The calamity howler is again abroad in the land.

Why not make it unanimous for President?

The election of A. W. Lafferty to Congress by such an overwhelming vote is a most bitter pill for the Portland press to swallow. It may learn them a lesson that criticism is all right, but persecution and abuse prove to be a boomerang, as such it should be. Lafferty is all right and will continue to make good, although it is altogether likely he will not receive any credit for good work by the Portland press.

Council Proceedings

Owing to the fact that several of the city duds were serving on the different election boards, council merely met and adjourned Tuesday evening to convene Thursday evening.

With the exception of Councilman Valentine, all members surrounded the table Thursday night, but as little business presented itself, the session was a brief one.

Thomas Glover asked for permission to erect an electric sign in front of his new place of business on Philadelphia street. Granted on motion of Alderman Horman.

A communication from a Chicago bonding company stated they were willing to take any St. Johns bonds at five and one-half per cent, which proves that this city must have good standing in the East.

Chairman Davis of the street committee recommended that the engineering force be pared down compatible with the state of the weather and the business on hand. Definite action deferred until next Tuesday evening.

Contractor Hahn was ordered to instanter place crosswalks where most vitally necessary on Fessenden street, or the city would have them lain at the contractor's expense.

The committee on water plant purchase and H. L. Powers of the water company were unable to meet on account of two of the committee serving on the election board. A meeting is being arranged for tomorrow, however. Mr. Powers states that he would be perfectly willing to meet with a mass meeting of the citizens and discuss the water situation in detail.

The following bids were received on the improvement of New York street: L. D. Jackson, $1,059.00; V. W. Mason, $1,022.10; Star Sand Co., $1,045.80. On motion of Alderman Horman the contract was awarded to Mr. Mason.

M. E. Church Prospers

Dr. J. W. McDougall, superintendent of the Portland district of the Oregon Conference held the first Quarterly Conference in the Pioneer M. E. church Tuesday evening. Reports from the various departments of the church showed the local organization to be in a prosperous condition. The Sunday School has the largest enrollment and greatest average attendance in its history. The membership of the church is increasing; during the quarter twenty six members were added. Nine of these were from other Methodist churches, three from other denominations, ten by recommendation of the official board, and four on probation. The new basement of the church will be ready for use Nov. 17. This will give more adequate room to use modern methods in Sunday School work. Dr. McDougall expressed himself as highly pleased with the work of the St. Johns church. "No church," said Rev. McDougall, "in the Portland District has given a better report for the first quarter than St. Johns." Methodist church cor. Leavitt and Hayes. Theme 11 A. M. "Bread for the hungry." Theme 7:30 P. M. "Victory over sin." Sunday School 10 A. M. Epworth League 6:30 P. M. All are invited.

"There could be no better medicine than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. My children were all sick with whooping cough. One of them was in bed, had a high fever and was coughing up blood. Our doctor gave them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the first dose eased them, and three bottles cured them," says Mrs. R. A. Donaldson of Lexington, Miss. For sale by all dealers.

Extends Thanks

To the Editor of St. Johns Review, St. Johns, Oregon.
Dear Sir: Permit me through the columns of your paper to thank the voters in the district for my re-election to Congress. I have strong hopes of being able to help materially in putting laws on the statute books for control of monopolies and Reduction of the High Cost of Living, within the next two years.
At the same time I shall push local laws for the betterment of Oregon, including river and harbor improvements, irrigation and enforcement of the Oregon & California Land Grant.
A. W. Lafferty.

Sam Downey and A. D. McDonald gave illustrations of endurance and strenuousness on the election boards. They served on precinct 157, going on Tuesday morning, staying on Tuesday night, staying on Wednesday all day and continuing until 6:30 Thursday morning. Counting ballots require the closest application, and therefore, it is a feat that few would care to duplicate.

Are You In To Win?

To say "Oh, yes, I would like to succeed" won't bring you far out on the highway to competence.

When business men go into a venture, they GO IN TO WIN. When players go into a game in real earnest they are after the PENNANT.

In your case, you are not competing or playing against anybody but YOURSELF—and you're close enough to yourself to lay your hand on yourself and say: "Win for me"—and start a savings account at the "Peninsula National."

An Interesting Paper

dangerous carrier of disease. The school inspection is doing a great deal toward the prevention of disease, for to wait for contagion before taking action has been an expensive way of learning when health protection is needed.

