W. C. T. U. ITEMS.

Mr. Maclarren of the Portland Commons spoke at the Evangelical church last Monday evening, under the auspices of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. The subject, "The Social Evil," is one in which every father and mother ought to be deeply interested. As we have a purity department in our organization, we could heartily indorse all that the speaker said, and we can freely co-operate with him in his work of lifting up fallen humanity and to do all in our power to keep others from falling.

If the voters of Multnomah county will only do their duty in November, we hope to see a great many of these awful evils cease out of our fair state.—Mrs. Scott.

Experience of a Camping Party in Yellowstone Park.

In the Yellowstone park all wild animals are allowed to roam as they will, and it is against the law to shoot them. Some of these animals have become very tame and do not look on man as an enemy. In fact, the bears seem to think the hotels built there are for their convenience, as they visit the garbage cans nightly for their meals. Even tiny chipmunks will stand and scold people as they pass by on the road, and such little thieves as they are! They live in style on grain they steal from the hotel stables.

One night a party camped near one of the pretty ravines, and, being tired from a day's tramp, they had early gone into their tents to sleep—all except the boy, who enjoyed slumbering in a sleeping bag with the stars for a roof.

Early in the night they were aroused by a noise of falling pans in the kitchen wagon. Those who were not afraid rushed out and discovered a big black bear calmly eating his supper from the provisions. Not being allowed to shoot him, one grabbed a whip, another a broom, and they flourished these weapons about. Frightened and grunting, bruin clumsily scrambled away, when suddenly there was a livelier grunting from the bear, accompanied by an unearthly yell. Mr. Bruin in his hurried flight had stepped on the unnoticed outdoor sleeper, frightening him so much that afterward he slept under the tent roof.—Detroit Free Press.

Didn't Know Beans.

A young woman was talking in a restaurant. "You see," she was saying, "it was my first experience in cooking beans. We are so fond of them I wanted to be sure and have enough, so I ordered three pounds at the corner grocer's. This looked about the right amount, and I put them on the range and left them to boil tender. When I went into the kitchen again the range was covered with beans, so was the floor, and out of the kettle poured a steady stream of beans. I took part of them out, added more water and again left them. If you'll believe it I had to take out three more large portions of beans before the original mass became manageable. So I'm not ordering beans just yet even at a restaurant."—New York Sun.

The Truce of God.

The "truce of God" was introduced by the clergy of Guienne around about the year 1030. It was adopted in Spain about 1050, in England about 1080. According to this famous treaty, a cessation of all violent quarrels was enjoined under heavy penalties during all church festivals and from every Wednesday evening until the following Monday morning. This left only about eighty days in the year available for shooting and stabbing one's neighbors. The truce seems to have accomplished much good, notwithstanding the fact that it was very imperfectly observed.—New York American.

A STORY OF BLUCHER.

The Old General Gave His Son a Lesson in Gaming.

Speaking of military men who were gamblers, Ralph Nevill in "Light Come, Light Go," after noting that Napoleon only played in an amateur way and never seriously and that the Duke of Wellington, while a member of Crockford's famous gambling club, was not particularly fond of play, goes on to relate the following about Blucher:

Another great soldier, on the other hand, repeatedly lost large sums at play. This was Blucher, who was inordinately fond of gambling. Much to his disgust, this passion was inherited by his son, who had often to be rebuked by his father for his visits to the gaming table and was given many a wholesome lecture upon his youth and inexperience and the consequent certainty of loss by coming in contact with older and more practiced gamblers.

One morning, however, young Blucher presented himself before his father and exclaimed, with an air of joy, "Sir, you said I knew nothing of play, but here is proof that you have undervalued my talents," pulling out at the same time a bag of rubles which he had won the preceding night.

"And I said the truth," was the reply. "Sit down here and I'll convince you."

The dice were called for, and in a few minutes old Blucher won all his son's money, whereupon, after pocketing the cash, he rose from the table, observing, "Now you see that I was right when I told you that you would never win."

SUSPICION JUSTIFIED.

It Was Not a Mouse the Master Heard in the Kitchen.

