New Industry in St. Johns

One of the immediate results of the activities of the Commercial club is the organization of an institution which will mean employment for some 25 or 30 of our people, and as the business expands this number will be largely increased. It is hoped this is the beginning of a boom in industrial expansion such as St. Johns deserves and is capable of caring for.

Keep Eggs From Spoiling

Directions for using Silicate of Soda: Boil the water and let it cool. To each gallon of Egg-Keep to be used add ten gallons of boiled water in any clean receptacle of wood, tin, galvanized iron or earthenware; then stir the solution thoroughly in order to put all the different ingredients into circulation. Put the eggs in the solution carefully, either with the hands or with a strainer. You can place the eggs in position, or you can let them settle to suit themselves. Care must be taken to use only good eggs. Be sure that the eggs are completely covered. If any float take them out. You can put in as many eggs at one time as can be completely covered, or you can put in a few each day as you get them. Leave the eggs in the solution until ready for the market. When you want to sell them, take them out and lay them on something to dry. When the tops are dry turn them over so as to allow the under sides to dry. Care should be taken not to lay eggs on anything that will stick to them while drying, as you are liable to break the shells when pulling the eggs loose. They will stick to glass, steel, wire or iron. They will not stick to wood. Boards especially with grooves in them, have been found particularly satisfactory for the purpose.

Rev. Patton at Waldport

Editor Review: Mrs. Patton, the two boys and I arrived in Waldport without mishap at 11 a. m., July 24. The trip was full of interest every mile of the way. Fine methods of conveyance were experienced on the trip—street car and steam railway, steam ferry, gasoline launch, stage and finally crossing Alsea bay on a scow driven by a small gasoline launch. Waldport has between 400 and 500 population, is situated on Alsea bay about a mile from the bar. The people find plenty of employment fishing for salmon, trapping crabs, laboring in saw mill and dairying. There are two salmon canneries, one on each side of the bay. The crabs are shipped to Portland, Seattle and other markets. Crabs bring only 50c a dozen here and only the largest sizes in good condition at that. Crabs are always cooked before being shipped, as they die soon after being taken from the water. Only live crabs are purchased by the shippers. There is quite a large area of tide land about the bay that will in the near future furnish an immense pasturage for cattle. The creamery is situated in town and the cream from the ranches is delivered by gasoline launches. Most of the butter is marketed in Portland. During the coming week a number of us expect to take a launch to the head of tide water and enjoy whipping the Alsea river and its tributaries for mountain trout. Some of the anglers are making good catches well up the streams. This trip will permit me to see all the upper valley of which so much is told here.

