CAMELS IN A RAGE.

Animals Fight Like Fury.

The usually patient and submissive camel, like the proverbial worm, will sometimes resent an overdose of abuse. Too dense to think of a way in which be can outwit his driver and so dable teeth and powerful jaws do seri- living as a street singer." ous damage.

Of this vindictiveness the camel driver is aware and of the certainty revenge. Accordingly it is enstomery for the person who fears his malice to throw his clothes before the camel, meanwhile hiding himself until the animal's fury has been expended in tossing and tramping on them, when the injury, real or supposed, is at once forgotten.

The camel will not identify himself with his driver or rider in the smallest way whatever. He steadily declines all advances. His eye never lights up with love or even interest at the approach of his master. Should you attempt to pat or caress him he will object in a very decided manner.

Good treatment or bad makes no dif ference to the camel. Life and its hard conditions are taken for granted His view of things is far too serious He is so absorbed and preoccupied that he has no time to waste in the gambols indulged in by all other young animals.-Harper's Weekly.

Story of a Nail Keg.

A bundred years ago Jeremiah Atwater was a leading New Haven mer chant, buying his supplies in Boston and receiving them by vesset. Among other goods received were several casks of nails, one of which on open ing it under a layer of nalls at each end was found to be filled with sliver dollars. Mr. Atwater, who was a conscientious man, immediately wrote to the Boston merchant that there must be some mistake in the invoice of nalls, as one of the casks contained other articles besides nails. He was promptly informed that the nalls were bought for nails, soid for nails and nails they must be. Forthwith Mr. Atwater had a basin made of the sil ver and presented it to the Center church, where it has been used in the baptismal service from that time to the present.

Art and Nature. Art is the revelation of man, and not merely that, but likewise the reveiation of nature speaking through man Art pre-exists in nature, and nature is reproduced in art. As vapors from the ocean floating landward and dissolved in rain are carried back to rivers to the ocean, so thoughts and the semblances of things that fall upon the soul of man in showers flow out again in fiving streams of art and lose themselves in the great occun, which is nature. Art and nature are not. then, discordant, but ever harmonious ly working in each other.-Longfel iow's "Hyperion."
