Cook in Comfort
You no longer need wear yourself out with the weakening heat of an intensely hot kitchen. You can cook in comfort. Here is a stove that gives NO outside heat. All its heat is concentrated at the burners. An intense blue flame (hotter than either white or red) is thrown upwards but not around. All the heat is utilized in cooking—none is outside heating.

New Perfection Oil Cook-stove entirely removes the discomfort of cooking. Apply a match and immediately the stove is ready. Instantly an intense heat is projected upwards against the pot, pan, kettle or boiler, and yet there is NO surrounding heat—NO smell—NO smoke.

Why? Because the New Perfection Oil Cook-stove is scientifically and ingeniously constructed. You cannot get a match lit in it accidentally. You get the maximum heat—no smoke. The burner is simple, one-piece with a cloth clean it—consequently there is no smell.

The New Perfection Oil Cook-stove is wonderful for preservation, but especially in summer. Its heat operates upward to pan, pot, or kettle, but not beyond or around. It is useless for heating a room.

It has a Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping plates and food hot.

It has long suspension-like enamel chimneys. The nickel finish, with the bright blue of the chimneys, makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

If you desire a stove that is not at once, write for FREE LITERATURE and the name of the nearest agent.

Not Mr. McChants.
Scotch Highlanders, who still speak the Gaelic at times, settled much of the country north of Toronto. One day Dr. Rutherford, locally famous, was looking for some men to do some work for him. He went to a village blacksmith shop and found several of these Scotchmen standing about.
"Are you a mechanic?" he asked one of them.
"No," he replied. "I'm a McCaug."

Almost a Failure.
"Doctor, you operated on that patient in No. 49, didn't you?"
"Yes."
"Make a successful job of it?"
"No, I didn't. The operation was dia gnostically simple and the man wasn't in the slightest danger at any time. The elaborate preparations I had made for handling a critical case were wholly wasted."
—Chicago Tribune.

With the Eyes of Faith.
"Dr. Fourthly, don't you believe the time is coming when the words shall be beaten into plowshares and the spears into pruning hooks, and men shall learn war no more?"
"Indeed I do, Brother Millasp."
"But when?"
"About the time when that other prophecy is fulfilled—and then shall the end come."—Chicago Tribune.

Spring-Cleaning
The Human System Needs It.
Mrs. M. Morgan, 411 4th Ave. E. Brainerd, Minn., writes: "I take from one to two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla in the spring to purify the blood just as regularly as I do my house-cleaning, and go around light-footed and light-hearted. I believe it is the best blood purifier known."
Hood's Sarsaparilla combines the curative principles of roots, barks and herbs as to raise them to their highest efficiency; hence its unequalled cures. Get it today in usual liquid form or tablets called Sarsaparilla.

Three Years Behind the Guns is to be put into embossed type for the blind. This is the story of the experiences of a runaway sailor lad on the Olympia and it was of this book that Admiral Dewey wrote the publishers: "I can vouch for many of the facts, and the description of the battle of Manila Bay is one of the best I have ever seen published." A curious fact in connection with this book is that it was written by a woman who didn't see the battle, but wrote the story as her runaway sailor son told it to her.

A half correspondent of the London Athenaeum writes a long letter to that journal in the hope of recovering his copy of the early poems of George Meredith, which he left at St. George's in 1857. "It so happens that I have five copies of this notable little volume. At this moment I have my hand upon two copies of the book. One of them I lent to Meredith about the time of his second marriage. He asked for the loan of it to read to his new wife during their honeymoon. When he gave it me back I was obliged to have it bound."

The new biography of the French Republican, Gambetta, compiled by a relative of his, M. P. Ghesel, has been published in England under the title "Gambetta: Life and Letters." The work is largely made up of letters to and from his relatives and intimates. It is a very voluminous correspondence left by Gambetta, and treasured by his own circle, now rapidly growing smaller and smaller, enables us to follow the patriot's career from his entry into the humble seminary at Cahors kept by priests until his sudden death.

In a little book, "The Education of the Child," Ellen Key attacks vigorously some common mistakes made by parents. She says: "A grown man would become insane if joking Titans treated him for a single day as a child is treated for a year. A child should be just as courteously addressed as a grown person, in order that he may learn courtesy. A child should never be pushed into notice, never compelled to endure carresses, never overwhelmed with kisses, which ordinarily torment him and are often the cause of sexual hyperaesthesia. Nor should the child be forced to express regret in begging pardon and the like, which is excellent training for hypocrisy."

At a settlement located on the East Side in New York a mothers' meeting is held Wednesday afternoons. There mothers of various nationalities, of greater or less familiarity with the English tongue, and in different degrees of assimilation to the ideals of their new country, are served with tea and cakes, helped with their sewing, and furnished with hints as to the proper upbringing of their children—hints sometimes carried out on extraordinary lines.

A worker from the settlement, paying calls in a populous tenement, on reaching the two rooms occupied by a recently arrived Italian family found her ears assailed by childish howls of anguish.
"Les-a, signorina, me—I weep Anglo—hard!" explained the mother of the family, who for a month or so had been a regular attend at the Wednesday afternoons. "I go on the meeting at your house—I not let a my kids say bad-a word, I bring-a up my kids all-a right. Angelo sceng-a low song-a—bad-a word in hoem, vera bad-a word! I weep Anglo vera mooch."
And then the worker from the settlement found a serious task of explanation on her hands; for, probing the matter, she discovered that the "low song-a" containing the "bad-a word," which had brought poor Angelo to grief, was none other than "Nearer, My God, to Thee!"

