

Supplement to the St. Johns Review August 18, 1911

Multnomah Theatre

In spite of the fact that the new Multnomah Theatre has a vastly greater capacity than the old Electric yet every seat was taken and many waited on the sidewalk outside on its opening Tuesday night. The new house is certainly a beauty. Costly, substantial, well finished, roomy and comfortable, it is one of the finest moving picture theatres on the coast. That the people of St. Johns appreciate a first-class theatre is evidenced by the attendance. The exits in the rear are wider than any in Portland, and a crowded house could empty in a few minutes in case of fire. The woodwork is beautiful, the seats up-to-date and comfortable, and the exterior is a work of art highly attractive. It must be seen to be fully appreciated. Gus Sallmond, the owner of the theatre, and Manager Ole Nelson, who have used their utmost endeavors in securing such a satisfactory theatre are to be congratulated upon their enterprise. Bickner Bros. also come in for a share of praise in constructing such a magnificent structure, which is a delight to the patrons and an ornament to the city. While we are passing out the bouquets, we wish to toss a roseate one to the Olympia Four, the male quartet who sang during the evening. Harry Fasset, Ben Lee, Fred Samples and Mr. Waldenberg. Their singing was the richest musical treat heard in St. Johns for many a day. The four voices were most harmoniously blended, evenly balanced, rich, mellow and of powerful volume, creating a veritable avalanche of melody. The tremendous encore attested to their merit.

On July 31 five young ladies met at the home of Mrs. Scott to organize a temperance club for young people. The officers were elected and a date set for the next meeting. On August 5th eighteen members were enrolled, and at the next meeting the members numbered twenty-one. The club meets at the homes of the members and a social time is enjoyed after the business meeting. The object is to unite the young people of this community for the promotion of total abstinence and purity. The next regular meeting will be held at the home of Miss Lulu Magone Monday evening next at 8 o'clock. All young people are urgently requested to come and join.

The Progressive association met last night—too late for details in this issue.

Library Notes

Open Hours: 2:30 to 5:30 and 7 to 9:30 p. m.

As announced last week, there will be an exhibition of model aeroplanes, made by St. Johns boys, at the St. Johns reading room during the week beginning Monday, Aug. 28th. Judges have been appointed and information as to points to be considered maybe secured at the reading room. It is hoped that all the boys will bring in their models whether they wish to try for honors or not, for the simplest model will be interesting and helpful to those who have never tried to make them.

The other reading rooms throughout the suburbs of Portland are open only half-time during the month of August but on account of the large attendance, the St. Johns reading room will observe the usual hours.

The Christian Science Sentinel is now received at the reading room through the kindness of the Christian Science Society. New books are being added weekly and it will not be long until new cases will be needed.
LIBRARIAN.

Misses Margaret and Nettie Summers of Missoula, Mont., are guests of Postmaster Monahan this week. They favored this office with a very pleasant call yesterday, chaperoned by the genial P. M.

International Bible Student Services at 1121 South Gresham street at 7:45 p. m. Discourse by William A. Baker; subject, "Is the Seventh Day the Christian Sabbath? If not why not? What is the authority for keeping the First Day?"

Ye editor anticipates leaving tomorrow with his family for a week's sojourn near a good fishing hole he has been made cognizant of in Washington state. The editorial reins will be turned over to D. N. Byerlee during his absence. If any one has any kicks coming, please kick Mr. Byerlee—he is bigger than we.

50 acres uncleared land also 15 acres cleared and improved land for St. Johns or Portland property or will sell on easy terms. See owner 114 East Burlington.

G. L. Perrine, the irrepressible socialistic councilman, left this morning for Castle Rock, Wash., on business.

Angela May Coming

To get a comic opera star from the "Great White Way" New York city to appear in St. Johns, is hardly to be expected. Mr. Ole Nelson, manager of the new Multnomah theatre has through his powers of theatrical influence secured Angela May, the musical star, to appear for one week at the beautiful new theatre, and give her comic opera and musical comedy successes. It's To Laugh, is the motto of the this Broadway favorite and the patrons of the Multnomah will have a musical comedy treat for the regular price. The gowns worn by Angela May are a treat to the feminine eye and a puzzle to mere man. Her voice is pure contralto, is as powerful as it is true, and her songs reach the hearts of her listeners. The Oregonian said the "musical comedy of the week was Angela May." Suppose it does cost a lot of monet to get her, Mr. Nelson says there is nothing too good for St. Johns and his patrons. Angela May will begin Monday, Aug. 21st.

J. Louis McEvoy, Lyric Comedian.