STATEMENT NO. 1

TO OUR CUSTOMERS:

Having learned from a wide experience in handling high-grade drugs that extensively advertised patent medicines are sometimes low grade recipes, cheaply combined, and knowing that the big patent medicine concerns are compelled to spend so much money advertising their articles that the quality of their prescriptions is frequently reduced to make them profitable, we have endeavored to do justice to our patrons by selecting a few special prescriptions for general use. Each of these is prepared from the highest grade drugs, and meets our ideals of really meritorious medicine. It takes good drugs to produce good results, just as it takes good workmanship and good materials to build a first-class house, and as a really fine house requires an experienced architect to draw the plans and supervise, so does a good prescription require extensive trial and a wide medical knowledge. Each preparation listed below as "money-back" goods we know have been tried out and proven for years in the hands of physicians and patients, and we assure the users that good results may be expected:

The city dads surely did right when they passed a resolution requiring contractors to secure crushed rock for streets from Whitwood quarry. That was the very purpose the city rock crusher was purchased for in the first place. The price is made as low as good rock can be mined and quarried for. Why shouldn't contractors patronize the municipal quarry? All bids are based on the price set at quarry. If rock could be secured cheaper elsewhere the engineer's estimate would be based on a cheaper price and contractors would not be the gainers. A comparison of prices before the city purchased an outfit and the price paid now is sufficient proof that it was a wise and economic move on the part of the city. Rock of a better quality for street purposes does not "grow" in spite of competing companies' claims to the contrary.