Council Proceedings

All members were present at the council meeting Tuesday evening, except Alderman Hill. Mayor Muck presiding. The police were granted vacations on conditions that vacations be taken one at a time, the remaining patrolmen working overtime so as not to reduce the force on duty, on motion of Mr. Valentine; Davis no, all others yes. Communications from Gillen-Chambers conveying $50; from A. S. Benson with $350; Peter Autzen, $100; all to be used to pay excess of costs in the hardsurfing of Dawson street were received. Communication from Mr. Whitcomb requesting adjustment of approach to Fessenden street at xing of Mohawk with that street. After thorough discussion the matter was referred to the chairman of street committee with power to act in all cases of this kind, excavations not to exceed 15 feet in width on motion of Alderman Martin; all yes. Several assignments of contract on Burlington streets referred to city attorney motion of Mr. Horsman. The following bills allowed, motion of Mr. Valentine, all yes: J. Sterling, street work, $15; Blackmore street work, $13.75; R. McIntire, street work, $2.75; Wilton, street work, $16.25; Whittle, street work, $10; Jas. Bailey, street work, $11.50; Geo. W. Warner, road roller, $10.27; Peninsula Hdw. Co. sweeping comp. $4.50; S. Rambo, dock watch, etc., $20; Port. Ry. L. & P. Co. lights city dock, $11.70; Thos. Carroll, Eng. Insp. $36; City of St. Johns, assess't on Phil street, $73.68; Kilham Staty. Co. supplies, $55.65; St. Johns Review, printing, $146.90; Fairbanks M. & Co., mach'y, $150.45; Nevison, prisoners' meals, $5.82; M. F. Loy, rent, $14; T. Jonson, eng chairman $32.50; St. Johns Planning mill, seats, $7. Total, $617.72. Improvement of Polk street accepted, motion Ald. Horsman. Willamette boulevard came up for its usual display of oratory. The plaintiff in the action contending that the case was settled and wanting to declare all bets off. Attorney Perkins declared the decision of the circuit court was simply a referring of the case to the supreme court where the matter would eventually have to go, and that it would be more economical for the city to take it there now than to wait until another suit is brought, which will be as soon as any effort is made to improve the boulevard as it now stands. He offered to present the case to the higher court without any charges on his part and guaranteed the cost of appeal would not exceed $125 while if this should be allowed to go by default and a new case started it would cost the city $500 or $600. Alderman Horsman moved that Mr. Perkins be authorized to proceed with the action of appeal, but the motion received no second, the other side asking for another week's delay that their attorney, who was absent might appear for them before the council. After wrangling for more than an hour it was decided on motion of Alderman Hiller, to hold the matter over for one week. Plans and specifications for a sewer on Fillmore street was presented by the engineer and adopted on motion of Alderman Hiller. Resolution concerning sewer connections on Fillmore street, adopted on motion of Alderman Valentine. Resolution condemning property on Dawson street was adopted on motion of Ald. Valentine. Ordinance adopting and prescribing form of improvement bonds made final passage on motion of Alderman Valentine. Resolution providing for the hard surfacing of Fillmore street was adopted on motion of Alderman Hiller. This was strenuously opposed by Alderman Horsman on ground that it would be working too great a hardship on the property holders to have the sewer and hard surfacing assessments come at the same time and also that the traffic on Fillmore did not warrant the expense. Resolution providing time and manner of improving Hartman street was adopted on motion of Alderman Valentine. The 61st anniversary of the Rebekah lodge I. O. O. F., by order of the Sovereign Grand Master will be observed September 20, 1912. It is expected our enterprising Rebekahs will observe the day with their usual thoroughness. When the Rebekahs of St. Johns undertake a proposition, it is never anything but a success.

Firemens' Annual Fete

Our husky fire laddies pulled off their fifth annual barbecue Sunday, on the bank of the river near the Woolen Mill. The day was fine, the boys were all in a happy frame of mind, the feast was par excellence and a very pleasant time was enjoyed by all who attended. The piece de resistance was a chicken Mulligan compounded, decocted and perpetrated by that noted Chef, Col. Mitchell, late of the U. S. A., and who applied all his fancy kinks he has gathered in his wide experience among the natives of the Luzon, Mindanao, Leyte and Samar, to say nothing of the tips in the art he received while hobnobbing with the caterers to the South'n Ge'men of Hati, Cuba, and the Isle of Pines, where the preparation of the genus gallus for the festal board has been advanced to the rank of the fine arts. It is needless to say the Mulligan was the best that has been brewed in Uncle Sam's domain since the year 1. There were 42 good, fat cacklers in its makeup besides all the condiments, "sediments" and accessories which go to make a royal Mulligan. Our record of heraldry does not declare origination of the Mulligan, but it was a horse-hold word away back when good old Brian Boru made things so interesting for the invaders of his happy little isle of emerald hue. Tales are told of how the great Brian Boru would don his armor, fill up on Mulligan, mount his war horse, go out single handed, cut out 100 or more doughty knights from the ranks of his enemies, run into his own camp as a buckaroo in these degenerate days would round up a band of mavericks. Then he would seat them in the camp dining tent and feed them on Mulligan, when after the feast every man-jack of them would swear allegiance to Brian Boru, so that no army could stand before him. This in a measure accounts for the success of our fire fighters, that they never fail to make good if they are called to a fire in time so that there is anything left but smoke and ashes, for all of them eat Mulligan. Neither has the Mulligan deteriorated with age, but like the Rhenish wines of the 17th century, it adds to its palatableness as the years go by, and the chefs scour the high seas as their mothers do their dish-pans, inside and out, to acquire every attribute to a royal Mulligan. Yes, our boys eat Mulligan. They ate it Sunday. How they ate it! they ate until, well, one said "I just can't eat any more, the good chicken fat is oozing out at the corners of my eyes." Then they quit. The city fathers and others to the number of about 100 were in attendance and all fared alike. Two ball game were pulled off, one by two teams of firemen, but the scorer, the reporter for the Telegram, was so full of Mulligan that he was unable to say whether the score was 2 to 2 or 20 to 20, but he was sure it was a tie. Barney was ump, and his rulings were as unique as original and kept the spectators in a happy mood. The second game between the single men and the married men resulted in a score of 5 to 4 in favor of the benefactors. The fire boys were determined to maintain the strictest good order and went prepared to maintain the same, having appointed five or six special police for the occasion; but as useless as would have been a Red Cross ambulance at a kindergarten. Everybody was on an especially good behavior, not the least indication of rowdiness. The specials looked so lonesome and forlorn that a kangaroo court was organized with the ubiquitous Barney as judge. Some of his decisions were as mirth provoking as those of the famous Irish justice of humorous fame. Barney was succeeded by "Slats," another humorous judge whose surname we were unable to learn. So the game went on until, as one of our "city" papers facetiously remarked "they adjourned lest the guests should get lost in the weeds going home." There are no weeds in the little village up the Willamette, we are told, because the soil is so poor they will thrive. This is probably a provincialism, however. It is conceded by all that this annual of our debonaire fire laddies far outshined that of any previous like event in the history of the organization in point of excellence. May the boys live to enjoy many anniversaries of the occasion.