WASH'T A PANHANDLER.
Merchant So Used to Them He Is Called an Acquaintance.

A Broadway business man was walking down that sunny but much-panhandled avenue after luncheon yesterday afternoon wondering what sort of a plea the next temporarily embarrassed stranger would offer. During his ten-block walk, the New York Times asserts, he had been asked to buy two "gold" rings, furnish carfare to an alleged Brooklynite, and help a fourth unfortunate to reach some point in the distant West.

While he was swinging unobtrusively along in the midst of his brown study some one came up, and grasped him with affectionate firmness by the elbow.
"What is a fellow to do with a canary bird when he isn't going home until 6 o'clock?" he heard himself asked. The business man turned and saw a not over well-dressed young man carrying a newspaper-wrapped birdcage. Rather impatiently he jerked his elbow clear of the affectionate young man's grasp.
"I'm sure I don't know, friend. Go and talk to some one else about it," he answered wearily.

A sudden and rather violent change came over the young man's face—not at all, however, the kind of change which the business man had expected. He grew quite scarlet with resentment. His eyes glared fiercely at the startled business man. Pugnaciously he half raised the hand which the business man had thrown off.
"Why, you idiot! Aren't you So-and-So?" mentioning the business man's name. "Can't a fellow even speak to you when he sees you?" he ejaculated wrathfully. The young man hurried off, brandishing the birdcage like a weapon. He was evidently filled with all the unforfeiting emotions. Before disappearing around the corner of a side street he threw back a final challenge.

It then dawned on the somewhat dazed business man that he had been introduced to the birdcage stranger at a meeting of some kind of a fraternal order a year or so ago.

SYSTEM OF A DINING CAR.
Every Inch of Space in Its Little Kitchen is Economized.
The kitchen of a dining car is a striking example of what can be done in economizing space. Every inch is used.

Water tanks are suspended from the ceiling. One wall is lined with the big range and heating ovens, while on the other are storage boxes, receptacles for pans, pots and other utensils, and a row of cupboards up under the ceiling.

At one end, between the kitchen and the dining car proper, is a little pantry which serves as a sort of vestibule. That is where the waiters place their orders and receive dishes.

Every separate article of food and equipment has its place, says the Woman's Home Companion. Every corner and nook in the car has a particular function. The silver is in one place, the milk and cheese in another, the meat in another, and so on through the list. Everything perishable is kept in a refrigerator.

While the car is in action the conductor from his position between the dining room and kitchen keeps his eyes upon the ten tables and endeavors to see that none of the diners is neglected. For all the supplies on the car he is held to strict account. On his trip sheet, as it is called, is put a list of everything taken on the car when it starts out. A record of all articles sold is entered upon the sheet, and when the car comes home again all that has not been sold must be on hand.

The equipment of a dining car conforms to standards, just as do locomotives, trucks, rails and ties. Dishes are made according to established patterns, each piece of china having the company's monogram upon it. The same is true of the linen, silver, menu holders—everything. Thus a loss can be easily traced. The waiters are allowed $20 a month for breakage. All damage in excess of that, though, they have to pay for, and the cost is divided among them equally.

THE HOMEMAKER.
Man's Chivalry to the Fried Goddess of the Fireside.
As we men frequently admit, it is our chivalrous regard for women which leads us to desire that she shall confine her wholly admirable energies to the making of our home and the keeping of our houses. She is tender and frail, and so we urge that she shall not for a moment drop her role as the goddess of the household. There is nothing that so arouses our almost sacred admiration as to see our own particular goddess with a dishrag in one hand and a frying pan in the other. Let us never desert this high ideal of womanhood and its lofty purpose in life.

Particularly let us not do so because if a woman does not keep the house it will not be kept. Would we men engineer and prepare 1,095 meals in one year? Would we wash dishes 1,095 times, wipe them 1,095 times, sew, darn, mend, devote our lives to a gay monotony of treadmill effort? Not on your life! Our chivalrous regard for adored woman would not permit it. And we would go crazy within six months if we tried. I know of nothing that we should cling to more closely than this chivalrous regard for our womanhood. It saves the cost of many and many a hired girl.

I have penned this little tribute to man's chivalrous regard for woman because anybody can see that it deserves it. Woman, the housekeeper (and nothing else), the fried goddess of the fireside, the queen of her domestic domain, with a stepman for a tiara and a stove hook for a scepter, let us together pledge her, while we register our chivalrous vow that we will keep her where she is unless we men need her as a stenographer or something else, in which event our chivalrous regard may stretch a few points.—California Monthly.

Every church worker occasionally says after telling how hard she works for her preacher: "My doctor says he can't keep me well unless I give up my religion."

KASPARILLA
This sterling household remedy has long been recognized as the best and safest Blood Purifier, the most successful prescription for spring humors and such disorders of the blood as boils, pimples, pustules, blotches, sores and cutaneous eruptions. Kasparilla is admitted to be the best remedy for that lack of energy and the peculiar debility so prevalent during the close of winter and the opening of spring. For derangements of the digestive organs it is a natural corrective, operating directly upon the liver and alimentary canal, gently but persistently stimulating a healthy activity. Its beneficial influence extends, however, to every portion of the system, aiding in the processes of digestion and assimilation of food, promoting a wholesome, natural appetite, correcting sour stomach, bad breath, irregularities of the bowels, constipation and the long list of troubles directly traceable to those unwholesome conditions. Kasparilla dispels drowsiness, headache, backache and despondency due to inactivity of the liver, kidneys and digestive tract. It is a strengthening tonic of the highest value.
