At the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Jones 216 N. Hartman street, St. Johns, Feb. 4th, occurred a These men. hav pleasant surprise birthday party. it being Mrs. Jones birthday. The neighbors and friends to the number of twenty-four walked in at noonday with baskets well filled wiht everything that is good to eat. To say Mrs. Jones was surprised is putting it mildly. Soon the ladies had the long table the entire length of the dining room fairly groan-ing under its load,. All were merry and happy. Mrs. Jones received several gifts. Those present were Mesdames J. H. Evans, J. B. Marlette, D. I. Jones, Matilda Brown, Homer Finch, Arthur Holcomb, J. P. Rasmussen, C. R. Chadwick, Fred Erickson, G. H. Lemon, George Brokaw, Roy Tolbert, Misses Hazel and Vida Evans, Mary, Verna and Agnes Jones, little Beatrice Chadwick, Frances and Edna Jones and Master Clarence Chadwick and Robert Lemon. All left wishing Mrs. Jones many more happy birthays. The Debonair club was handsomely entertained at Mrs. L. H. Chambers lovely new home on 1326 Main street, Portland, on Thursday at an elaborate chicken dinner. The dinner was in honor of Mrs. Alice Learned who leaves Tuesday for an extended southern trip. Mrs.E. E. Chuch-hill of Duluth was present as a guest of the club. An enjoyable afternoon was spent. The club presented Mrs. Learned with a beutiful manicure set as a token of appreciation and Mrs. Hewitt intently listening? There are three causes, entirely in dependent of one another, but acting in unison, for this action. There is a passageway called the eustachian tube, connecting the back of the throat and the middle ear, the part behind the drum. When intently listening we hold our breath, and this permits sound waves to enter the mouth and reach the eustachian tube, and in this way they reach the drum and re-enforce the sound waves that come through the natural channel, the outer

THE OPEN MOUTH. Causes That Induce It When We Ar Intently Listening. Why do we open our mouths

English Army Methods In the Execution of Condemned Spies,

The ceremony of disposing of a con demned spy in the English army al ways follows a definite precedent. The unfortunate man is surrounded by a detachment of infantry, and after he is provided with a pick and shove. he is marched off to a selected spot and ordered to dig his own grave This done, the tools are taken from him and his eyes are bandaged. The attending chaplain reads portions se lected from the burial service, and from the ranks of the escort twelve men are selected at random by the

These men, having stacked their own rifles, are led to where twelve other rifles are awaiting them, six of which are loaded with blank cartridges. One of these is handed to each man, so that no one knows whether the rifle he holds contains a bullet or not, and none can say for certain that the shot fired by him killed the prisoner. The firing party then marches to an appointed position. The commands "Pre-sent!" "Fire!" are given, and almost before the last word rings out the volley is fired and the spy falls into the grave he has dug.

Nearly every man is more or less affected on being selected to form one

MURKY GREEN PETROLEUM.

Processes by Which It Is Converte Into Refined Oil. In its original state petroleum is of murky green color. It is distilled in paus with great furnaces blazing beneath them, and as the vapors arise from the boiling liquid they are conveyed into pipes surrounded by cold water in which they are condensed. -The first vapors condense into naphtha and those produced by further heating give the burning oil. A very small percentage of the crude oil put into the pans or stills remains in the form of tar, which by snother process is converted into parattin and coke. After distillation the refined oil is n longer green, but is as transparent as spring water and beautifully tinged with purples and blues. It is not yet ready for use, however, since it must be "washed." The fluid is emptied into treated with acids, these being poured in and mixed with it by means of pow erful pressure from beneath. When it has been well shaken it i allowed to settle, and the acids then separate from it and sluk to the bottom of the tank, taking with them some of the tar that remained in the

The acids are then removed and the oil is washed with salt water. Finally it is bleached, and it is then ready fo the market.-Harper's Weekly.

TIGER PROOF HOMES.

Malay Houses, Frail and Flimsy Sometimes Perch In Tree Tops. The ordinary Malay house is built on posts from five to seven feet high, but one which I came across was perched high up in a tree. It was the home of a man, his wife and family, and they informed me that it was placed in this unusual situation so as to be out of the way of the numerous tigers which then infested the neighborhood. As tigers have been known to jump eighteen feet in vertical beight somewhere about twenty feet is considered house is a frail and flimsy structure of sticks tied together with rattan thatched with paim leaves and walled with plaited bamboo or, as in this case, with the bark of trees.

It is therefore an easy matter for tiger with its great strength to break into a house and attack the inhabitants. Many instances of this have been recorded in Malaya. In one well known case a whole family were killed except one man, who, climbing up into the roof and thus escaping the notice of the tiger, was a borrified observer of

MILLET'S RIOT IN COLORS.

The Artist Enraged the Critics, but Forced Recognition. his early years as an artist the late Frank D. Millet had a hard struggle to gain recognition. He sent pictures to exhibitions, to be sure, and good pictures they were, but no one paid any particular attention to them or said anything about them. One day Millet conceived an idea. He painted a picture of a lady in black sitting on a bright red sofa, standing against a vivid yellow background. The effect was just a trifle startling. Friends who saw it in the process of production expostulated with him and asked him what he was going to do with it. They were astounded when he announced that he was going to send it to the exhibition. They told him the critics would "wipe the floor" with him. "They can't do that without mentioning me." said Millet quiet. ly, "and they've never even done that, as yet.'

To the exhibition the picture went It killed everything within twenty feet on either side of it. You couldn't help tooking at it. It simply knocked you down and held you there.

The critics got into a towering passion over it. They wrote whole columns about it. They exhausted the English innguage in abusing it. They ridiculed the committee that permitted it to be hung. They had squibs and gibes about it, but every time they spoke of it they mentioned Frank Mil-let. He suddenly became the best known artist in town. Somebody, because of the stir it had made, bought the picture at a good price and re moved it to the seclusion of his own home

When the next exhibition came off Millet had another picture ready, one of a very different sort and very good. but no better than others which he had exhibited before. The critics had much to say about it and "noted with pleas. ure the marked improvement" that Mr. Millet had made, "an evidence." as they modestly put it. "of the value to be the limit of safety. The Mainyan of criticism, even though severe, to a bouse is a frail and filmsy structure of young artist." And the majority of them never realized that Millet had simply compelled their attention by a clever trick.

Carlyle's Bluntness,

Thomas Carlyle once took Lord Houghton (Richard Milness to task in regard to the proposed pension for Lord Tennyson, "Richard Milnes," said Carlyle, taking his pipe out of his mouth, "when are ye gaun to get that pension for Alfred Tennyson?" Milnes tried to explain that there were difficuities in the way and that possibly his oustituents who knew nothing about Tennyson would accuse him of being concerned in a job were he to succeed in getting the desired pension for the poet. "Richard Milnes." replied the nge, "on the day of judgment, when the Lord asks ve why ye didna get that pension for Alfred Tennyson, it'll no do to lay the blame on your constituents It's you that'll be damned."