Rare I.O.O.F. Relic

A very rare and fine relic of the early days of Odd Fellowship was revealed the first of the week, when R. W. McKeon presented Pascal Hill with two pieces of regalia in use 75 to 80 years or more ago. The articles in question consists of a past grand's apron made of cream colored silk, bearing in gold leaf the emblems of the order, and trimmed with a border of scarlet silk about 3/4 of an inch wide, mounted with silver braid. A scarlet colored silk cord with tassels was attached. The other article was the regulation collar, made of the same material and mounted with three large stars of silver braid in bold relief, in the center of each of which is set an amethyst. The workmanship is perfect, and, although the regalia is of great age, it is in a good state of preservation. Mr. Hill proposes to have it pressed and framed in a style worthy of it and then loan it to Laurel lodge for a time that all the brothers may have an opportunity to see it. The regalia was presented to the Robert McKeon, father of R. W., by his uncle, Robert McKeon, great uncle of R. W., more than 60 years ago, at Cleveland, Ohio. Mr. McKeon says when his father and mother went to Cleveland the rails had not yet reached that point and that they traveled by canal packet boat, where the horses that pulled the boat were made to trot instead of being allowed to walk as was the case with heavy freight boats. It was considered a speedy, and most desirable means of travel in those days. Mr. McKeon says at the time his father left New York state for Cleveland there were but three Odd Fellows known to be in the entire state of Ohio. He doesn't know how long his great uncle had the regalia before giving it to his father when he became an Odd Fellow, but thinks it was a long term of years, and that the relic must be about 75 or 80 years old. There are very few if any such old, well preserved and beautiful specimen in existence of the regalia of those early days, and Mr. Hill is to be congratulated upon its acquisition.

A Review of Reviews

(Issue of December 23, 1904.—J. H. Crome, editor.)

The following permanent officers were elected by the St. Johns Volunteer Fire Department: President, Dr. W. W. Hicks; fire chief, M. F. Tufts; secretary, L. F. Chase; treasurer, W. H. King.

Mrs. Isabella Wuddle died at her home in this city at two o'clock Thursday morning, lacking only a few weeks of being 81 years old. The surviving members of the family are Mrs. P. T. Smith, Mrs. Z. M. Knight, W. W. Windle, Mrs. F. M. Frazier, J. C. John and J. A. Windle. She came to Oregon in 1852, and settled on a farm on the Columbia Slough, where they remained until sixteen year ago, when they settled in St. Johns.

The M. W. of A. have elected the following officers: C. D. Edwards, past consul; H. E. Knight, consul; C. F. Bailey, advisor; L. C. Butt, banker; G. I. Thompson, clerk; B. H. Smith, escort; Alfred Scott, watchman; Wm. Edmondson, sentry; A. A. Hanna, J. M. Shanks and C. D. Edwards, managers; C. C. Taggart, examining physician.

