FRIDAY, JUNE 17, 1910

Dana Sleeth, the fire-eating editor of the Evening News, was arrested last week on the charge of assault and battery in which he attempted to whip two policemen. Newspaper men are bad "actors" sometimes when they get stirred up.

The trial of Gordon Dickey, who was indicted by the grand jury as being implicated in the Hindu fracas here, has terminated and the defendant found guilty. It was generally believed that the jury would disagree, but such was not the case. Outside of a few irregularities the trial apparently was fair and the defendant was accorded ample opportunity to defend himself. The counsel for the defense was manifestly weak, however, and Mr. Dickey might as well have conducted his own defense and saved the attorneys' hire. While the jury's finding was a disappointment and a matter of regret to the great majority of our citizens, it was fully realized that no effort would be spared on the part of the prosecution to secure a conviction. Much sympathy is expressed for Mr. Dickey and his estimable family. Like many others, he did not realize the enormity of the offence under the law he was committing when he participated in the ceremonies incident to the exodus of the children of Hindostan from St. Johns soil. While ignorance is no lawful excuse, in this case it has its extenuating points so far as the people of St. Johns are concerned. The provocation and incentive for the "outbreak" is here well appreciated and understood, and while the law may brand the participants as criminals it is unlikely that they will ever be regarded as such in the eyes of St. Johns people. No censure is directed at the jury for their verdict, nor yet to the prosecution insofar as lawful and legitimate methods were adopted to secure a conviction. Twelve men have spoken and we believe they did so

Snow on Hinduism

Editor Review: Again I say to you, I beg your pardon for encroaching upon your generosity, but having been asked by at least a score of good citizens of St. Johns my opinion in regard to the final result of the Hindu litigation, I give this, my opinion, to-wit: The Hindus of St. Johns, as of most all other cities, are here as a carload of cattle are at the stock yards of any market of the Pacific coast; they are here because a certain class of people can make money out of importation of Hindus as a stock buyer can make money on a carload of beef. Now if there were no money in shipping a carload of beef to the stockyards there would be no shipping. Now, if there were no money in shipping a cargo of Hindus to the Pacific coast there would be no Hindu shipped. Now, I regard a Hindu seeking labor in St. Johns as a stray cow pasturing upon the commons and more definitely upon the lawn of some laboring man owning the same in St. Johns.

The Hindus, in my opinion, are but cows pasturing upon the lawns and land of the working man of St. Johns as well as all other cities of the Pacific coast. Now, if a Hindu is found trespassing upon my rights as a citizen of St. Johns, the Hindu should be treated as a trespassing cow upon my lawn. I should not abuse the Hindu any more than I would abuse a trespassing cow. Now, should I for spite knock the horns off the trespassing cow, or tear her tail out by the roots, I would be guilty of cruelty to animals. Now, my opinion is this: that through the misfortune of hasty and unthoughtful spite some of our citizens are guilty of cruelty unnecessarily inflicted upon the Hindus. Notice should have been given to them to the effect that they are undesirable citizens, that their manner and mode of living is such that 25 or 40 will rent a 16x20 room, and if the weather is warm they will sleep upon the floor one deep, and if the weather is cold they will sleep two deep, and if very cold three deep, and I presume that if they turn over or change their position once every two hours that each shall share equally as to the animal heat of each other. I might as well say right here, in my opinion it is against the interest of the American laborer that the Hindu is imported. Now, in my opinion the importation of a Hindu should be the same as the importation of any foreign article, there should be a revenue collector whose duty it should be to collect the same as they would collect upon any foreign article imported, such as diamonds and costly laces, and in that event Hindu importation would greatly decrease as there would be no chance for speculation. I now say that I regret that any white man should suffer a penalty for driving these trespassers from his private lawn, yet the law must be obeyed.

Three Days in Life

BY W. W. HOLCOMB OF ST. JOHNS
There are but three short days for us in life. Filled with care and woe, pain and strife, Fleeting hopes with fears and tears, toil and strife. Named past, present and tomorrow. We saw, thought and dreamed, that was the past. We see, we sing, we live and act today The never coming tomorrow, the last. Will never change its name or come this way. Let us all have our share of life today While up and down the rugged road we go; Fill our mission in life, smile and be gay. Tomorrow will always be tomorrow. Take from me that fragrant flower called Hope, And give the rose of science, reason and Truth. May it be my guide down life's western slope, And yours through life to the fountain of youth. Forced into life without our consent, Forced on through it with a load of care, Forced out of it without a guide or cent, And on through the trackless realms of air. The soul grows weary of us, and this life Casts us off by nature's common law, To wander where without a friend or wife, Through endless space no mortal ever saw.

Now, if it appears on trial that our citizens have treated these trespassers cruelly, they will have to abide the consequences; although I regret the same. The law must be obeyed, is the opinion I offer the public, let the consequences fall where and on whom they may.

W. O. W. Initiate Good Class

There were doin's among the good neighbors of Camp 773 W. O. W. Wednesday evening, beginning at "early candle lightin'" and extending to a close squeak of the next day. There were a number of distinguished visitors present among whom were noted: Neighbor Samson, C. C. and Neighbor Clarno, Advisor of Prospect camp; Neighbor Reidt, P. C. of Webfoot camp, and Neighbor N. Holdman, Watchman of Multnomah camp, all of whom made rousing addresses full of wit and good cheer at speakin' time, inspired partly by the class of eight husky initiates they assisted in perfecting in the mysteries of Woodcraft, and also through the agency of the delicious ice cream and cake that was provided by the local camp. Of the speakers Neighbor Johnson gave an interesting talk, which certainly must have been right in his line, being a wood butcher by vocation and a preacher by avocation. The work was most excellently performed by the uniform rank team of Prospect camp. The neighbors assure us they had one of the very best of their many good times.