But with seemingly every precaution contagious diseases will occasionally enter our homes and it might be well to consider a few of the more common ones.

Whooping cough, although considered not very dangerous is very hard on the patient as they are usually small children, consequently it works a hardship on the mother. It begins with a catarrhal condition of the air passages as an ordinary cold and continues to grow worse until the paroxysm of coughing and whooping many times cause the patient to vomit and become blue from choking. Inhalation of medicated steam are strongly recommended by many specialists in children's diseases.

A change of air is advisable even a distance of a few miles or a change from a higher to a lower altitude or vice versa has wrought much benefit. Very simple but nourishing food so that it may be partially or completely absorbed before the coughing returns. In severe cases the patient should be kept in bed. During convalescence the child should be watched carefully, for having already an irritated condition of the throat, broncho-pneumonia is apt to develop.

Mumps. An infection of the parotid gland, introduce themselves by slight chill, fever, pain below the ear, swelling of the parotid gland. Either extreme heat or cold applied to the infected parts will give considerable relief. As in any case of illness give light diet and keep the bowels well open. Fruit and fruit juices serve as a laxative and at the same time a slight disinfectant to stomach and bowels.

The eruptive diseases are more complicated. Many times persons complaining of languid feeling, cold, headache and slight fever, are developing the first symptoms of either measles or scarlet fever, but until some eruption appears on the tongue or skin, it is almost impossible to diagnose them. However, when a patient is suffering from the above described symptoms a hot bath, drinking lots of hot water and produce perspiration is the first and best thing to do.

This will cause the eruption to appear in a few hours, or in a case of LaGrippe it will do much to check and cure them. Where measles or scarlet fever have been diagnosed, the first thing to do is to isolate the patient. A well ventilated room or tent farthest away from the family, the person caring for the patient should not come in close contact with others. Rest in bed and liquid diet as long as there is a rise of temperature. Let me again speak of water drinking.

It is one of the best methods of lowering the temperature and freeing the body of disease germs.

Many cases of kidney trouble might have been avoided had enough water been taken into the system during an illness of scarlet fever. Fruit juices are especially good in any fever. Keep the patients' teeth, mouth and nose well cleaned with a mild antiseptic solution. All dishes, bedding and linen used must be disinfected before taken from the room. Boiling is the best method. For articles which cannot be used that way a solution of chloride of lime or Bichloride may be used.

Many diseases might be mentioned but the old adage "An ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure" is well to be remembered. To become intelligent upon the subject of hygiene is the duty of every parent. Health is a treasure. Of all temporal possessions it is the most precious. Wealth, learning and honor are dearly purchased at the loss of the vigor of health. None of these can secure happiness if health is lacking. It is a terrible thing to abuse the health that God has given us. Such abuse enfeebles us for life and makes us losers even if we gain by such means any amount of education.

MONTAVILLE FLOWERS.

In the presidential campaign of 1908 Mr. Flowers, under the auspices of the national Republican committee, made many of the most important political addresses in Illinois and traveled on the president's special train. At South Bend, Ind., he spoke to 30,000 people, all of which shows Mr. Flowers to be a great orator as well as an impersonator.

Beginning as a boy on the farm, in his teens a teacher in the common schools, at the age of twenty-four he held diplomas from the Ohio Northern University and the Cincinnati College of Music, and he organized and for three years managed the university extension work of Cincinnati University.

General Lew Wallace, the author of "Ben-Hur," attended the rendition of his famous book as given one night by Montaville Flowers in the author's home city, Crawfordsville, Ind. At the close General Wallace put his arm about Flowers and said, "This is by far the best treatment my book has ever had." The Cincinnati Enquirer had this to say about the rendition of this play in this city: "Though a resident of this city and in his fiftieth appearance here in ten years to the latest audience in the history of the city, Mr. A. W. Lafferty, thirty three people, Montaville Flowers was the extraordinary attraction at Music Hall last night. He presented the monologue of "Ben-Hur" in a powerful exactment, full of dramatic force and intensity of delivery. In the chat room scene he reached a climax which is seldom witnessed and which was warmly greeted by the applause of the audience."

Other attractions in his repertoire are "A Christmas Carol," "Les Miserables," "The Battle of Waterloo," "The Merchant of Venice," "Hamlet" and "The Little Minister." It has been truly said of this repertoire that each number is wrought out, like the work of Henry Irving, with great fidelity to the genius of the author, the atmosphere of the composition and the details of the characters in it.
