The proof-reader on a small middle western daily was a woman of great precision and extreme propriety. One day a reporter succeeded in getting into type an item about "Willie Brown, the boy who was burned in the West End by a live wire." On the following day the reporter found on his desk a trigrid note asking, "Which is the west end of a boy?" It took only an instant to reply—"The end the son sets on, of course."—Ladies' Home Journal.