The Royal Neighbors of America have chosen the following officers: Mrs. Emma Gillam, past oracle; Mrs. Ada Pennington, oracle; Mrs. Bullis, vice oracle; Mrs. C. O. Churchill, recorder; Mrs. Wm. Evans, receiver; Miss Bertha Titus, marshal; Miss Blanch Hanson, inside sentinel; Mrs. Pascal Hill, Mrs. C. A. Anderson and C. D. Edwards, managers.

St. Johns Camp W. O. W. have installed the following officers: R. C. Clark, consul; C. B. Mallet, advisor; H. B. Bickner, banker; H. E. Coon, clerk; R. D. Southwell, escort; J. M. Moore, watchman; P. Holman, sentry; Robt. Anderson, I. E. Foraker and Clyde Heath, managers; Dr. Rossiter, physician.

Dan Williamson received a bright, cheery letter from Charlie Bailey and Wynne Manning, Monday, written at Elk Camp on Elk creek somewhere in Curry county. The lads are having a delightful time feasting on trout, bacon "crooked" coffee, with a touch of wild mutton occasionally—well, now, don't that make your mouth water? They leave the Coast for the Cascade range in a few days. They are well and happy and send good wishes to the friends at home.

Mr. W. H. Bonham and family returned last Friday night from Sea View where they had been spending a most pleasant vacation.

The Library

Open Hours: 1:00 to 5:30 and 7 to 9:30 p. m.
Sundays: 2:30 to 5:30

Here is a list of interesting non-fiction that can be had at the library:

Through Five Administrations—Cooke. An entertaining account of the home life of five presidents as seen by an official of the White house. They are reprinted from the Saturday Evening Post.

The Religion of the Future—El-liott. When this little book first came out two years ago it aroused a storm of disapproval from ministers and laymen all over the country. A number of Portland clergy denounced it from the pulpit. You may not agree with it but you will be interested in knowing the ideas that the ex-president of Harvard has on religion.

How to Live on 24 Hours a Day—Bennett.

If you have read any of Bennett's novels you may or may not have liked them, but it is difficult to imagine anyone being anything but fascinated by these clever, stimulating little books. Did you ever say that you would do this or that when you had time? According to Mr. Bennett you will never have more time, as you already have all there is. He urges us to take account of our spare time and put it to use instead of frittering it away as we are so apt to do.

Mind and Work—Gulick. In these days we don't have to be Christian Scientists in order to appreciate the power of the mind over matter when scientists keep us informed of this fact. In the first chapter of this book of Dr. Gulick's is impressed upon us. Everyone who has a position to hold should read this chapter. Teachers will find it especially suggestive.

Success has followed the experiment of C. S. Hudson, cashier of the First National Bank of Bend, who last year shipped in a carload of brood sows and sold them to near-by farmers, taking their notes at one year payment. He writes D. O. Lively, of the Portland Union Stockyards Co., that the hogs are proving a profitable investment and he has a report from each man who purchased, showing a profit of as high as 200 per cent. In some instances. He says he believes the average will be 100 per cent. on each hog.

Elmer Howard, head washer at the Model laundry left Saturday for his native town, Yoncalla, Ore., for a two-weeks' visit with his family who still reside there. He took guns and ammunition along with the expectation of bagging a deer. Here's luck.

Reported Favorably

The house committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries has reported favorably an omnibus appropriation bill for additional fish hatching and fish culture stations in the various states of the Union. Twelve states receive appropriations under this bill, Oregon being the most favored on the list. Eleven of the states get $25,000 each for the establishing of one station, while Oregon gets $50,000 for the establishing of two stations. Congressman Lafferty appeared before the committee in behalf of Oregon and made an argument for two stations, submitting a letter from the department of commerce and labor to Senator Bourne reciting that the salmon output of the Columbia river can be doubled in four years by proper management. Lafferty also submitted telegrams from Secretary of State Olcott showing that the state of Oregon has recently appropriated $70,000 of state money to promote fish hatcheries.
