The villainous butcher knife did the rest.

Anticipating the pleasure he would have in devouring the choice morsels Abe hung the carcass up to cool, and then informed his friends of the choice cuts he would soon be feasting upon.

Right here is where the mischievous one began his work. When Abe went out to cut off a hunk of her highness for his breakfast Wednesday morning no hog was there. Rushing down town he informed a crowd of loungers that some one had stolen his hog.

"Stolen your hog?" inquired one of the crowd.

"Y-a-a-s, my hog!" yelled Abe.

"Aw, I don't believe you had any hog," answered another.

"Get out, you're bug!" exclaimed Abe as he shot into a near by store and began rummaging around for his lost porker.

"Get out of here!" shouted the clerk, who was behind the counter. "This is no slaughter house. There's no hog in here, and I don't believe you lost a hog."

"Your bug, I tell you!" said Abe as he disappeared down the street.

When he arrived at his cafe he found the missing porker. Who brought it, how it got there or where it came from Abe Ruef of St. Johns is still trying to find out.

WILL MOVE

Potter & Goold Move Into New Quarters April 1.

For the second time within two years the business of Potter & Goold, the hardware men, have outgrown the quarters occupied by them. They have been seeking larger quarters for some time, and during the first of the week secured them. Beginning April 1 they will occupy the large store on the corner of Burlington and Jersey streets, now used by Bickner Bros. Their lease includes both upper and lower floors.

In their new home they will have 3000 feet of floor space, besides a basement and a large room for storage. The new store is one of the best locations in the city, and the popular hardware men will have no difficulty in displaying their large and varied stock.

Bickner Bros., it is understood, will retire from business and devote themselves to other interests.
