

Should Elect Selling

A vital issue is involved in the election of United States Senator next Tuesday. It is that of the preservation of the direct primary law. This is the real issue, and on it the voters should determine their vote for Senator. Senator Bourne was defeated for renomination fairly and squarely in the primary election last April by Ben Selling. Three days following that election, Bourne telegraphed Selling, congratulating him on his nomination and pledging his hearty support. Subsequently, Bourne sought the endorsement and nomination of the Progressive state convention. Again he was rejected by an assembly of electors representing the sovereign people. As a final resort, Bourne caused petitions to be circulated nominating him as an independent candidate. Most of the signatures to his petitions were obtained by professional petition circulators who were paid five cents a name.

In becoming an independent candidate, Bourne repudiated the direct primary of which he has been the professed friend. He has also repudiated the Progressive party, after pledging his support to Roosevelt, but this repudiation took place after Bourne was refused the Senatorial nomination by that party. Bourne now declares that Roosevelt and his supporters did not have a sufficient reason for organizing the new party.

Contrasted with the irreconcilable course of Bourne is that of Ben Selling, who is before the voters as the Republican direct primary nominee for Senator. The issue is absolutely plain and cannot be misrepresented.

A vote for Bourne is a vote for the repudiation of the direct primary law.

A vote for Selling is a vote for the preservation of the direct primary law.

Mr. Selling believes in the direct primary and all other laws that constitute the Oregon system. Either as a member of the State Legislature or as a private citizen, Mr. Selling for 16 years labored for progressive legislation in this state. He assisted in the enactment of the direct primary, initiative and referendum, recall and the Presidential preference primary law. He believes in them firmly. His record as a true progressive and the friend of the common people has been consistent at all times. His record is known to every voter in the state and he is to be entrusted with the responsibilities of the more important office he now seeks. Believing the high cost of living is due largely to the tariff, Mr. Selling is pledged, if elected, to work for an immediate revision of the tariff downward. He promises to secure for Oregon its full share of appropriations for river and harbor improvements and other public needs, together with the state's long over-due share of the Reclamation fund.

Friends of the Oregon system owe it to themselves and the preservation of the direct primary to vote for Ben Selling. A vote for his opponent, Bourne, is a vote in favor of the repudiation of that law.

Mr. Voter: Bear this in mind when you go to the polls Tuesday, November 5.

A few reasons why Ben Selling should be elected United States Senator:

He believes in the direct primary law.

Is a staunch supporter of the Oregon system.

Has lived in Oregon for 50 years and is intimately acquainted with the needs of the state.

Is pledged to an immediate revision of the tariff downward.

Stands for the common people as against the Standard Oil and other corporate interests.

Is pledged to secure for Oregon several millions of its long over-due share of the Reclamation fund.

Some of the many reasons that Senator Bourne should not be re-elected:

He has repudiated the direct primary law.

Is a bolting independent candidate.

Is not a bona fide resident of Oregon. His interests are largely in Massachusetts.

Lacks an intimate knowledge of the state and its needs.

Was defeated for renomination fairly and squarely in the primary nominating election.

Voted with Aldrich to maintain present high tariff.

Served as intermediary for Standard Oil interests and White House until called off by Roosevelt.

Lost to Oregon several millions of its just share of the Reclamation fund.

If elected, will have no party identity and cannot secure influential committee places in organization of Senate.

Endorses McCusker

To the Editor: It will be but a few days until Election. In this election St. Johns is much interested. St. Johns, Whitwood Court and Linnton are all greatly interested in the man who should be sent to Congress, as well as is Portland and all Multnomah Co.

St. Johns and the vicinity immediately surrounding Linnton, Whitwood Court possess the best harbor facilities to be found on the Willamette and yet these good facilities are not used to one tenth the extent they should be used and why?

Thomas McCusker favors the early completion of the canal at the Dalles so water transportation can be extended to Lewiston, Idaho. He favors a canal around the upper rapids at the Canadian boundary line so that water transportation can extend into Canada, thereby making St. Johns and vicinity the natural shipping point for all the vast wheat and farm products of the Northern empire.

He favors improving of the Willamette and Columbia sloughs and these things done and within Multnomah Co. will grow the London of America. A vote for Mr. T. McCusker is a vote for Portland, for St. Johns for Whitwood Court for Linnton for Multnomah Co. He is able, fearless, capable. He runs as an independent. D. C. Lewis.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 27, 1912. To W. W. Cutler, Will Hamilton and D. C. Lewis, Committee, Portland, Oregon:

Hon. Thomas McCusker is entitled to the support of every true progressive in Portland Congressional district. As a delegate to the National Republican convention, his acts were in accord with honor and conscience, and knowing, as I do, the condition prevailing at the convention, I heartily approve of what he did, and every true progressive will do so when he knows the truth. I hope that all my friends will support him, as we need such fearless, conscientious men in Congress.

