woolen mill in St. Johns would put the women out of employment:

One of the grandest things about socialism is that it would guarantee to women steady employment at wages that would render them economically independent of the male.

Yes, if socialism should come about all at once, (which it cannot, but must come gradually) some people who have no useful occupation, but have to live by their with exploiting the work of others, might have to do manual labor. But it wouldn't hurt them. And there are thousands of professional and small business men struggling to make ends meet, who would glory in the opportunity to do manual labor provided they could be guaranteed the full social product of their labor and a job always open.

And they would sleep sounder at night, and go a-fishing on Saturday afternoon, and take a vacation to the coast and not be compelled to worry their lives out for fear they might miss an opportunity to beat some other poor fellow out of a job or do a good business deal.

"Who will be compelled to do disagreeable work?" Nobody will be compelled to do anything. The government will be compelled to offer such hours and wages for disagreeable work as will attract applicants, and the easy jobs command the least pay. When too many applicants ask for one kind of work the pay will be slightly reduced. and vice versa.

As to details, will the editor give us the detaits of the next four years? Maybe Taft, maybe Roose velt, Wilson (Woodrow, or J Stitt, socialist), Clark, Harmon, La Follette or Bryan. Confidence is much Boston disturbed for want of details. When our fathers threw off the British Colorado Springs. 55.00 yoke did they have in mind the de- Denver tails of the new government? When we throw off the capitalist yoke we shall not form a new government and its details need not be essentially changed. We would just merely extend its power to include industries. What details would you have concerning the government management of railroads more than you see in the government management of the mail business? Details may differ in different localities as they do now in our school . system.

The essential point upon which + all agree is that these things must . not be left to the profit and graft of private institutions. And socialists merely insist that there is no better reason why any industry should be.

"What objection have we to religion and the churches?" Well, * well! There is the Rev. J. Stitt Wilson, socialist mayor of Berkeley, Cal., and prominently mentioned for presidential candidate. And⁴ ************************