The late Rev. Dr. Wightman, sitting one night later than usual engrossed in the profundities of a great tome, imagined he heard a sound in the kitchen inconsistent with the cautiousness of a mouse; so, taking his candle, he proceeded to investigate the cause. His foot being heard in the passage, the servant began with much noise to rake out the fire as if preparing for bed.

"Ye're up late tonight, Mary."

"I'm jist rakin' the fire, sir, and gaun to bed."

"That's right, Mary. I like timeous hours."

On his way back to the study he passed the coal cellar door and, turning the key, took it with him. The next morning at an early hour there was a rap at his bedroom door and a request for the key to get some coal.

"Ye're up too soon, Mary. Go back to your bed."

Half an hour later there was another knock and a similar request, in order to prepare for breakfast. "I don't want breakfast so soon, Mary. Go back to your bed."

In another half hour there was another knock, with an entreaty for the key, as it was washing day.

This was enough. He rose and handed out the key, saying, "Go and let the man out." As the preacher shrewdly suspected, Mary's sweetheart had been imprisoned all night in the coal cellar.—London Family Herald.

Vanity Tickled.

During the early excesses of the French revolution a rabble of men and women were rioting in the streets of Paris. Lafayette appeared and ordered a young artillery officer to open fire upon them with two cannon. The officer begged the general to let him try first to persuade them to withdraw.

"It is useless to appeal to their reason," said the general.

"Certainly," answered the officer, "and it is not to their reason, but to their vanity, I would appeal."

The officer rode up to the front of the mob, doffed his cocked hat, pointed to the guns and said:

"Gentlemen will have the kindness to retire, for I am ordered to shoot down the rabble."

The street was cleared at once, for none could brook the idea of being classed with the scum of the city.

An Acute Sense of Taste.

William and Lawrence were in the habit of saving a part of their dessert from the evening dinner for consumption the next morning, and in accordance with this custom two small cakes had been placed in the cracker jar for them. William, being the first up on the following morning and being hungry, went to the jar. He found only one cake, and a large piece had been bitten out of that. Full of wrath, he went upstairs and roused his brother.

"Say," he demanded, "I want to know who took that big bite out of my cake!"

"I did," sleepily answered Lawrence "What'd you do that for?"

"Well, when I tasted it I found it was your cake, and so I et the other one."—Youth's Companion.

The Matter Explained.

"Why do they say 'as smart as a steel trap?'" asked the talkative boarder. "I never could see anything particularly intellectual about a steel trap."

"A steel trap is called smart," explained the elderly person in his sweetest voice, "because it knows exactly the right time to shut up."

More might have been said, but in the circumstances it would have seemed unfitting.—London Tit-Bits.

The Similarity.

"My husband is like a rooster in one respect."

"Indeed?"

"Yes; when he gets up early he crows over it."—Judge.

Right Here at the BALL of the Foot

is where most of the "pinch" comes when buying a new pair of shoes. You complain about it when trying on the ordinary shoes and the salesman says "I'll stretch it." Whenever he has to do that, look out—in a few weeks you'll find your feet running over the edges of the soles and the uppers will be leaving the soles. There must be plenty of room at the ball of the foot so that stretching to the limit of the strength of the shoe will not be necessary.

The Bradley Shoe Will Not "Pinch" Your Feet

Every pair is built with an allowance of leather at the ball of the foot which permits the foot to rest comfortably in the new shoe the first time you put it on. The linings in the Bradley Shoe will not wrinkle after a little wear, causing discomfort so common. They are cut to conform to the upper. This perfect fit even gives additional wear as it takes a great deal of strain off the leather.

Bradley Shoes for Men, $3.50—$4.00 represent the highest standard of material and workmanship—sixty-six years of continuous application to the making of a shoe that will give perfect satisfaction. We make less profit on a Bradley Shoe, but we'll be glad to sell you a pair, for once a wearer of these honest, well-made shoes, it will be hard to resist buying again, and the increased volume means not only profit but public confidence.

Bradley's are made by the Bradley & Metcalf Co., who have been makers of good shoes for 66 years. We also have other styles of their make for men, women and children.