Hold a Reception

The members of the Christian church gathered at their church home on East New York street Wednesday evening, and gave a rousing reception to the new members who united with that congregation during the series of meetings which have been held there the past three weeks. There were 28 additions to the church, and 24 of them were present at the reception. The event was a sort of compound arrangement. Recently the Sunday School of this church engaged in a contest for membership, the women being pitted against the men, in which the winners were to be entertained by the losers, and, as usual in such contests, the ladies were the winners. The men took this occasion to give the entertainment to their fair conquerors. It is a fair sample, too, of what may be expected when the ladies enter politics, for a time at least. The men induced their wives and daughters and sweethearts to bring the cakes, sandwiches, pickles, coffee, and other refreshments, and after a very interesting program given by the ladies, some of the most enterprising of them served all comers, and there were about 400 of them, to all they wished to eat—thus did the men entertain the winners. A most happy time was enjoyed by all, and the church and Sunday School feel greatly encouraged with the outcome of the meeting and the contest. The membership of the school has almost doubled within the past year, and the membership of the church has increased over 50 per cent. The special meetings have been held by the pastor, he dropping his regular work as a carpenter for the time and devoting his entire time to this work.

Hallow'en Parties

Mrs. C. H. Boyd entertained the Jolly Steen club in a delightful manner at a Hallow'en party Wednesday evening. Characters typical of the Hallow'en season were represented in a humorous and ingenious way, and the residence was decorated in an appropriate and unique manner. Mrs. Evans' costume was very charming; Mrs. Muck and Mrs. Vincent represented twin pumpkins, and Dr. Vincent represented a negro preacher and sang a negro song that elicited much laughter and applause. Mr. Horsman as a clown was "killing." Mrs. Derrie represented a witch. Mrs. Ingledue in white with silver stars represented Dawn. Mrs. Horsman in black spangled with moon and stars was a charming Night. Mr. Derrie was a typical farmer. Mrs. Benham wore a charming costume. A delicious lunch of apple pie and whipped cream, cheese and coffee was served. Grape juice was served during the evening. It was an evening of fun long to be remembered by those fortunate enough to belong to that club.

Mrs. A. W. Markle entertained the members of the Debonair club and their husbands at a Hallow'en party last evening. The home was decorated in Hallow'en designs and decorations. A number of the guests were arrayed in costume. Mrs. Evans, as Liberty, was very beautiful. Quite the hit of the evening was Prof. Boyd and Mr. Derrie as the summer squashes. They elicited much merriment. Mrs. Boyd, a Japanese high caste lady, was very charming. Mrs. Gammel was a demure little Pricilla. Mrs. Gray as the Gipsy Queen was very fine. Mrs. Derrie's characterization of a witch was very good, indeed. Sandwiches, salads, pumpkin pie and cider were served. The game of 500 and charades were indulged in.

Secrets of the Craft.

While remarks by distinguished author while composing the novel of the decade.

"For heaven's sake, Mary, can't you stop that child crying without slinging at the top of your voice? How is a man to get anywhere with all that noise going on?"

"Yes, yes, take the post, take the shears, take the paper, take the ink, take the stamps, take any thing, but let me work in peace!"

"Oh, if you say so I suppose we must pay that fool call, but I do wish you'd remember that every minute taken out of my working day cuts down our income by just so much!"

From the dedication page of the completed novel of the decade:

TO MY WIFE MARY, without whom poetic inspiration, true companionship and constant helpfulness these pages would never have been written. I gratefully inscribe this book.

Drunken Monkeys. According to a letter from the Congo region on the west coast of Africa, the monkeys there are inordinately fond of a kind of beer made by the natives, who use the beverage to capture their poor relations. Having placed quantities of the beer where the monkeys can get at it, the natives wait until their victims are in various degrees of inebriation, and when they then mingle with them the poor creatures are too much fuddled to recognize the difference between negro and ape. When a negro takes the hand of one of them to lead him off, some other fond creature clings to the hand of the latter one and another one to his hand. Thus a single negro may sometimes be seen carrying off a string of staggering monkeys. When secured the beer is administered in decreasing quantities, so that they may only gradually awaken to the sad results of their spree.—London Tit-Bits.

