Laurelwood Rebekah Lodge No. 160, St. Johns.

A splendid foundation has been laid by the State Immigration Commission in the work of attracting farmers to Oregon from the countries of Northern Europe. A series of conferences with Germans, Norwegians, Swedish and Danish people has resulted in outlining the work to be accomplished and in securing the complete cooperation of substantial people of these various nationalities now residing in Oregon. Committees formed of members of the different races will work with the Immigration Commission in seeking out suitable lands for colonization purposes, securing them at reasonable prices and aiding the newcomers after they are settled. Judging from the success that has attended the preliminary work, much may be expected from this organized effort to settle Oregon's idle farming land.

More interest is being shown in eugenics, the science of growing perfect babies, throughout the state since the first eugenics show was held last year at the State Fair. The first test of babies has just been held by the Parents' Educational Bureau of Portland, and this promises to become a regular institution. Babies are given a careful scientific examination and defects pointed out to parents with instructions as to how they may be overcome. Parents who intend entering youngsters in the coming shows next Fall find these preliminary tests helpful.

That the Willamette Valley is the one section of the United States that can raise sheep equal to those of England, was the statement made by Prof. Thomas Shaw, agricultural expert for the Great Northern railway, in a recent talk at Salem. He also said that in this state conditions are such that pork can be produced for less cost than in the case in the corn belt of the Middle West, while butter can be produced for 50 per cent less than in New England. Prof. Shaw insists that the Oregon farmer, as a rule, neglecting his opportunities.

Salem has set its dates for the annual Cherry Fair for July 4 and 5, and it will include a patriotic celebration. Steps have been taken to make this year's event the most elaborate affair of its kind ever held.

IOWA MAN STUCK WITH PITCHFORK

A farmer living in the Northern part of Iowa stuck himself in the leg with a pitch fork. The wound would not heal and for two years he had a running sore. He tried all the common salves and liniments and sometimes the sore would heal, but it always broke open again. Finally he healed it up to stay healed with Allen's Ulcerine Salve.

This salve is one of the oldest remedies in America and since 1869 it has been known as the only salve powerful enough to cure chronic ulcers and old sores of long standing.

Allen's Ulcerine Salve acts by drawing out the poisons and healing the sore from the bottom up. It is so powerful that it heals new cuts and sores in one-third the time that common salves and liniments take. And it heals burns and scalds without a scar. Sold by the St. Johns Pharmacy and other leading druggists.

Who Pays for the Trading Stamps

When we put on the Gold Bond Stamps, we told our patrons plainly that we did not like to do it; that the Portland competition had compelled it, and we were simply responding to the demands of our patrons and would try it. We have used them freely now since January 15 and have learned something.

It has cost us since January 15 $625 for stamps. They have been given freely and We Have Not Raised the Price of Any of Our Goods Up to This Time.

We have learned now from Actual Experience that we cannot give these stamps away indefinitely and stay in business unless we raise the price of our goods.

We might do that on some things that the public was not conversant with, but we prefer straight forward, open and above board methods. The only advantage we have gained in the expenditure of $625 for stamps is that our cash sales increased a few dollars each month over the corresponding months of last year and a few accounts have been settled in full that had carried balances for months and months. The foregoing is simply a plain statement of facts. The answer to the question 'who pays for the Trading Stamps' is the patrons of the store.

We have stamps enough to last until June 15---after that date, we discontinue them. A word to the wise, etc.

An Introduction

Introduction to the Bylaws of the Bonville 99 Year System written especially for the System by J. O. Stearns, Jr., of the Portland Bar:

This is an age of isms—each directing its aim to the betterment of humanity, each in its manner bent upon adjusting the differences and thus ending the bitter strife between Capital and Labor.

And this opens the way to a series of vital, intensely vital, questions. Let us here briefly consider one or two of these.

Why is not labor satisfied with its present lot? What is the reason behind its deep and abiding distrust of Big Business, so called?

If we can locate the prime reason we then have the key to the industrial situation, and are in a position to suggest a sane and, let us hope, a satisfactory solution.

After years of study and intimate association with all classes and conditions of people, Frank Bonville, originator of the Bylaws of the Bonville 99 Year System, has reached a scientific solution to this great economic problem, a solution based upon indisputable facts, adduced from a far reaching analysis of human nature and human institutions.

The stock gambling and stock watering, together with illicit combinations of capital, commonly denominated "trusts," and kindred evils growing out of the present loose methods of manipulating large combinations of capital, are at the root of social ills and the cause of present day industrial unrest, is Mr. Bonville's unshakable conviction.

And behind this conviction lies a mass of facts and figures gathered from every conceivable source, in their aggregate so huge that volumes would be required for their recording.

And so Frank Bonville says: "Put an end to stock transferring, and thus end stock gambling. For if a man cannot sell his stock, it necessarily follows that he cannot speculate, or in other words, gamble, with it.

Give every man a chance to acquire stock in paying enterprises and thereby put an end to this steady accumulation of capital by the favored few; this gradual centralization of the medium of exchange into the hands of a half dozen unscrupulous money kings. Make the par value of stock one dollar per share, and strictly forbid its being sold for either more or less.

Thus put it within the power of every person to invest small sums from time to time, as opportunity offers.

Set aside ten per cent of the capital stock of proposed corporations for the promoter's share. Let this suffice for his organization fee. Since he cannot sell his stock, but must depend for his financial returns upon dividends arising therefrom, it follows as a matter of course that his efforts will be directed toward legitimate ends—for he cannot play the "freeze out" game so common in business life today, nor can he grab and sell fifty per cent of the capital stock as promoter's share, and then slide out from under and leave the small stockholder with only a worthless bit of gilt decorated paper to show for his money.

A careful perusal of the Bylaws will convince the unprejudiced reader that a universal, or even nation wide, adoption of the Bonville System of organizing corporations, is sure to result in nothing but an industrial and social uplifting, since a more sane and equitable distribution of wealth would inevitably follow a suppression of stock gambling and its horde of attendant evils, which these Bylaws check at every turn.

The reader will also observe that the liquor problem is handled in a most unique, though entirely simple manner. So much for a genius for clear insight into the troubled ocean of human weaknesses and misunderstandings.

Read, study the lines carefully, compare what you have read with your own experiences and then pass judgment upon this System.

You can buy Stock in the Equal Rights Co., which is incorporated under the Bonville 99 Year System, providing you are not already a stockholder in that company
