This is a chance for some young fellow to make a farm home. We will assume street improvements or small mortgage.—McKinney & Davis.

Mrs. Caples has offered the use of her fine woodland tract of land on Dawson street for picnic and rest purposes during the celebration next month. This is a kindness that is much appreciated, and it emphasizes the need of a park in St. Johns. The lack of enterprise and progressiveness of our citizens in this respect is almost humiliating.

The Commencement exercises given by the pupils of St. Clement school in the M. W. A. hall Wednesday evening were attended by an overflowing audience, the capacity of the hall being too small to accommodate the attendants. And they were well repaid for attending. The program was an unusually interesting one, and each participant executed the part assigned in a most pleasing manner. Following are the graduates: Leo R. Brown, Reco W. Anderson, Dorothy S. Commencement Week

The following is a program of the Baccalaureate exercises by the graduates of the James John High School Sunday, June 22, at 8 p. m., in the High School auditorium:

Hymn—Softly Now the Light of Day.

Softly now the light of day Fades upon our sight away; Free from care, from labor free, Lord, we would commune with Thee.

Thou, whose all pervading eye Naught escapes, without, within, Pardon each infirmity, Open fault and secret sin.

Soon from us the light of day Shall forever pass away; Then, from sin and sorrow free, Take us, Lord, to dwell with Thee.

Prayer—Rev. J. J. Patton.

Solo—Come, Jesus Redeemer (Bartlett)—Mr. Leake.

Sermon—The Price of Power—Rev. E. Weisle.

Chorus—A Letter From Home. Announcements.

Ladies' Quartet—Take My Life and Let it Be.

Chorus—Praise Ye the Father. Benediction.

Music furnished by the combined choirs of the city churches under the direction of Dr. H. O. Brown.

Following is the program complete for Commencement week:

MURKY GREEN PETROLEUM.

Processes by Which It is Converted into Refined Oil.

In its original state petroleum is of a murky green color. It is distilled in pans with great furnaces blazing beneath them, and as the vapors arise from the boiling liquid they are conveyed into pipes surrounded by cold water in which they are condensed.

The first vapors condense into naphtha and those produced by further heating give the burning oil. A very small percentage of the crude oil put into the pans or stills remains in the form of tar, which by another process is converted into paraffin and coke.

After distillation the refined oil is no longer green, but is as transparent as spring water and beautifully tinged with purple and blues. It is not yet ready for use, however, since it must be "washed." The fluid is emptied into a large circular tank in which it is treated with acids, these being poured in and mixed with it by means of powerful pressure from beneath.

When it has been well shaken it is allowed to settle, and the acids then separate from it and sink to the bottom of the tank, taking with them some of the tar that remained in the oil.

The acids are then removed and the oil is washed with salt water. Finally it is bleached, and it is then ready for the market.—Harper's Weekly.

TIGER PROOF HOMES.

Malay Houses, Frail and Flimsy. Sometimes Perch in Tree Tops.

The ordinary Malay house is built on posts from five to seven feet high, but one which I came across was perched high up in a tree. It was the home of a man, his wife and family, and they informed me that it was placed in this unusual situation so as to be out of the way of the numerous tigers which infested the neighborhood.

As tigers have been known to jump eighteen feet in vertical height some where about twenty feet is considered to be the limit of safety. The Malayan house is a frail and flimsy structure of sticks tied together with rattan thatched with palm leaves and walled with plaited bamboo or, as in this case, with the bark of trees.

It is therefore an easy matter for a tiger with its great strength to break into a house and attack the inhabitants. Many instances of this have been recorded in Malaya. In one well known case a whole family were killed except one man, who, climbing up into the roof and thus escaping the notice of the tiger, was a horrified observer of the cruel mauling and ultimate slaughter and devouring of his relatives.—London Strand Magazine.

Life Without Microbes.

Microbes are not indispensable to all life if they are indispensable to any. The question has been definitely settled. A cage completely sterilized to 90 degrees was made and the openings of the cage closely stopped with cotton and protected from the outside by a hermetically closed metallic chamber. Such manipulations as were necessary in opening the cage were made by hands guarded by aseptic rubber cloth. Into such a sterilized cage three hens' eggs were placed after having been externally sterilized. The cage was fitted with a glass pavilion or chicken run, where the chickens could develop during their six weeks' sojourn in the cage. In the cage were sterilized air, pure water, sterilized sand and sterilized feed. The experiment showed that life does not depend upon microbes, but that the vital work of the organism is easy and natural when everything is sterilized.—Harper's.

Relics of Pillories.

Though the pillory has been abolished, there are still to be found in various parts of rural England relics of this old time method of punishment. One of the most complete examples may be seen within a few miles of the metropolitan border. In the picturesque village of Roydon, Essex, not only are the old stocks and whipping post still preserved, but close beside them stands also the wooden "cage" in which the roaster of bygone days was incarcerated. Is there another such interesting relic of punitive relics to be found elsewhere in England?—London Graphic.