For American Citizens. When the visitor approached the diplomatic gallery of the senate chamber the doorkeeper informed him, says a writer in the Philadelphia Ledger, that the gallery was reserved for foreign representatives.

"It is, hey?" said the visitor. "Well, I want to tell you right now that this is a free country, and this is the senate of the United States, and I demand admission in the name of American citizenship."

"Oh!" said the doorkeeper. "Why didn't you say at first that you were an American citizen? Just step around to the second door from here. That gallery is reserved for American citizens."

A King's Rebuke. The queen of Wurttemberg was one day walking in the streets of Stuttgart attended by a maid of honor, when she met a body of students who refused to make room for the ladies, and this compelled them to walk in the gutter. The queen reported the matter to the king, and the next day the captain of the corps Suvla was summoned to the palace. A servant led him into a room where there were no chairs, and there the unfortunate student had to wait a full hour. At last the king appeared, and finally the young man was dismissed by him thus: "I cannot demand that every student should know my wife, but I do demand that the corps Suvla give place in the streets to ladies."

The Crawfish's Tail. The tail of a crawfish serves that animal as an ear. By a peculiar jerk of the tail the animal can retro from a dangerous object with almost incredible swiftness. The tail is much more effective in moving the animal backward than forward, a singular instance of adaptation to its situation, for by means of its tail it can withdraw into its hole with such swiftness as in an instant to place it out of danger.

On Himself. They had quarreled again. "Perhaps you are not aware," she said, "that I had over a dozen proposals of marriage before I accepted yours."

He flushed. "And perhaps, madam," he retorted haughtily, "you are not aware that I proposed to nearly twenty women before I became acquainted with yourself."

The Allegiance Tree.

The pimento, or allspice tree is cultivated in the West Indies and Jamaica. This beautiful tree usually grows to a height of about thirty feet. It has a straight trunk, much branched above and covered with a very smooth brown bark. The leaves vary in size and shape, but are always of a dark, shining green color. During the months of July and August the tree is in full bloom, the blossoms consisting of very fragrant small white flowers. In favorable seasons the pimento crop is enormous, a single tree often yielding a hundred or more pounds of the dried spice. The berries are picked while green, because if left on the tree until ripe they lose their pungent taste and are valueless. The green berries are exposed to the sun for a week or ten days, when they lose their green color and turn a reddish brown. When perfectly dry they are put in bags and ready for exportation. The odor and the taste of the pimento berries are thought to resemble a combination of those of cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves; hence the familiar name "allspice."

A Queer Fact About Vision. In the eye itself certain things may go on which give us wrong sensations, which, although not truly illusions, are very much like them. Thus when we suddenly strike our heads or faces against something in the dark we see "stars," or bright sparks, which we know are not real lights, though they are quite as bright and sparkling as if they were. When we close one eye and look straight ahead at some word or letter in the middle of this page, for example, we seem to see not only the thing we are looking at, but everything else immediately about it and for a long way on each side. But the truth is there is a large round spot somewhere near the point at which we are looking in which we see nothing. Curiously enough, the existence of this blind spot was not discovered by accident, and nobody ever suspected it until Mariotte reasoned from the construction of the eyeball that it must exist and proceeded to find it.

He Would Push Too. A gentleman with a well fed appearance who motored over from the nearest town to deliver his lecture, "The Art of Getting On," in the village schoolroom, concluded with a fine flourish, "The successful man is the man who strives persistently. His motto is 'Push, and keep pushing.' By that and that alone he reaches his goal." Before the audience made much headway with their clapping a small man at the back got in a laugh that might have come from a megaphone. The lecturer held up his hand for silence.

"You, too, my friend, will have to push," he commenced.

"So will you, I reckon," interrupted the small man. "There is half a dozen kids pinching the gasoline out of your motorcar to light a bonfire."—New York Telegraph.

An Awed Gunner. A Maine hunter who is a crack shot tells a curious story about himself. While hunting one day he came upon a large deer not more than two rods away. He attempted to raise his rifle to his shoulder, but his arm became suddenly paralyzed. All he could do was to stand there and watch the deer disappear in the distance. Then his arm resumed its normal condition, and he started on the trail once more. After awhile he came upon the deer a second time, and again the hunter tried to raise his rifle, and again his arm refused to serve him. Then he gave it up and went home, impressed with a sense of awe and a conviction that he had better leave that particular deer alone.

