Don't forget to cut out the skating rink coupon in this issue if you want a free admission. The rink promises to be a popular resort during the long winter evenings.

While in Portland, Wednesday, we met Joseph A. Wilson one of our best old Hood River tillicumbs. It was a treat to see Joe and imbibe some of his old Hood River spirit and vim. Joe is a dandy and one of the best hustlers there is in the apple city.

M. G. Bailey has opened up a notion store at 210 Philadelphia street where he will be happy to meet the good people of St. Johns with all kinds of "Yankee Notions" as his line of goods were called in the old days 'befo' de wa'." He carries a fine line and our people should see him before buying.

Children's books are now to be had at the free library. A lot of other new books have been received and the librarian informs us that the patronage of the library is increasing, which speaks well for our people. It is a true maxim that "A reading people is a thinking people."

Another illustrated service will be given at the Congregational church Sunday evening—the fourth in the series, and a fine one. There will be three beautifully songs. The usual services will be conducted at the morning hour. A seat and welcome for all. G. W. Nelson, pastor.

The mother's department of the W. C. T. U. held a meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. Scott, this week, at which a short talk was given on the subject, "The story of life and how to teach it to the young," followed by a short discussion. Tea was then served by the genial hostess, which closed a pleasant and profitable afternoon for those in attendance.

Rev. G. W. Nelson is preparing to give a course of five illustrated lectures at the Congregational church; the first will be on the subject—"Yellowstone National Park" and will be given Wednesday evening, November 20. It will be illustrated with over eighty magnificent slides. Season tickets for the five attractions will be—$1 for adults, 75c for students and 50c for children.

Hood River's popular jeweler, W. F. Laraway was down yesterday and four old Hood Riverites met on a corner coming from different directions and began discussing the annexation of Portland to Hood River; but we coaxed them out of the notion as being useless, as all the good people of Hood River were coming to St. Johns as fast as they could sell out.

"Will the Old Book Stand?" the second of the series of evening subjects will be considered at the United Evangelical church next Sunday evening. In the morning service the subject will be addressed to "The Suffering Church;" the second number of the series on the "Letters to the Churches of Asia." All are most cordially invited to attend these services. Chester P. Gates, pastor.

Just like our city executive, after we had him doing a presidential stunt between here and the north pole, and just when we thought he was potting a polar bear and we were figuring on getting a fine steak for advertising his Rooseveltian strenuities and before the ink was cold on the paper his honor turns up at home and declares he never even saw an ice berg. Wouldn't that jar you?

W. A. Crosby, an old time friend of H. G. Ogdin, R. W. McKeon and other old Hawkeyes from Mason City is in the city. His home is now at Bull Run, Oregon. His son is contractor in charge of the construction of the Mount Hood Electric railroad. Mr. Crosby is greatly pleased with Oregon and will probably make his permanent home at some place in the state. We hope he may find it profitable and pleasant to locate in St. Johns.

Yesterday two ladies in a neat rig drove up Jersey street and attempted to drive west on Tacoma street but got stuck in the duck pond that is located there. This street has been ordered improved and would have been done by this time, perhaps, if it had not been for our governor getting on the anxious seat and putting everybody on a holiday. If he don't give us a legal working day soon, some measure should be taken to abate this nuisance for it is a disgrace to the city and there are others just as bad, we are told.

UNIVERSITY PARK

The sad news was received here Sunday noon of the sudden death of Charles Perry of Houlton, Ore., brother of Mrs. J. C. Brous of this place. Mr. Perry was subject to heart trouble and it is supposed that a sudden attack of that caused his death. Mr. and Mrs. Brous are well known in this community and we are sure they have the sincere sympathy of their many friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Briggs of Carlton, Ore., came down Sunday for a brief visit with relatives and friends. Mr. Briggs left Sunday evening, Mrs. Briggs returning Monday.

Several parties were given here on Halloween. One was given by the young people of the Methodist church and one by the young people of the Baptist church.

Ralph Reynolds went to Carlton Monday afternoon on business.

The Last Roll Call.

Another old veteran has answered to his last roll call. Taps has been sounded and he has turned in to await the bugle call of reveille on the day of the great muster of the quick and the dead before the great commander of the universe.

E. S. Bramwell, born April 29, 1836 at Augusta, Ohio, entered the service of his country in the great war of the rebellion on the 5th day of August 1861 as private in Co. "B", regiment, 10th Iowa infantry; was discharged the 20th day of December 1864 as first lieutenant Co. "H" 9th Iowa infantry by reason of expiration of service. Died November 4, 1907, aged 71 years. He joined General Compton's Post No. 22, Department of Oregon G. A. R., on the 7th day of September 1907 by transfer from General Sumner Post No. 12 G. A. R. in which post he had been long a faithful member.

He left to mourn his departure his faithful wife to whom he was wedded before the war, five sons, three daughters, 23 grand children and three great grandchildren, all of whom were present at the funeral services.

This is the very briefest possible summary of the life of one of the noble old heroes who made a bulwark of his breast between his country, his home and loved ones and their enemies during that time. It says nothing of bivouac and battle, of field and foray, of long weary marches and tedious aggravating sieges, of sickness, exposure and wounds, of the friendships cemented so strongly during those three years of bitter warfare that they will reach into the great beyond, where there shall be no more wars or rumors of war. All of these things have been recorded by a hand whose record is true and whose reward is in his hand to reward every man according to his works and we know that He is faithful to do all that he promises.

Why, then, should we grieve for the departed? We know he is in better hands than ours. Let us rather glory in his life of patriotism and faithfulness, emulate his example and honor his memory. We can do this in no way that would please him better than to uphold and enforce the laws of the country he fought to save, give all honor and praise to those of his comrades he left behind, for their patriotic devotion with him in the common cause, and this is the very least that we can afford to do if we claim to be citizens with a spark of patriotism in our hearts. These old heroes will not be with us long. Rapidly their ranks are being thinned. Let us show them the honor and affection while they yet live that is due the preservers of the very existence of our nation.

Cochran's What is It?

Sam Cochran carries the belt as a fisherman. One day this week he took a trip up the raging Clackamas with rod and line and landed some half dozen fine salmon. Then just to show what he could do he hooked and landed the daddy of all the salmon of the Clackamas river. He weighed 30 pounds, is slim as a razor back pig, so old that he has lost all but his "canine" teeth, looks to be half devil, half fish, is ugly as a mud fence, and Sam drew a long breath of relief when he landed the specimen and found it couldn't run on land. The fish is hanging in Bennett's meat market and is worth going to see. It is evidently one of last year's chinook salmon that got lost in the shuffle.

The municipal court had nothing startling to report this week. A regular run of plain drunks being about the only crop harvested. This source of revenue was just about keeping even with the expenses of the court. Last month the fines amounted to $105.