The Regret of His Life. Sir William Grove, the eminent scientist and jurist, never forgave himself for not discovering the spectroscopic scope. "I had often observed," he said, "that there were different lines exhibited in the spectra of different metals ignited in the voltaic arc, and if I had had any reasonable amount of wit I ought to have seen the converse—viz, that by ignition different bodies show in their spectral lines the materials of which they are composed."

Repertee. Upon Fenelon telling Richelieu that he had seen the portrait of his eulogist at the palace the cardinal sneeringly asked, "Did you ask it for a subscription for some poor friend of yours?"

"No. The picture was too much like you."

Rather Desirable. "I hope your father does not object to my staying so late," said Mr. Stuyt as the clock struck 12.

SELLING WARMLY RECEIVED

Met With Much Encouragement on Recent Trip Through Oregon

During the last ten days, Ben Selling, progressive Republican nominee for United States Senator, has visited Southwestern Oregon and various counties in Eastern Oregon. On these trips he met with much encouragement in his candidacy for the Senatorship. On these trips Mr. Selling did not essay any spell-binding oratory, but plainly told the voters what they could expect of him as a public servant if elected. He refers to his past performances as a consistent progressiveness as a guarantee that he will "make good" on all promises as United States Senator. Judge Stephen A. Lowell, one of Mr. Selling's opponents for the nomination in the primary election, is loyally supporting the Republican nominee. Judge Lowell accompanied Mr. Selling through some sections of Eastern Oregon and expects during the month of October to visit several other counties in behalf of Mr. Selling's candidacy.

Editor Davey Now Favors Selling. The Harney County News opposed Ben Selling, progressive Republican nominee for United States Senator, in the primary election, but is now loyally supporting the Portland man. In a recent issue, Editor Davey had the following to say regarding the progressiveness of Mr. Selling:

"No man in Oregon or the United States has a better title to the name 'progressive' than Ben Selling. In every movement for popular legislation and for enlarging the reserve power of the masses, Mr. Selling has been an influential factor, through all the times and struggles when such advocates were in the minority and were the targets of bitter abuse."

Selling a Pioneer Progressive. Progressive is as progressive does. This is just as true as it is concise. It is particularly applicable to the Senatorial contest in this state. The record of Ben Selling, progressive Republican nominee for the United States Senate, during his services of 16 years in the Oregon Legislature, irrefutably stamps him as a pioneer in the progressive cause. He was foremost in the ranks of those who were not only advocating but writing upon the statute books of the state progressive measures when many of the strong-lunged so-called progressives of today were just as active in defending machine rule and opposing every measure of popular legislation.

SINGLE TAX IS OPPOSED

Selling Against Any Measure Doing Away With Individual Ownership

Of course, Ben Selling, progressive Republican nominee for United States Senator, is being opposed by W. S. U'ren, A. D. Cridge, H. D. Wagon and other advocates of single tax. But the real reason is not difficult to ascertain. In the primary campaign Mr. Selling came out fearlessly against Mr. U'ren's pet tax measure. What is more, Mr. Selling is still against single tax and any other measure that proposes to do away with the right of individual ownership of land. Mr. Selling announced his unqualified opposition to single tax at the beginning of the primary campaign. His opponents in that contest remained silent on this question. His opponents in the pending campaign are equally silent. The voters of the state have a right to know where candidates for United States Senator stand on this issue which so vitally concerns the homeowner. Are Mr. Selling's opponents afraid to take the people into their confidence?

Selling's Position Similar to Borah's

In refusing to leave the Republican party, Ben Selling, progressive Republican nominee for United States Senator, has taken the same position as Senator Borah, Governor Deneen, Governor Hadley and other leading progressives of the country. With them he believes that the reforms demanded by the people can best be accomplished within the Republican party—the party of performance. And in taking this stand he has not compromised his progressiveness one whit. Does any one, even the most rabid so-called progressive, question the progressiveness of Senator Borah?

Performance Only Reliable Test

Performance, rather than promise, is the only reliable test of the consistency of any man with relation to the cause he advocates. Measured by this test, Ben Selling, progressive Republican nominee for United States Senator, qualified years ago as a consistent progressive. As a member of the Oregon Legislature, Mr. Selling not only advocated but assisted in the enactment of the following measures of popular legislation: Australian ballot law, direct primary law, initiative and referendum, recall and Presidential preference primary law.

If you doubt that Ben Selling, progressive Republican nominee for United States Senator, was not a pioneer in the progressive cause, consult his record. It began 16 years ago.
